Soviet Leader Has Reason For Ending Universities

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY AP Foreign News Analyst

One of Nikita Khrushchev's admitted purposes in proposing a radical reform of the Soviet school system is to liquidate universities as centers of intellectual ferment among Soviet youth.

He proposes to do this by turning them for the most part into night and correspondence schools.

The Moscow press announced yesterday that the Presidium of the Central Committee has approved Khrushchev's "work while you study" scheme, to be put into effect over the next three or four years. The full membership of the Central Committee and the Supreme Soviet, or Parliament, will be called upon to endorse it later.

One purpose in the proposed change is economic. It will make it possible for the Kremlin to mobilize for manual labor millions of boys and girls from 14 to 17 years of age. The mobilization will help make up for the impending acute shortage of young men and women due to the drop during World War II in the birth rate.

Without adoption of something like this school measure, there would be about five million fewer young people entering the labor force and armed forces in the next five years than in the last five.

Under the Khrushchev plan, after the seventh or eighth grade almost all children, except those exceptionally gifted and intended to become scientists, will be put to work at manual labor on farms and in factories. They will be forced to continue schooling, if at all, at night classes and by correspondence.

Political motives behind the plan are probably stronger than economic.

Californians Meet Abruptly

Three California cars lined up for a traffic light at Eleventh and Main streets Sunday morning and got tangled up in themselves.

Police said the third car in line behind the light, driven by Earl Fry of Alameda, had stopped, then started up again when Fry accidentally stepped on the accelerator.

This officer said pushed Fry's car into the second car, driven by James Bonner of Los Angeles, which in turn ran into the rear of the lead car, driven by Eleanor David of Calahan, California.

Some occupants were taken to Klamath Valley Hospital, but all were released soon afterward, hospital spokesmen said.

Other accidents:

L. E. McFarland of 4906 Avenida Street said he was working at 18 Nevada Street when he saw an unidentified car screech around a corner and knock down a row of mail boxes; and cars driven by Betty Jean Kanna, 3559 Clinton Avenue, and P. A. Redder, 312 Michigan Avenue, collided at Martin Street and Radcliffe Avenue Sunday evening because both drivers said they swerved to avoid a motorcycle.

Charles Zarka of Ashland, a truck driver, appeared at the police station early Monday morning with a parking meter in hand. He had accidentally backed into the meter on North Eighth Street near Pine and knocked it off its pole, he said.

The Kremlin's answer to the problem, expressed in various shifts during the last two years and now particularly in this new over-all change, is to abolish universities as places where large numbers of students study and live together for periods of five years and more. From now on if he is hard-working enough to complete two to three years of high school and three years of higher education at night and correspondence courses the ordinary Soviet youth desirous of completing his higher education may, if he is lucky, be given a leave of absence for only two years of full-time study at a university.

FUNERAL SERVICES will be held for John Norman Lloyd of this city, who died here September 19, in the Klamath Lutheran Church Tuesday, September 23, at 2 p.m. with the Rev. LeRoy Redd officiating. O'Hair's Memorial Chapel is in charge of the arrangements.

Registration Lag Reported

Registrations are coming in slowly for the general election to be held on November 4, County Clerk Charles F. DeLap said today.

To be eligible to vote in the November general election, a person must be registered by October 4 and may register after a residence of six months in the state of Oregon. Those persons who will become 21 years of age prior to the date of election can register to vote this year.

Those who have failed to vote in the general election two years ago and women who have changed their names by marriage must register in order to vote this year, DeLap said. Re-registering is necessary, too, in case of a change of residence.

To assist in getting the largest possible registration, additional places in which to register have been set up, DeLap announced. Mrs. Alma Sweetman, of the Culinary Alliance, will accept registrations at the labor temple; starting on Tuesday, there will be a clerk on duty at Balaiger Motors and at Amidon's Business Machines in the Town and Country shopping center for the convenience of persons wishing to register during lunch hours or on Saturdays.

Former Hungary Minister Claims Russia Bankrupt

By DAVE COHEN

Russia is bankrupt, socially, economically and ideologically, Dr. Nicholas Nyaradi told the first seasonal meeting of the Klamath Knife and Fork Club in the Willard Hotel Friday night.

The doctor, last non-communist undersecretary of the Hungarian Treasury and currently a professor of economics at Bradley University, Peoria, Illinois, said that this bankruptcy has forced the Reds into their "New Look" or "Get Tough" policy.

This policy, he inferred, presents to the United States and the West, a two-edged sword. He claimed that because of the new format adopted in the Kremlin, the United States has a big opportunity but also a big danger. The big opportunity, as outlined by Nyaradi, was to keep and maintain the current free-enterprise system in this country. For he said that if we do, Russia knows she can never match our output for goods and commodities.

However, the other edge of the sword was that a bankrupt Russia just might start a shooting war in order to take the emphasis of internal strife away from Moscow. Warning to "beware of the wounded bear," he cautioned that history proves that dictatorships try to wage only on two occasions. The first is if they are reasonably sure of winning, and the second if things are going badly at home.

In this respect, Nyaradi assured the crowd that Nyaradi was not running too smoothly in the Kremlin. Courier of his government to Moscow and the friend of many world diplomats, the doctor said that proof of this can be found in the recent Hungarian uprisings; the fact that Russia can not produce enough consumer goods for her masses though able to produce war commodities, and the fact that a leader in Russia today is not necessarily one tomorrow.

The world observer said that he was convinced that we are not heading for World War III, because the Reds are convinced that they can win the current cold war. He repeated what many observers have said and that is Russia will back down when its bluff is called.

He returned to his original premise and said that the Reds know they would be defeated now, because of their inability to match U.S. economy.

Overseas, the doctor said our foreign aid program has helped not only its recipients but this country as well.

Shortly after World War II, many European countries were faced with economic collapse and with American dollars were able to escape poverty and thereby present a stone wall to Red aggression.

He commented that these European countries with their raw materials were able to swing the pendulum in favor of the West. If Russia were able to capture the minds of these countries, he noted, then the raw materials might have been bound toward Moscow instead of Washington, giving the Communists the balance of power.

Dr. Nyaradi, an American citizen, concluded his presentation with a prayer for those of his countrymen who died in the uprisings.

The club's next speaker will be Glenn Morris, on October 14.

Senate Group Hits Report

REDMOND, Ore. (AP)—A recent series of reports telling of exploitation of migrant farm workers came under attack Saturday at a Legislative Interim Committee hearing here.

The committee on Migratory Labor, which prepared the report was told at a hearing here that the document was marked with sensationalism. The attack was made by Harold Henson, secretary of the Beet Growers Association of the Nampa District. Henson also is city attorney at Nyssa.

"The report," he said, "appears to be a determination to depict the migrant laborer in the saddest possible light that no credence can be given to it as a fair analysis of the subject."

The report, told among other things, of labor contractors involved in shakedown and operating prostitution and narcotics rings. It said that many migrants are paid sub-standard wages, that housing is poor, and that many are forced to work with run-down, dangerous equipment.

Henson said the report was "not representative of true conditions of the migrant laborer in the county, and tends to portray, with marked sensationalism, a deplorable situation of migratory labor rather than an unbiased, accurate and factual picture of the economic and social conditions of the migrant."

Car Overtakes Injuring Autoists

A car left Highway 66 early Sunday morning to make a 250-foot detour on the left shoulder of the road and turning over. The result was that the driver was hospitalized, his passenger received minor cuts, and the car was badly damaged.

State police said that Elmer C. Smith, 31 Route 1 Box 125, Bonanza, apparently went to sleep at the wheel while the car was eastbound near Dairy. He was taken by Peace Ambulance to Klamath Valley Hospital, where he was reportedly making a good recovery Monday from the cuts and abrasions he suffered about the head.

Passenger Hugh R. Davis, 30 Bonanza, received only minor cuts on the face, police reported.

Dead Body Is Identified

The body of the victim of Saturday morning's fire in a house at Chilquin was identified as that of Ormand Leighton, 25, tenant of the house, county authorities report.

Leighton was dead when firemen reached the scene. The cause of the fire has not been determined, but sheriff's officers believe it may have been a case of smoking in bed.

The victim had been released Friday morning from Chilquin Jail, where he had been held on a charge of drunkenness.

At the time of the fire, Mrs. Leighton was visiting with friends at Tulelake.

Nationalist Buildup Cited

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nationalist China apparently has increased the size of its forces on the offshore islands by more than 25 per cent since last spring.

At that time, Chiang Kai-shek was estimated to have approximately 75,000 regular army forces manning garrisons on Quemoy, Matsu and the smaller islands in both areas. Today's estimate is slightly over 100,000.

The estimate for Big Quemoy is 80,000 soldiers. The total civilian population in that island is believed to be about 40,000. Quemoy is the focal point for Communist attack, hammered daily by siege guns from the nearby Red mainland, with the primary purpose of attempting to stop or seriously restrict arrival of supplies.

The apparent increase of forces was made before the Reds suddenly opened their artillery — and political — offensive against Quemoy.

Why did Chiang send more troops to the exposed positions? The only completely official interpretation here has come from President Eisenhower. In a news conference last month, Eisenhower said that about a third of the Nationalist forces are deployed on the islands west of Formosa and the nearby Pescadores.

Eisenhower said that the deployment of the forces through the offshore islands "makes a closer interlocking" between the defense systems of Formosa and the offshore islands. Before that, said the President, the offshore islands were largely thought of as outposts.

"Now apparently the thing, the philosophy" is to hold the whole complex of islands as "part of the territory from which they hope to make their living," Eisenhower said.
