Foreign Language Pupils Outnumbered By Russians

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY AP Foreign News Analyst

The number of pupils in American schools studying any foreign language is a small fraction of the comparable figure for the Soviet Union.

Recent Soviet statistics say that in the U.S.S.R. during the school year 1956-57 about 12 million students in grades 5 through 10 were enrolled in foreign language classes.

In the United States during the school year 1954-55, the latest year for which any figures are available, they were roughly 1,400,000 pupils in all grades of elementary and secondary schools of the country studying a foreign language.

In Soviet schools, in grades 5 through 10, a foreign language is compulsory. German is the most popular foreign language there, with 7,651,000 pupils enrolled for it in 1956-57. In the United States in elementary and secondary schools in 1954-55 about 40,000 pupils were studying German.

English was the second most popular language in Soviet schools, with 3,306,000 students in 19,300 schools.

For comparison, in the United States in the same school year there were only a dozen secondary schools in the entire United States giving Russian language instruction.

With the increased interest in Russian since Sputnik the number of schools giving Russian language courses has jumped this year to approximately 80, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare report.

Officials of the U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Department report there are indications that this current year in the United States the number of students taking foreign languages has increased considerably over the level of 1954-55.

A current statistical survey is under way to obtain nationwide figures.

Oregon State Policeman Saves Accident Victim

FLORENCE, Ore. (AP)—A red-haired mill worker, who gave up hope after being trapped in a car nearly covered by a rushing river, was in good condition in a hospital here today.

Western Lane Hospital said Reuel Morse Upton, 51, was able to get up and walk around Sunday night after his chill, watery ordeal.

The 6-foot, 165-pound Swiss-home, Ore., man owed his life to a number of things, including a little air pocket and a state policeman who wouldn't believe he was dead.

Upton's car plunged eight feet off the highway into the Siuslaw River near this coastal town in pre-dawn darkness Sunday.

Upton later said that he gave up hope of being rescued when he found that he could open neither the doors nor the windows of the upside down vehicle.

After that, he lost consciousness. For more than two hours he was in the car, before a truck pulled the vehicle from the water.

The car, with only its wheels above water, had been spotted by a train crew.

State policeman Robert Buswell was there when Upton was taken from the car. Buswell said he at first thought Upton was dead.

"I bent over him. And he wasn't exactly breathing, just sort of a gurgling sound."

Buswell applied artificial respiration, revived Upton and then the man was rushed to the hospital here.

The policeman gave this account after talking to Upton: "He said he was going about 45 miles an hour, and possibly went to sleep. He said he remembered running off the road—and then the cold water."

"He tried to open the doors but they were jammed shut. Then he tried to get a window down but couldn't."

Upton said that it was about then that he gave up hope—because he knew he was under water. I imagine that he lost consciousness about then.

"I imagine that his head was up beneath the steering column and the instrument board, where there must have been an air pocket."

"He was unconscious when we got him out, but he still had a grip on the brake pedal. We had quite a time prying his hands loose."

TYPHOID SHOTS GIVEN GLASSBORO, N.J. (UPI)—Typhoid fever inoculations started Saturday for 1,000 residents of the Ellsmere section of Glassboro. The state Health Department program resulted from a typhoid outbreak in which one woman died and two children were stricken.

Convictions Set Record

More convictions for traffic violations than ever before recorded in a single month were reported by Oregon judges during October, the Department of Motor Vehicles reported today.

The department said 14,938 drivers were convicted of violating the state's traffic laws during the month.

Officials said 644 of the abstracts received were forwarded to the financial responsibility section of the department for action. More than 250 of these abstracts were for convictions of driving while intoxicated, a charge which, under the law, results in mandatory license suspension.

More than 120 drivers were convicted of driving on a suspended driver's license. Sixty three of these drivers, in addition to receiving an additional one year suspension, were sentenced to two days in jail.

Other reasons for suspension included 163 on court recommendation and 312 through discretionary action of driver licensing officials.

Of the 312 drivers who lost their licenses through discretionary action of the department, 265 were suspended because of too-frequent involvement in accidents or traffic violations. Other reasons for discretionary suspension included failure to complete tests, medical report and involvement in fatal accidents.

PORTLAND (AP)—A woman and five children were carried from a gas-filled house here Sunday.

Mrs. Winnifred McClure, 30, was recovering well from the effects of the gas.

But she later collapsed when told that a brother, Quentin Cook, 36, Eagle Creek, had been killed in a traffic accident at about the time of her rescue.

Mrs. McClure told firemen she was awakened by the cries of one of her children, felt dizzy and sick and then called for aid.

The children as well as Mrs. McClure all suffered from headaches and nausea.

Firemen said the fumes came from a gas heater which had been put into operation despite being only partially installed.
