Two Airline Stewardesses Play Jet-Age Cinderellas

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Two airline stewardesses know what it's like to play Cinderella — jet-age style. Janet Mick and Sidney Sperbeck went around the world in a new airplane which they probably won't fly again.

The girls spent two months helping demonstrate the plane, Lockheed's Electra turbo-jet, to officials of about 15 countries and to firms interested in buying the aircraft. It will be introduced in American Airlines' service Jan. 23.

"We couldn't imagine why we were called to New York. We were told only that it was a special assignment. We both had done modeling, so we figured it had something to do with that," said Miss Mick, a pretty brunette from Westmont, N.J.

She and Miss Sperbeck, a vivacious blonde from Los Angeles, spent a week in training. They learned to explain the plane's new features and to handle equipment.

New are a push-button kitchen and buffet serving cart from which passengers can help themselves.

Flight time is much shorter than on present piston-powered aircraft, so stewardesses must work faster. The re-designed kitchens make the task easier, cut time-consuming steps, eliminate stooping and usual cooking methods. Even coffee is brewed push-button fashion in three minutes.

After training, the girls packed their bags — about four each, which increased to eight pieces on the journey — and set off from Burbank, Calif., for Montreal. From there they flew to Nova Scotia and Iceland — "where women were dressed elegantly in New York and Paris gowns."

On to Amsterdam for the weekend, then to Brussels, Copenhagen, Stockholm, Oslo and Istanbul. In Turkey, they shopped in bazaars and headed off a near riot when cab drivers and passers-by shoved aside VIP's for a look at the plane.

Next stop, New Delhi, where the hostesses welcomed aboard such celebrities as Prime Minister Nehru, Indira Gandhi and her two children, and the U. S. ambassador to India.

The girls also managed to squeeze in a moonlight flight to see the Taj Mahal.

Then they flew to the Middle East, visiting Cairo and Beirut. Then to Athens, Rome, Paris, London, Germany, Scotland and Ireland.

The crew logged 27,000 miles from point to point and 25,000 miles on demonstration flights — 82 in all. Some 3,000 persons made the flights, which were scheduled about three times a day.

"We know so much about the Electra, but we're based in Los Angeles, and the airline won't be flying it from there. It's really rather sad," said the girls.

The Army said "we hope nobody complains that Elvis was promoted before other soldiers in his unit, but he really tried hard to be a good soldier and he deserves it."

DECORATION CONTEST MOUNT SHASTA

MOUNT SHASTA—Mrs. Clarice Vacent, president of the Mount Shasta Business and Professional Women's Club, has announced that a committee will judge home Christmas decorations. The BPWC is sponsoring a sale of decorative pine cones. These will be on display on a table in Hoffman's Department Store. The result of the decorative contest will be made public after the judging. Other civic groups are considering the matter of street trimming that was formerly done by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, a group that was forced to disband because of the age limitations of members.

ment for a considerable period of time.

Slater said, "to assist the park and recreation department in doing some of the vital maintenance that has been neglected because of extremely low finances."

A committee consisting of two members each of the school board, park and recreation committee and the city council was selected to meet with attorneys from the city and school and attempt to work out a joint use agreement.

Mayor Lawrence Slater, absent from the city the day of the meeting, later raised another avenue of approach to the situation.

Slater suggested that in view of the hard-pressed budget of the park and recreation departments that the city have the property appraised, and sell it to the school for its appraisal figure.
