Oregon Tech Reprimanded By OCC Athletic Leaders

PORTLAND (Special) — Oregon Technical Institute was the center of conversation here Saturday in one of the longest and drawn-out Oregon Collegiate Conference athletic directors and coaches meetings in the history of the five-school conference.

The conference meeting opened at 9 a.m. Saturday, and was finally closed at 4:43 p.m., seven hours and 43 minutes later.

Oregon Tech's football ineligibility case was the main topic on the day-long agenda, and the Mile High Campus will pay heavily for their mistake if the conference presidents adopt the recommendations made by the athletic directors and coaches.

After OTI rolled over the other four conference teams in the recent football season, including a 66-7 win over Oregon College of Education, Tech school officials forfeited all of the OCC games played by the Owls and declared the school's first championship vacant because they found that four Oregon Tech ball players were ineligible due to misinterpretation of conference rules. After the announcement by OTI director Winston D. Purvine, the Mile High Campus waited until yesterday's meeting to see what possible action might be taken.

Judging from the conference meeting, the athletic directors and coaches were not satisfied with the Owls giving up the conference title and forfeiting the games. The Oregon Tech delegation, headed by Jack Brookins, dean of instruction and acting as athletic representative, and athletic director Rex Hunsaker, were busy answering questions and explaining the position the school found itself after the recent investigation.

Four recommendations were made by the athletic directors and coaches during Saturday's meeting as a result of the Oregon Tech forfeiture. These proposals will be passed on to the Oregon Collegiate Conference presidents' meeting scheduled here December 15. Official action will be taken on the matter at this time.

During yesterday's meeting four of the five schools did all of the voting, with Oregon Tech standing by awaiting the decision. Portland State, Southern Oregon, Eastern Oregon and Oregon College of Education are the other OCC members.

The four recommendations were:

1. OCE be declared the Oregon Collegiate Conference football champion for 1958. (This motion was made and seconded by Al Akin and Ted Schopf, football coach and athletic director at Southern Oregon College.)

2. The coaches accepted the expression by Oregon Tech that the spirit and letter of the OCC constitution will be adhered to in the future. (This motion was made and seconded by Joe Holland, athletic director at Portland State, and Schopf.)

3. The ineligible Oregon Tech ball players all will lose one year's eligibility at OTI. (This motion was moved and proposed by Bill McArthur, football coach of Oregon College of Education.)

4. All Oregon Tech ineligible players were eliminated from all-star consideration. (This motion was also moved by McArthur.)

In all, the only recommendation that shocked the Oregon Tech delegation in attendance was number 3. This suggestion by the coaches — originating from McArthur—means that the four boys involved in the eligibility case will lose next year's Oregon Collegiate Conference football eligibility. All four of the boys are juniors this year, which means their football days are over if the president's council accepts this recommendation.

This proposal seems a little severe in the light of Oregon Tech's explanation of the problem. Purvine, in making the official announcement Wednesday, November 19, said "It is a school mistake and the boys are not at fault."

The morning portion of the meeting was open to the members of the press, but at 12:15, the group met in "executive session" — behind closed doors. Although no one in attendance would comment, it is understood that Hunsaker and the Oregon Tech coaching staff came in for some bitter criticism on the part of the other conference athletic directors and coaches.

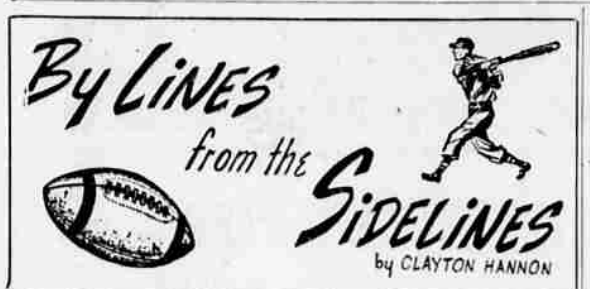
Archie Dunsmoor, elected to the post of president of the athletic directors and coaches association, failed to comment on the closed door meeting at 3:38 when the executive session broke up. The Eastern Oregon College football mentor did say however, "These four recommendations were made because of OTI's non-conformance of conference regulations."

Brookins, when reached after the meeting, said, "The action of the conference coaches was fair. We were given a good hearing and all the details were discussed."

Hunsaker, not quite as satisfied with the outcome as Brookins, thought the action taken against the boys was completely out of line. "This was a school mistake," Hunsaker remarked, "so why should these guys (athletic directors and coaches) penalize them (the boys) for something they had nothing to do with. These kids are innocent, and under no circumstances should they be hurt and lose a year's eligibility. They have already paid a high price for the error," the Tech athletic director and football coach commented.

Hunsaker added, "I only hope the conference presidents will realize this fact and free the boys of any punishment."

The last hour of the conference meeting was used to pick an all-conference team. The coaches selections will be announced next Sunday.



The Pacific Coast Conference may be dead, but there was still enough kick in the long-standing circuit to make a mockery out of its last few months of life. The schools of greater learning in Los Angeles, University of Southern California and UCLA took it upon themselves this past week to see that the Coast Conference didn't die without a parting salvo.

Most everyone acquainted with the PCC knew that our friends in the deep southlands were somewhat on the disagreeable side. But never did these trusting souls think that the Trojans and Uclans would pull the low blow that put an end to any chance Washington State College had of playing in a post-season bowl game.

USC and UCLA — of all people — used a conference technicality to stop the Cougars from accepting a bowl offer, if and when any such offer was made. Trojan and Bruin officials expressed "sorrow" in bringing up the forgotten item and therefore buried a request by WSC to accept a bowl bid if the chance arose. And the so-called sorrow came right from the heart — you bet.

The most amusing part of this ridiculous story is that USC and UCLA are using the same rules that they repelled a short time ago when called upon the carpet for illegal recruiting and unethical practices. It's these same rules that USC and UCLA blame for the breakup of the Pacific Coast Conference. It's these same rules that USC and UCLA said are not proper to govern an athletic conference.

Why then, do the Trojans and Uclans take such pride in standing by these "no-good" PCC rules and hold Washington State back from a possible New Year's Day post-season football game? Your guess is as good as ours.

We doubt if California and Washington, the other two members of the "Big Four" are very proud of their counterpart. It's something to be proud of. Even California and Washington gave their stamp of approval to such a plan. Could it be that the "Big Four" is coming around to the point where even in a league with only four members — which hasn't been officially formed—the count is two against two? And the two against are USC and UCLA, as usual.

There are some wondering why Washington State even asked permission for such a venture. Why do they need to? There is no more Pacific Coast Conference. There are no more conference rules to follow. Who would slap them down? As long as WSC is a member in good standing with the NCAA nothing could be done.

So, why did WSC ask? The people in Cougarville thought it was the proper thing to do.

JACK HIMELWRIGHT
... Big Eight first team

The final statistics of the past Pacific Coast Conference football season are interesting.

California, the team to represent the PCC in the Rose Bowl this coming New Year's Day, won the conference title with a good offense and no defense. This sort of throws our theory of defense-above-offense to the birds.

Oregon on the other hand, led the loop in total defensive figures, and finished halfway down the final standings in fifth place. Washington State, the team that just missed the invitation to roses, settled second in total offense and second in total defense for a happy medium.

California gained an average of 314.9 yards per game. But the California defense gave up an average of 320.1 per contest. Cal's defensive efforts were second lowest only to Stanford. Oregon's defense limited forces to an average of 204.1 per game.

The Rose Bowl game should be a dandy for scorekeepers if Cal and Iowa play their usual game. Iowa is the nation's leading offensive team, having averaged 405.9 yards per game. And Cal's 314.9 isn't to be snubbed.

Is there a trend in the National Football League to play a little defense this year?

In the past few seasons, NFL fans have been treated to some of the highest scoring football ever known to man. Games ending in 45-40, 40-46, 45-42 and other such margins were not uncommon. But this year, there seems to be a vote here and there in favor of defense.

Going into today's five league games, there have been four shutouts in the NFL. Blanking a pro football team in the scoring column is not the easiest task to perform. Especially with the long field goal kickers and the explosive wide-open offenses that are now employed by the 12 league members.

Following are just a few scores that indicate the NFL also plays a little defense:

New York 30, Washington 0; Pittsburgh 24, Philadelphia 3; Baltimore 56, Green Bay 0; Baltimore 34, Los Angeles 7; New York 37, Chicago Cards 7; Los Angeles 33, San Francisco 3; Los Angeles 56, San Francisco 7; Baltimore 17, Chicago Bears 0; Los Angeles 13, Detroit 0.

A Klamath Falls football product has stepped into the national major college limelight, the second in the last few years.

Jack Himelwright, a 1954 graduate of Klamath Union High School and now a senior at the University of Colorado, was named to The Associated Press' Big Eight All-Conference team this past week. Jack is a senior and has won his third football award for the Buffs.

The ex - Pelican lineman was named as a first team all-conference tackle along with Oklahoma tackle Gilmer Lewis. Jack, who stands 6-3 and weighs 217, was picked over several very fine Big Eight tackles, making his selection a real plum.

Two other highly publicized Colorado linemen, Bob Salerno and John Wooten, both being boomed for all - American honors landed honorable mention positions.

Himelwright has reportedly turned down an offer to play in the Senior Bowl game later this year. He has planned to wrestle this winter and if he accepted the Senior Bowl bid he would receive a monetary reward and thereby become ineligible to wrestle. It is possible that he will receive another bowl bid of some fashion.

Jack was also tabbed by United Press International on its 1958 all-American team in the honorable mention list. That in itself is quite a feat.

The last local boy to make good on the national football level was Oregon State's all-American tackle John Witte, like Himelwright a former KUHS athlete. Both Witte and Himelwright were state high school wrestling champions.

City League Cagers Practice

All local basketball players planning to play in this year's City League are invited to take part in the "open" practice periods scheduled for Conger School gym Tuesday and Thursday of this week, according to Bob Bonney, city recreation director.

Bonney said anyone interested in playing in the league should turn out to these practices and get in shape for the coming season, which opens within the next two weeks. The final practice date is Tuesday, December 9, at which time there will be a business meeting, and the final league roster will be made.

Practice time runs from 7 to 9:30.

Army Cadets Whip Navy In Annual Service Classic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bob Anderson battered Navy's line for two touchdowns Saturday as unbeaten Army bounced back from an early case of jitters for a 22-6 victory.

Chewing out yardage at a steady pace, Army's junior halfback from Cocoa, Fla., punctured Navy's first half dream of a major upset.

Coach Earl (Red) Blaik used his lonesome end more as a decoy than an offensive weapon in this fiercely fought contest before a throng of 102,000 half-frozen fans.

Trailing 6-0 after Pete Dawkins' fumble of the opening kickoff gave Navy a quick opening for a 35-yard touchdown march, the Cadets closed ranks. They shut off a Navy drive by taking the ball on downs on the Army 14 early in the second period and dominated play the rest of this clear, cold afternoon.

Anderson, a near unanimous press box choice as the best back on the field, slammed over from the 1 with only 33 seconds to go before the half ended. It was the climax of a 68-yard march in which Joe Caldwell passed for 40 yards and Anderson bulled his way for most of the rest of the ground.

As Ray Wellborn's placement was wide after Joe Bellino scored the Navy touchdown early in the first period, a successful conversion by Harry Walters put Army out front to stay.

Anderson again crashed through tackle to score from the 2 on the first play of the final period. It was the climax of a 59-yard drive by the Cadets. Walters again added the placement point.

In the final two minutes of play, Don Usry picked off a desperation pass by Navy's Joe Tranchini and scooted 38 yards for the final touchdown. Dawkins threw a southpaw pass to Anderson for the two-point conversion.

It was the first unbeaten season for Army since 1949 and the ninth in West Point gridiron history. Only a 14-14 tie with Pitt marred its otherwise perfect record.

Anderson carried the heavy workload for the Cadets, lugging the ball 29 times for 89 yards. A year ago, in his sophomore season, an injured Anderson was shackled with only 18 yards.

There was drama in this contest from the opening kickoff when Dawkins fumbled the boot and Dick Dagampat and George Fritzinger recovered on the Army 35. Needing yardage on a vital fourth and 8 situation, Tranchini picked up a first down on a keeper play that kept the drive moving. Bellino slashed over from the 3 to climax this drive. The Cadets seemed stunned by the sudden turn of events.

PSC, EOC Given Nod In OCC Cage Season

By CLAYTON HANNON
Herald and News Sports Writer

A new champion is expected to be crowned in the Oregon Collegiate Conference basketball race now facing the five conference members this season. But the Oregon Tech Owls will go down swinging if they are to be displaced from the throne room they have occupied the past two years.

Coach Wally Palmberg's Owls are in the middle of a drastic rebuilding program, and are feeling the effects of heavy losses by last spring's graduation. Meanwhile, Portland State and Eastern Oregon are on the upswing in basketball power.

Southern Oregon and Oregon College of Education, the other two conference members, are just sitting back and waiting to see what happens when the firing starts in January. While Portland State and Eastern Oregon seem to draw the most pre-season support for title chances, the other three schools will be watched closely during pre-season competition which starts this coming week.

Palmberg's defending champions could establish a precedent by winning the third consecutive championship for the Mile High Campus. But standing in the path of a three-in-a-row effort on the part of the Techmen are the Wolves and Vikings.

Coach Sharkey Nelson's PSC squad has Johnny Winters, the great little all-around all-conference star and last year's conference scoring leader to guide the Viking cause. With Winters will be John Fredrick and Stan Weber, the latter a 6-6 center, back from last year's squad. Also showing lots of promise and slated to be one of the finest basketball players in the conference's history is Bernie Jones, a Detroit cager who comes to the Northwest via Citrus JC in California.

Bob Quinn, the dean of Oregon Collegiate Conference coaches, being at Eastern Oregon 30 years, has the makings of the best "front line" in the league. Back for another year of basketball under Quinn will be Jerry Baxter, Jim Parsons, Tom Neel and Ron Paulson, who stretches to 6-7. Baxter and Parsons are both 6-4. The only loss by EOC's graduation was floor-leader Dick Quinn, Bob's son, who was a standout athlete for the Mountaineers.

Oregon Tech will be forced to rely on newcomers this winter if the Owls are to make a successful defense of their OCC title. Big Paul Layher, the 6-7 transfer from American River JC, is expected to spearhead the Tech assault, aided by the fired-up back court playing ability of Dennis "The Menace" McKee, the former North Salem High all-state flash.

Palmberg's Owls will also receive some added strength from Ardell Hamilton, the football end who is playing his first college basketball. Hamilton has looked impressive in early - season drills and is bidding high for a starting spot. Others battling for starting spots in addition to Layher, McKee and Hamilton include Leon and Charlie Wilson, Dell Francis and Don Dick.

The Owls will have the services of Norm Oliva, the ex-Malin all-state star and two - year letterman at Southern Oregon College, later in the season. Oliva, who gained all-conference honors as a freshman, transferred to OTI this year and is waiting out the 18 - week conference transfer rule. He'll be eligible to play late in January.

Southern Oregon is hurting from the loss of Oliva, high - scoring Bill Hollingsworth and guard Chuck Crandall. But Ted Schopf is expected to come up with another representative ball club. Heading up the Red Raider forces this year will be ex - Klamath Falls prep ace Dave D'Olivo and spunky Jim McAbee, who is expected to take over the floor leader roll.

Bob Livingston's OCE cagers will again be dominated by untested freshmen. The Wolves will be counting heavily on four returning lettermen including Denny Spencer, Bill Goodman, Don Sherk and Rex Brown. Pre - season speculation finds the possibility of Livingston calling on his freshman ranks for most of the effort.

Oregon Tech opens its season in non - counting play this coming weekend against Humboldt State College in a pair of games at the Mile High Campus gym December 5 and 6. Portland State's first venture into competition will be against Pacific University at Forest Grove December 2, Tuesday night. Oregon College draws George Fox College as its first foe December 5 on the Wolves home floor in Monmouth. Eastern Oregon meets Whitman December 2 at Walla Walla. Southern Oregon is at home December 5 and 6 to Chico State to complete the first round of pre-season play for the Oregon Collegiate Conference members.

Conference play is billed to start after the first of the year.

Oklahoma Nips State

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Third-ranked Oklahoma, outplayed for more than three quarters by upstart Oklahoma State, broke quarterback Bobby Boyd loose for a 31-yard touchdown run with five minutes left for a 7-0 victory here Saturday.

Oklahoma, the nation's leading rushing team, was a three-touchdown favorite. However, the Sooners were stopped by the slashing line play of two OSU lines that were well tutored on Oklahoma's vaunted offense.

The largest crowd in Oklahoma State's history, 40,000, watched the 53rd renewal of the contest between the cross-state rivals. State hasn't beat Oklahoma since 1945 and it looked like this might be the year until the closing minutes when the Sooners were able to start moving.

The Sooners, who are Orange Bowl-bound, made their best drive in the middle of the fourth period, as they drove on the ground from their 28 to the OSU 2. However, State held on downs and punted out to its 34.

On the third play, Boyd, a junior on the alternate team, went to the line of scrimmage, hesitated, then rolled through and romped 31 yards for the only score.

Wahoo McDaniel kicked the extra point.

Fumbles and a field that was soggy in the middle from a snowstorm Friday hurt both teams.

Knight Nixes Help Request

(Earlier Story on Page 4B)

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Goodwin J. Knight declined Saturday to intervene in the efforts of Washington State College to get permission to play in a post-season football bowl game.

Knight telegraphed Gov. Albert D. Rosellini of Washington:

"My position as governor of California gives me no power to intercede in Pacific Coast Conference determinations. However, I am forwarding your telegram to USC and UCLA."

The Cougars, mentioned as Sugar Bowl and 'Gator Bowl contenders, petitioned the PCC for permission to play in a post-season game, but the Southern California and UCLA schools voted no.

Rosellini telegraphed Knight Friday asking him to use his "good offices" and do all he could to get UCLA and USC to change their minds.

Rosellini said the entire state of Washington would benefit by the game.

WSC officials said the rest of the conference schools approved waiving the rules to permit a Cougar bowl appearance. The conference breaks up July 1, 1959.

Washington State finished the season with a 7-3 record and narrowly lost out to California in the race for the Rose Bowl.

Huskies Rap Eagles 60-7 In Playoff Final

By WAYNE SCOTT
Herald and News Sports Writer

SUTHERLIN—The Merrill Huskies roared their way to the first Oregon state class B football championship in the history of the school as they handed the Yoncalla Eagles a 60-7 blasting on Sutherlin High School field here Saturday afternoon.

The victory was the triumph culmination of a three-year effort by coach Al Keck. The Merrill eleven reached the quarterfinals in 1956; the semifinals in 1957; and went all the way in 1958.

Paced by halfbacks Bud Maupin and John Haskins, between them collecting seven touchdowns, and a tremendous team defensive effort sparked by guard David Andrieu and linebacker Don Russell, the Huskies swarmed over Yoncalla to score more points in three quarters than had previously been scored on the Eagles in their previous 10 games. Maupin put together sparkling runs of 71, 69, 53, and 47 yards for four TDs while Haskins bombed his way for five, 57 and a 27 yard pass-run play to count three touchdowns.

At the finish of their landslide win, the jubilant Husky team was engulfed by swarms of Merrill students, parents and fans who charged onto the field to boost their heroes high in the air.

Following his laughing dip in the showers, winning coach Keck roared his approval of the way his club had handled their inspiring march to the state championship. "Everyone of them played a wonderful game. You can't single out anyone who tried harder than the others. Bud (Maupin) and John (Haskins) were great, but Danny (Salvadori) was wonderful with his passing and the way he ran the squad while Troy (Patterson) played the best game of his career. Don't forget to mention the way the line got into that Yoncalla backfield and don't overlook the way they all played defense. Dave Andrieu and Don Russell made so many tackles and spent so much time in the Eagle backfield that Yoncalla must have thought they were on their own team. We are all real happy," Keck concluded.

It wouldn't have been necessary for Keck to make the last observation; the dressing room was in an uproar as the team congratulated each other and friends.

Coach Ron Anderson, mentor of the state runnerup Eagles, was also hoisted to the shoulders of his squad and accepted, with his team, the congratulations of the fans, friend and foe alike over a hard-fought game, well played.

Said Anderson, "We aren't alibying, the boys did their best. We were just plain beaten. We really missed two of our best players when Ron Curtright and Orlan Wiley were knocked out, but still, it would not have made much difference. Merrill is a great team. After all, I don't think we have to be ashamed of running second to a club like that."

Wiley, the Eagles top scorer in regular season, was taken from the game late in the second quarter badly bruised. Curtright came to the game with a bad limp and saw no action.

The only severe injury incurred in the game was suffered by Merrill tackle Ray Andrieu who was taken from the game with a broken bone in his right foot.

Merrill jumped off to a 6-0 lead early in the first period when John Haskins marched into the end zone from the five after the Huskies had recovered an Eagle fumble on the 31. A scant four minutes later, the Huskies collected six more points as Maupin took off on a 69-yard ramble following a Yoncalla punt by end Jim Booth. Both conversion attempts by Maupin were missed. Five plays later, again following an Eagle punt, Haskins sprung loose and roared down the left sidelines for 57 yards and another TD. Again Maupin missed the PAT and Merrill held an 18-0 bulge.

Toward the end of the quarter, Yoncalla accounted for a pair of first downs, but the try went for nothing as they were forced to punt early in the second period. On the first Merrill play of the quar-

Notre Dame Tops Trojans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Notre Dame, harassed and beaten almost single-handed by a midget-like halfback in the first half, stormed back in the third quarter to defeat Southern California 20-13 Saturday.

The fighting Irish were trailing 13-12 at the half, thanks to the phenomenal play of Trojan halfback Don Buford, who stands 5 feet 5 and weighs a scant 155. But then the Irish marched 63 yards in a bruising counter attack for the winning touchdown in the first four minutes of the third period.

Quarterback Bob Williams, a senior who has played second fiddle to George Izo most of this season, came off the bench to lead Notre Dame to its second touchdown in the second quarter and the winning drive in the next.

His 21-yard pass to right end Bob Wetoska made the deciding touchdown, and his perfect pass to halfback Jim Crotty for the extra two points sewed up the game.

The victory gave Notre Dame a 6-4 record. The Trojans wound up with a 4-5-1 record.

Buford, a senior from Los Angeles, amazed the Irish and the 66,903 fans with his performance.

He intercepted two of Izo's passes. He returned one 31 yards and stopped a Notre Dame scoring threat, and returned another for 34 yards to set up a Trojan touchdown.

But his most spectacular play put the Trojans in front in the first quarter.

He took a handoff, ran to his right, slipped and almost fell, and with Irish end Monty Stickles towering over him, threw a pass that traveled some 52 yards in the air and dropped into the arms of Hillard Hill for a touchdown. The play measured 41 yards from the line of scrimmage.
