Conservation Bills Passed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rare deer will continue to scamper in Florida and scarce Nene Geese will continue to flock in Hawaii as a result of a series of conservation bills passed by the 85th Congress.

Congress appropriated funds for the establishment of a national refuge to protect the rare deer in Florida and the geese in Hawaii.

In addition, Congress passed other measures considered "vital" important for the conservation of land and wildlife in the United States. They provide for:

—Acquisition of wetlands to assure that wildfowl will continue to migrate.

—Research by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service on the effects of chemicals used in controlling pests.
