

Squanto soon proved invaluable to the Pilgrim colonists. Governor Bradford called him "a special instrument sent by God." He taught them how to fish and how to snare game to conserve their gunpowder. On the abandoned Patuxet land, he showed them how to plant corn and fertilize it with fish.

The first Thanksgiving after the harvest of 1621 was a time of great rejoicing, thanks largely to Squanto, Massasoit and 90 braves—and 55 Pilgrims—feasted for three days.

Squanto did not live to see the eventual success of the colony. Two years after he "adopted" the Pilgrims, on a trading expedition along the coast he caught a fever and died. His last words to the Pilgrims: "I have tried to be friends."

Farm Bureaus Hold Meeting

BONANZA — Members of the Klamath and Lake County farm bureaus met Thursday at the Bonanza Library with Clifford Wright, state organization director, and Wiley Clowers, Bend, state organizations chairman, to plan the annual membership drive in January. Those attending were Mrs. Clyde Penimore, Mrs. Pauline Thomas, Walter Cascheer, Randall Pope, William Cheyne, Lloyd Hankins, Clifford Kelly and LaVern Hankins.

The Bonanza and Langell Valley Farm Bureau women are completing their work dressing dolls, making aprons and other work along with other state farm bureau women in the county for the Christmas gift and doll bazaar which will be held Saturday, November 29, in the Pelican building in Klamath Falls. The money raised will be used for a student loan fund for OTL.

A group of local men have been making doll cradles and sleigh centerpieces in Frank Toffel's workshop for the bazaar.

The Bonanza Farm Bureau entertained the Bonanza School teachers at a potluck supper last week in the school cafeteria. Walter Hoag, instructor at OTL, and Mrs. Hoag showed slides of their European trip last summer.

Santa-Loving Copenhagen Ired Over Cleric's Remark

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (UPI)—A Copenhagen clergyman who called Santa Claus a "pagan goblin" has stirred a storm of protest throughout Santa-loving Denmark.

The furor caused by the Rev. Paul Nedergaard's remark has not been equalled here since the day 10 years ago when Canada's Dr. Brock Chisholm broke the news to Denmark that there is no Santa Claus.

Nedergaard's wrath was aroused by the appearance of a picture of St. Nick on Christmas seals which are being sold by a Danish children's welfare organization.

"These seals bear a symbol of a pagan goblin," he said. "You should refuse to buy them. Find some other way to aid the welfare organization."

The outburst of protest that resulted inspired a strongly-critical editorial in the Copenhagen newspaper.

"Maybe Santa Claus is a pagan goblin, but the Christmas tree and mistletoe are not mentioned in the Bible, and yet they have been depicted on the stamps," the editorial said.

"Who says their motif has to be religious? The purpose is to the good cause."

collect money for children's welfare. We don't believe a goblin much attention to Nedergaard's will hurt the sale of Christmas seals—but a clergyman can harm Business was reported brisk.
