Aurora Mayor Bids For Chief

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Paul Egan, at odds with his police force, has offered Jack Muller, ace ticket giver in the Chicago Police Department, the job of police chief in Aurora.

Before newsmen and television cameras, Muller, now running as an independent candidate for Cook County (Chicago) sheriff, told Egan Friday he would like to think it over for a couple of days.

Egan's dispute with Chief Donald Curran and his 68-man police force began with a disagreement over the legality of bingo. Curran, though fired, has refused to quit his job.

The city council has backed Curran.

"You can begin by throwing Curran out the window," Egan told Muller.

One factor to be considered in evaluating the city park and recreation departments' financial needs is the very general use made of their facilities by schools and other community organizations, Bob Bonney, director of the departments, said Friday.

Bonney is hopeful that voters will approve on November 4 a charter amendment proposal granting the two departments additional annual revenue of $27,900 between them. With the help of a citizens' committee headed by Loren Binney, Bonney is seeking to publicize facts about his departments which he believes establish the necessity for increasing their budget.

"The essential point," Bonney said, "is that the departments have been organized as at present since 1947, that since that time we have developed the departments, their facilities and their programs, and that meanwhile our revenues are decreasing.

"If the public wants us to maintain these facilities and programs," Bonney said, "it will grant us more revenue. It is possible that some people do not realize the role played by these departments. For example, there are the many facilities which are used by other public and private agencies.

Bonney said that his departments' recreational facilities were constantly being used for school athletic programs. Conger Field is used nightly for football, by Sacred Heart Academy, Conger School, Riverside School and Fremont Junior High School. Recreation Field, on Adams Street near Vine Avenue, is in constant use by Mills School, including nightly football in this season. The Fairview Park playground is also used by Fairview School for physical education and athletics.

"Gem Stadium provides football facilities for Altamont Junior High School and the high school football teams, in addition to serving several of the county's schools for their varsity games," Bonney said.

"Chiloquin, Bonanza and Henley high schools, and Sacred Heart Academy, particularly, make use of this facility.

"In addition, the Moore Park tennis courts are used by KUHS for its tennis program, while Conger Field is used for the boys and girls play days sponsored by the schools. At the same time, the recreation department uses the schools' facilities for its own indoor winter programs.

Non-official community organizations also benefit from the recreational facilities that Bonney directs, he says. He cited the Girl Scouts and the Camp Fire Girls as being among the many groups that use the day camp facilities at Moore Park each summer; the YMCA is another large organization that has used these community facilities for sports clinics and swimming programs.

The park and recreation departments' total tax revenue, between them, in 1952-53 was $33,600. "By any standards, this amount is obviously inadequate for us even to provide proper maintenance and adequate programs at our facilities," Bonney said. "The proper development of them is simply out of the question."

Show On Popular Science Set For Knife-Fork Club

A popular science show, complete with demonstrations designed to explain such ordinary developments in science as electronics, solar energy, radiation, radio, space travel and the like, will be presented to members of the Klamath Knife and Fork Club, Tuesday evening at the Willard Hotel.

Putting on the show will be Glenn L. Morris, creator of popular science shows and a veteran of more than 20 years on a circuit that has taken him to practically every nook and cranny of the country.

Carrying with him a series of gadgets that he uses liberally in his demonstrations, Morris also calls on members of his audience to take part. One of his practical demonstrations is that of showing how a plane follows a beam to its ultimate goal. In this demonstration a blindfolded person with a model plane in his hands follows a light beam from a distant corner of the banquet hall up to the platform.

The Morris show is a result of the refinement and development of experiments that had their beginning in a high school classroom. Morris, a graduate of the University of Oklahoma, was the teacher. His class, as has been the case with too many classes in physics and science, was but mildly interested. To stimulate their thinking, Morris built gadgets, and asked students to participate in experiments he created. The result was so good that Morris conceived a show for adult groups.

"While the ultimate goal is to explain and interest persons in science and scientific achievement, a lot of fun goes with the learning," explains Morris, who goes on to say, "People always remember what they learn longer and better if they learn it pleasantly."

The dinner meeting begins in the main banquet room of the Willard promptly at 6:45. Knife and Fork members who wish to bring guests may do so without restriction, if accommodations permit. However, they must call the secretary at TU 4-6831 for advance clearance.

Talk Slated By NAM Aide

"What is America?" will be the subject discussed at the forum to be presented by the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce, Monday noon in the Camas Room of the Winema Hotel. The speaker will be Orlo M. Brees, whose appearances before chambers of commerce, service clubs, student bodies and other groups throughout the West are sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Brees will present the "American way of life" as a heritage, a responsibility and a destiny. His talks on this and similar themes have brought highly favorable comments from businessmen, educators, officers of the armed services, and others before whom he has appeared.

Leo Morstad, who arranged for the lecture to come here, says that Klamath Falls is really fortunate to be able to hear so gifted a speaker.

Reservations for the luncheon meeting may be had by phoning the chamber of commerce, TU 4-5193.

Film Actress Sheds Mate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Midge Meredith, whose acting career was interrupted by two years in prison, has been granted a divorce from Dr. Charles L. Corley, pathologist at the Sonoma State Hospital.

She charged cruelly in winning the decree Friday.

Miss Meredith was convicted of being an accomplice in the kidnaping of a man who had sponsored her movie career. Gov. Earl Warren commuted her sentence in 1951 after it was established that perjured testimony was used in her trial.

The Corleys, married in 1953, separated in 1956. They have a 3-year-old daughter.
