

FOR THE SECOND TIME since World War II, the Soviet Union has published almost complete information on its exports, showing that a new record was set in 1957 in terms of raw materials. An indication of Russian industrial growth is seen in the fact that the 1957 exports of refined oil products doubled the 1954 figure. Tin exports exploded from 3,300 tons in 1956 to 18,300 tons in 1957, only 7,000 tons of which went to other Communist countries.

Lady Drivers Get Boost; Survey Says Gals Better

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—California ladies must have pulled with the Department of Motor Vehicles. That's the only conclusion a man can reach after seeing the results of a department survey of 94,935 drivers licensed three or more years.

The agency issued the survey Thursday, giving all the lean meat to the women and the gizzard to the men.

This is what the statisticians claim to have found in their sampling of driver records:

- About 51 per cent of the men had been cited for traffic violations but only 24 per cent of the women.
- Between 90 and 94 per cent of the women had driven without accidents, only 80 per cent of the men.
- The men didn't even come close to the 23-year-old women's violation free level until the age of 62.
- The agency's sampling — five men drivers for every three women drivers — tugged especially hard at the whiskers of the young men. It was found that 37 per cent of 19-year-old youths had been involved in accidents and 78 per cent of 22-year-old men had chalked up traffic convictions.
- On the other hand, women at the age of 23 "hit an even stride that lasts for the rest of their lives." About three-fourths of the ladies drive without accumulating traffic tickets.
- The men didn't even reach the 65 per cent conviction-free level until the age of 62. Then the statisticians found they have "odd peaks of excellence" at ages 76, 84 and 87 and reach a "momentary near-perfection" at 89 and 90.
- "There is a mysterious fall from grace at the dangerous age of 91," the survey notes, "followed by a quick recovery at 92 and 93."
- The department cautioned, however, that samplings in the very advanced ages were "so slim as not to have serious weight statistically."
- Explaining the apparently safer performance of women behind the wheel, the agency could only suggest that "women tend to be licensed later in life than men, and probably average less driving experience."
- The statisticians found that over a three-year period, partially because of the feminine contribution, 85 per cent of all drivers sampled had gone without accidents, and 59 per cent had been without court convictions.
- Significantly, the department feels, drivers with three traffic offenses on their record had four times as many accidents as those with no convictions.

Reminder: Hike Noted In TB Cases

With the approach of the Christmas Seal season, the Klamath County Tuberculosis and Health Association reminds local residents that the tuberculosis rate in this county in 1958 was greater than ever before. In the last six months, eight cases from Klamath County have been admitted to tuberculosis hospitals.

However, the dangers of the disease are not reflected in these figures, which pertain only to cases of hospitalization. Health authorities and the tuberculosis association are concerned not only with these hospitalized patients, but with their families, and others who have been in close contact with them. In some individual cases as many as 40 people have been skin tested or X-rayed to see if the disease has been transmitted to them.

The sale of Christmas Seals not only supports such activities, but also contributes to the research which has made possible the development of new types of surgery and new drugs that are more efficient in fighting the disease. It is developments such as these that have made possible the closing of Eastern Oregon Hospital at The Dalles.

In preparation of the 1958 Christmas season, over 9,000 envelopes offering seals for sale have been stuffed by the 40 at 8 Society. In addition, Girl Scouts will be selling the seals in booths at the First National and U.S. National banks, downtown, and at the Low Cost Market in the Town and Country Shopping Center. These booths will operate on Saturdays, December 6, 13 and 20.

Buy and use Christmas Seals so that the fight against tuberculosis can go on.

NEIL W. NEILSON was given this partly-roasted turkey by a fireman who found it in the ruins of Carl Lake's Fairway Market during yesterday's fire which destroyed the Gengler Building in Chiloquin. The bird, shown being inspected by Bud Parazo, was intended to replace the one Mrs. Neilson had roasted on the eve of the fire, which destroyed their apartment. The Neilsons and their 4-year-old daughter escaped from the blaze without even saving their shoes but they were soon supplied with new ones. Fire Chief and Mrs. George Hobbs were the first to provide shelter to the Neilsons, who then spent the night at the V. M. Taylor home. By Friday morning they had found a furnished house to rent. Shown at left with Neilson is Royal Matt, one of the many spectators at the fire.

Nice Day For Eisenhowers In Spite Of A Dull Knife

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI)—Grandpa grumped about the carving knife. So it went Thursday at Thanksgiving dinner in thousands of American homes—and particularly at the transplanted White House here where the grandpa was President Eisenhower.

In not many American homes, however, was the turkey carved under the glare of movie floodlights, or the mashed potatoes ladled out before the lenses of the news cameras. The President and his family bore up cheerfully, however, under the few minutes of public attention and gaily went about the tradition of Thanksgiving.

Dinner was served at 6 p. m. on the glass-windowed sunporch of "Mamie's cabin," the luxurious Eisenhower cottage beside a fairway at the Augusta National Golf Club.

Around the oblong table with its centerpiece of yellow and bronze fall flowers and cattails were the President's four grandchildren, David, 10; Barbara Anne, 9; Susan, 6; and Mary Jean, 2, who managed a ladylike appearance at the table without the indignity of a high-chair. She sat in a regular chair atop a cloth-covered box.

When the President started to carve the turkey he had difficulty in hacking away one leg from the main turkey carcass, clutching the other drumstick for maximum leverage. His son, Maj. John S. Eisenhower, came to his rescue while Mrs. Eisenhower and John's wife looked on patiently.

Hospital Says Shot Youth Appears To Be Recovering

Paul R. Hawk, a youth shot by a city police officer after a brisk chase Thanksgiving morning, was reported "doing fine" in Klamath Valley Hospital Friday.

Hawk, 21, was admitted to emergency surgery at 10:30 Thanksgiving morning for treatment of an abdominal wound torn into his body by the officer's .38 caliber bullet.

The victim was reported in serious condition Thanksgiving night, but had rallied and was recovering Friday morning. He is under a 24-hour hospital guard being maintained in 12-hour shifts by sheriff's deputies.

Hawk was formally accused on Thanksgiving Day of taking and using a vehicle without the owner's consent and bail was set at $1,500.

Christ Church Holds Ceremony

Gratitude for God's infinite goodness and power, was the theme of the special service held at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, on Thanksgiving Day.

A period was devoted to voluntary statements of gratitude. "Thanksgiving," was the subject of the lesson—sermon read from the desk, especially prepared for the day with selections from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

"Prelude" and "Adagio," from Sonata in C Minor by Alexandre Guilmant, was the organ prelude. The congregation sang, "We Thank Thee and We Bless Thee, O Father of Us All."

Vincent Bousquet, first reader, read the Thanksgiving Proclamation by the President of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Art Exhibit Set Tonight

The Klamath Art Association will open the annual Christmas Art Fair at the Art Center tonight at 7 o'clock. The Christmas fair will also be open on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. for three weekends starting tonight.

The December issue of Sunset Magazine lists this art fair as one of the places in the Northwest to buy "Articles handcrafted by Northwest artists." Included with the magazine article is a photograph of Three Wise Men figures designed by Barbara Kensler. These figures may be seen at the art fair. The photograph was taken by Catherine Brumbaugh, also a Klamath Art Association member.

Visitors will find Christmas wrapping, candies, tree decorations, wall hangings, silk-screened fabrics, placemats, scarves, Christmas cards, hand weaving, and samples of Christmas decorations made from local greens and cones. These are made to order on a specified date. Everything at the fair has been made by local artists and craftsmen. The public is invited to come this weekend to the fair at the Art Center in the Mountain View housing project.

Police Arrest Roving Youth

A Sacramento boy was stopped in Klamath Falls at 4:27 Friday morning in a station wagon — officially reported as stolen — that contained a sizable arsenal for any 15-year-old.

Within officers said, they found a .22 rifle, a .38 caliber revolver and a .32 caliber revolver, as well as a guitar and a clock radio.

The Yreka station of the California Highway Patrol notified city police last night that the boy and the station wagon could be expected in Klamath Falls. They said the youth had burned three gallons of gasoline at Macdoel about 2:30 Friday morning and was headed north.

City police spotted the boy at Esplanade and Alameda, and stopped him on Alameda in front of Hillside Hospital.

The 1957 station wagon had been reported stolen by California authorities, but investigation showed it was registered to the boy's father.

The boy was held in city jail pending action by juvenile authorities here and in California.

Couple Loses Daughter, 3

MILFORD, Conn. (AP)—Eight years ago the Ernest DuMonts lost four children in a fire at their Claremont, N.H., home.

Thursday, a similar fire killed their 3-year-old daughter, Tamara. In the home where they had moved to build a new life—and a new family.

The fires were strikingly similar. Each started in a space heater.

DuMont, 31, and his wife were childless when they moved here six years ago. They had lost Theodore, 5; Henry, 4; Richard, 2; and 2-month-old Patricia.

But four other babies came along.

Thursday, the children were speeding down South Sixth Street.

Hawk worked himself into a dead end street, leaped from the car and ran among open buildings with Kennard in pursuit. After warning Hawk several times, Kennard said, he fired the single shot that dropped Hawk to the frost-covered ground.

The victim was sent to the hospital immediately.

The sheriff's office said Hawk had completed a term last June 3 in the county jail for auto theft.

U.S. First Defense Line To Enter Missile Business

By HENRY RIEGER
United Press International

VANDEMBERG AIR FORCE Base, Calif. (UPI)—The Strategic Air Command, the country's first defense against aggression, will go into the missile business early next month when it fires its first ballistic missile here at the country's newest and largest missile range.

A Thor intermediate-range ballistic missile (IRBM) capable of flashing 1,500 miles through the skies has been chosen as the weapon to signal a start of a new phase of the nation's missile and space program.

Launching of the IRBM at the Pacific missile range will be by the 704th Strategic Missile Wing of the Strategic Air Command's First Missile Division. It will be the first time a Thor has been fired by the SAC crew as part of its operational training program.

Murray Snyder, assistant secretary of defense for information, Maj. Gen. David Wade, commander of Vandenberg, and Rear Adm. J. P. Monroe, commander of the Pacific missile range Tuesday made the joint announcement of the proposed firing for early December.

Operational activation of this 90,000-acre missile range located 168 miles northwest of Los Angeles will bring to three the number of United States ballistic missile ranges.

The two other bases are at Cape Canaveral, Fla., where the Thor and other ballistic missiles previously have been fired, and the national missile range at White Sands, N.M. (The Defense Department announced, however, that no ballistic missiles have been fired at the White Sands range.)

Establishment of the Pacific missile range at this base formerly known as Camp Cooke was announced less than a year ago.

Its mission will be threefold, including the routine training of missile crews, the firing of operational ballistic missiles and experimentation with newly developed ballistic missiles.

In addition, lunar probes, satellites and Atlas and Titan intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM) will be launched here. It was speculated a satellite would be fired here by the Air Force sometime in December following the Thor firing.

Man At Loss To Tell Plight

NEW YORK (AP)—Today was Thanksgiving Day for Stanley Heiducki.

He spent the regular one at the bottom of an elevator shaft.

In fact, he said, he had spent two days there and, worse still, hadn't eaten for eight days.

The 38-year-old man could not give a coherent explanation of how he got into the elevator shaft in downtown Manhattan.

Two employes arriving for work at a restaurant next door late Thursday night kept hearing a knocking on the wall but thought it was repairmen at work.

Finally at 4 a.m. today one of them, as a joke, yelled "What do you want?"

"Get me out," came the reply. Heiducki gave no information about himself, but Beckman, Downtown Hospital, where he was taken for treatment of malnutrition and exposure, said he had been treated there Tuesday for a dislocated shoulder.
