Coast Guard Seeks Three.

REEDS PORT, Ore. (AP)—Coast Guard craft cruised the Pacific Ocean near here today in search of a 50-foot fishing boat with three men aboard last heard from Monday.

The missing crewmen were identified as Robert Peterson and Bob Quaslet, both of Winchester Bay, and Robert Wheeler of Reedsport.

The Coast Guard airplanes would join the search if the weather cleared. The area was lashed by strong winds and heavy seas during the last several days. A sea search for the drag boat, the C.T. Holland, was initiated Wednesday. The ship sailed Monday from Winchester Bay near Reedsport.

Neuberger Gives Views

PORTLAND (AP)—Oregon's next secretary of state will have to be a Republican unless the state law governing appointments to elective offices is unconstitutional, U.S. Sen. Richard L. Neuberger said.

Neuberger, who wrote the law as a state senator in 1953, said Wednesday this procedure is a move by Gov. Robert Holmes to appoint a Democrat to the post. Holmes said he asked his legal advisers to see if such a move were possible when Hatfield resigns as secretary of state to become governor Jan. 12, replacing Holmes.

"It seemed logical to me that the will of the voters would best be carried out if their wishes at the ballot box were respected by making the appointment of the same political party as that of the person originally elected," Neuberger, a Democrat, said. "However, if the courts should declare my bill unconstitutional, of course, that would add an additional factor which might change things."

No End Seen In Gas War

PORTLAND (AP)—The Willamette Valley gasoline price competition may last all winter, the business manager of the Oregon Gas Dealers Assn. said Wednesday.

J. S. Baker said the price war would mean disaster for some 65,000 persons dependent on the service station business for a livelihood.

The major oil companies could stop this price slashing within 24 hours by exercising price control, he said.

"Since these major oil companies seem to have accepted the fact that they can operate at a lower price to themselves than their announced wholesale price, we believe that the only honest course open to them would be a realistic reduction in the price and releasing the retail service station industry from their monopolistic control," Baker said. Regular gasoline is selling for 25 to 26 cents a gallon in the Portland area and the Willamette Valley.

Chamber Past Presidents Swap Tales At Meeting

Past presidents of the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce, from the first to the last, got reacquainted and exchanged yarns at a chamber directors meeting Wednesday.

The occasion was what chamber members have come to know as the "Old Established Custom." The custom is to introduce past presidents and hear what each has to say. It proved enlightening in both history and progress.

The meeting was informal, its only item of business being an announcement of newly elected directors. These were Jim Winde, Jim Monteith, Ben Kerns, Fred Ehlers and David R. Vandenberg Jr., Seventeen of 29 past presidents

AUXILIARY MEETS

McCLOUD — The Ladies Auxiliary of the McCloud Firemen's Association met at the fire hall November 17 for its regular meeting. Joan McGiff presiding. Tentative plans were made to redecorate the social room of the fire hall and it was decided to exchange Christmas gifts at the December meeting. Refreshments were served by Norma Prosperi, Ethyl Lung and Irene Kite.

observed the Old Established Custom. Each was introduced by current President Charley Bane, who caught the theme of the occasion with his remark that "as we look back, we're actually looking toward the future."

The farthest look back was provided by Bert Hall, the chamber's first president, who served in 1929-31.

"Two items I was particularly interested in years ago are coming to pass now," he said. "I was very much pleased by that."

His interests, he said, were in tourist promotion and potato sales promotion, both subjects of newly stirred activity.

Merle West (1922-23) remarked about changes in transportation and Andy Collier (1925-27) regarded his two-year term as a "period of awakening." He recalled the State Highway Commission's offer to improve the Greensprings Road by oiling it from Klamath Falls as far west as Keno. He also remarked that during his term, 35 years ago, Klamath Falls first discussed hiring a city manager—a step finally taken two months ago.

Ernie Bobb (1930-31) recalled a power company's application to build a dam on the Klamath River.

during his term, a project completed when Copco opened the Big Ben project, also two months ago. Frank Jenkins (1937-38) remembered when Army Engineers came to Klamath Falls with the idea of diverting the Klamath River through the Lava Beds and eventually to Shasta Dam.

"We fought that, and we fought it hard," he said. "It was a tough battle. But now we have more stored water than anywhere between the Columbia River and Hoover Dam."

He referred to the Klamath as the second power stream of the West, and he said Klamath Falls was "certain" to grow to a size of 50,000 to 100,000 inhabitants.

H. P. Bosworth Jr. (1940-41) remembered when the Willamette Highway was opened as a military road. He observed, also, "The only way to look forward is to look back on things you haven't done. Eventually, if they're worth while, you get there."

Vern Owens (1943-44) said it was in his term that the Marine Hospital was established. Now it is OTI, which he called "our outstanding industry without a smokestack." He said the county "stands now on the edge of tremendous growth, I think."

Johnny Houston (1946-47) remarked that during his term, "Too few people in the community realize how vital is this organization in community affairs."

Fred Hoagland (1949-50) remembered when the West Side Bypass, now under construction, "was a hot issue." Warren Bennet (1955-56) recalled ground breaking for the Johns-Manville plant, and Bob Veatch (1956-57) said it was good to join the past presidents informal session from the other side.

Other past presidents introduced were Maj. C. H. Underwood (1927-28), Percy Murray (1936-37), Ed Geary (1939-40), G. C. Blohm (1941-42), Orth Sisemore (1945-46), Al Hattan (1948-49).

Bane also expressed the chamber's appreciation to Ed Brotherhood, assistant manager, who leaves at the end of the month to become manager of the chamber of commerce in Coos Bay.

Brotherhood said the move came sooner than he had expected, he thanked the chamber for its cooperation, and remarked: "I found out in Hawaii that they have
