Check Passer Sees Parole Disappear

A convicted check writer who once broke parole but was given another chance watched his parole disappear once again in circuit court Tuesday.

Standing before Judge David R. Vandenberg was Lew Hatfield, a bricklayer, of 518 Owens Street. He had been arrested for drunken driving, a violation of his parole conditions.

Not far over the Washington border, Hatfield was stopped by state police for failing to dim his headlights. Officers noticed liquor on his breath and drunkenly charged him with driving.

Asked by the judge if this meant he had a mental condition, Hatfield said it did not. Judge Vandenberg reminded Hatfield he had been given ample opportunities to reform, and had failed the trust placed in him.

The judge revoked his probation and set sentencing for 10 a.m. Monday, October 6.

SALEM (AP)—Douglas McKay says it was a coronary attack that put him in the hospital nearly a month ago. He was discharged from the hospital Tuesday and returned home to convalesce.

Discipline Due Officer

MILWAUKIE (AP) — Veteran state policeman Robert Wampler has been ordered to appear before a disciplinary board and State Rep. Richard Groener (D-Milwaukie) said the action stems from criticism of a quota arrest system.

Groener recently demanded that State Police Supt. H. G. Maizon be fired because of an order which he said required all state policemen to make a certain number of traffic arrests.

Maizon—who will neither confirm nor deny that a quota arrest system is in effect—said that Groener's accusations were not the basis for action against Wampler.

"We don't want independence against France, but rather with her," the handsome, "black-suited" Negro leader explained to a reporter in his distant capital at Conakry.

KF Firemen Answer Calls

No less than six calls in 24 hours were reported Wednesday morning by the city fire department, making for the busiest day in some time. Fortunately, none of the calls involved any major conflagration.

At 9:32 a.m. Tuesday there was a call to wash gas off the street at Esplanade Avenue and Wall Street.

The next run was to Cunningham and Riekey Motors, Willow and South Seventh streets where a fire on a trailer was burning.

The final Tuesday run was to Consumers Heating Company, 320 Klamath Avenue, where a sawdust bin was on fire. Damage was confined to the bin.

School Firm Has New Plan

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Dr. T. J. Raney, head of the Little Rock Private School Corp., promised a new plan today for the city's four high schools, closed nearly five weeks because of integration strife.

Others, however, cast doubt on any private school plan. "We are at the end of the line," said a source close to Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

The private group sought to open the schools Tuesday. They did not do so after receiving court orders nullifying a lease of school properties by the corporation.

The department withheld the funds, he said, pending outcome of a federal court hearing next Monday on a temporary injunction to keep the School Board from leasing the four high schools to the private group.

Dr. Raney officially announced the schools would not open because of the restraining order.

Speculation here was that the private corporation might seek to hold classes in churches and public buildings.

Where financial support could be found without violating court rulings was not immediately apparent.

Gov. Faubus, who fathered the Arkansas private school plan, declared "a way will be found" to open the schools without mixing the races.

Ashland Man Given Citation

An Ashland man was cited for failure to yield the right of way Tuesday afternoon, following a two-car collision at the intersection of Johns Avenue and Summers Lane.

State police said that Lee M. Bolton, 325 North Main Street, Ashland, who was headed north on Summers Lane, drove his station wagon in front of a car going west on Johns Avenue, although he had stopped before entering the intersection.

Driver of the second car was Lawrence J. Lugo, 18, Route 3, Box 378, Klamath Falls. Police said he attempted to stop but could not avoid the collision. There were no injuries, but there was moderate damage to both cars.

Governor Of Washington Tells Plans For A-Plants

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Plans for construction of two nuclear power plants to be built at government installations in Alaska were revealed Tuesday by Washington's Gov. Albert Rosellini.

Here on a goodwill tour, the governor told a Chamber of Commerce luncheon his information came from unofficial but "thoroughly reliable" sources. He said the information was not classified but that location of the plants was secret.

The governor said the plants would be used to displace diesel oil generators now used at the defense installations.

"I understand it costs about 30 cents a gallon to fly oil to the bases, making it economically feasible to build nuclear power plants," Rosellini said.

Yeggs Pilfer Typewriters

Burglars carefully removed a glass windowpane from Peyton and Company, a heating and pipe supply firm, and walked away with more than $1,000 worth of business machines and typewriters.

City police said the theft, reported by Herman Brandt, occurred between 5 o'clock Tuesday night and 8 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Missing, police said, were a Sunstrand bookkeeping machine, a Remington adding machine, Royal and Remington typewriters and green and black lot boxes.

Other thefts reported were: A vacuum cleaner and polisher valued at $64, reported by Vern Eggleston, 2043 Gletton Street; a lady's purse, sunglasses, a pocket watch and from $25 to $40 in cash, reported by Mrs. Roy Gooing, 1436 Lookout Street; and saddles and saddle equipment from a Cherry Creek ranch, owned by Roy Howard, 447 Martin Street.

Mayor Seeks Water Ration

BROOKINGS (AP)—The mayor of Brookings has called on residents of this coastal town to use only the absolute minimum amount of water.

He said that a recent forest fire destroyed the Ransom Creek watershed and filled the reservoir with ashes. Water from the reservoir will not be usable for about a year.

Meanwhile crews have begun installing a two-mile pipeline to John Hall Creek. This is expected to take about two weeks.

Jewelry Firm Named In Suit

A newlywed who paid $781 for a diamond ring to adorn his beloved's finger before they were married has filed suit in circuit court to recover the bulk of his ring payments.

Virgil Ray Rick claims Rogers Jewelry Company misrepresented the true value of the ring, and he asks $491 returned in the form of damages. This, by Rick's deduction, would place a value of $290 on the $781 ring.

Tot Reunited With Parents

LAKEVIEW — A 2-month-old baby was brought to Lakeview Hospital shortly after 8 a.m. today by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Williams of Slick Rock, Colorado. The baby was seriously ill, according to hospital authorities and was placed in an incubator. The attending physician said its condition was improved later in the morning.

The appearance of the baby at the hospital ended a three-state alarm concerning the child. According to officers' reports, Mr. and Mrs. Williams and a friend, James Shelton, left Colorado in a two-car caravan, headed for Lakeview. Somewhere in Utah, apparently, the baby was placed in Shelton's car and while traveling across the state, the two cars became separated.

At Eureka, Utah, officers were notified of the fact that the baby was traveling with Shelton, a bachelor, who was trying to catch up with the other car. The baby was supposed to be fed a special formula and the doctor here said he was very hungry.

The party was reunited at Lakeview last night.

Man Fined $250 For Exposure

Douglas Knight Pence, returned here Monday following a 30-day examination at Salem State Hospital, was fined $250 in district court Tuesday for indecent exposure.
