Father, Son Gas Victims

MILTON — FREEWATER, Ore. (AP)—A father and his teenage son died mysteriously Thursday of what police said was cyanide gas poisoning in their home which bore a warning sign on the door. The victims were identified as Alvin C. Gentry, about 50, and his son, 17, whose name was not learned immediately. Two daughters were reported hospitalized. Police went to the house in response to a telephone call, apparently from Gentry, and were met by the son.

When a patrolman and the youth checked the basement they found it full of gas with the elder Gentry lying dead. Police Chief Bert Lindsey said. The son slumped down unconscious and was dead on arrival at a Walla Walla hospital. The patrolman reportedly pulled back just in time when he got a whiff of the fumes.

IC Contest Underway

The annual Christmas Lighting Contest sponsored by the Klamath Junior Chamber of Commerce and the California Oregon Power Company is now getting under way, with publication of the official entry blank in the Herald and News. "Let's get the lights up early so the kids'll all get a look," is the slogan of John DeShazo, chairman of this year's contest committee, whose co-workers are Jim Smith and Roy Weaver. The group has announced first and second prizes in each of four categories of entries: Lawn lighting, porch lighting, roof lighting and window lighting. Individual entries may compete in more than one category and possibly win more than one award. The first prize in each category is a plaque and a $25 bond, with a second prize of $15 in cash. These awards will be topped by the grand prize of a $100 bond and custody of the perpetual trophy. Felix Peace is the man to watch here, he won the trophy in 1955 and 1957 and if he scores again he gets to keep it. The grand prize also carries with it automatic entry into the nationwide Christmas lighting contest sponsored by General Electric. Entry blanks must be mailed before midnight, December 20, and judging will take place between 6:30 and 11 p.m. on December 21 and 22.

Service Agencies

Fund efforts are very successful, the YMCA building will have to be closed down during the evenings. We hate to see that happen, as there is a real need in the community for our facilities. The 'Y' is important not only to high school youth but also to a lot of young people at OTI and at Kingsley Field, where there will be more all the time. Mrs. Earl Sheridan, chairman of the United Fund budget committee, pointed out that YMCA services have shown a phenomenal growth throughout the county in the past few years, while the staff has remained at the same level. Evening closing would spell the end of evening boxing and physical culture classes, rifle and trampoline clubs and family nights. Such youth agencies as the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls face equally difficult problems. "The best way to dramatize the danger faced here is to recall what happened to the Boy Scouts in the early 30s, when the local council went bankrupt," says a United Fund Secretary Rex Dye. "At that time the local Boy Scouts were attached to Medford. The camp at Lake of the Woods was also transferred to Medford which, of course, still has it. When the scouting program was on its feet again locally, a new camp site had to be found. This was the result of not supporting the scout program." Dye pointed out that it is difficult to effect economies within these three agencies without striking at the heart of their programs, as there are basic costs of rent, supplies and personnel which are nearly invariable no matter whether the number of children served is only a couple of hundred or several hundred. "There is some cost involved in the leadership training of adults," Dye said, "but curtailment of these expenditures should be avoided, lest we cut the foundation out from under the entire youth program." It is the youth center at the Salvation Army which that agency would have to close. "The youth program has been one on which the Army has concentrated," Marion Grant, chairman of the organization's advisory board said, "it is a shame to eliminate it completely. But the Army must do more than merely close down this center; it must limit all relief to emergency needs." The poor showing of the local drive also affects statewide child care agencies, whose needs are as pressing as those of the local organizations, Dye points out. "The irony of this situation is that we have attained an average of about 87 per cent of our United Fund goals over the years," Dye says. "Yet the other 13 per cent is just about the difference between merely keeping the agencies in business and giving them a chance to really serve the community. This is like giving an artist an easel, canvas, paint and brushes, but no light."

Police Report Accident List

A Merchants Bus and a private car collided at the intersection of Washburn Way and South Sixth Street during the rush hour Thursday night. The results were minor injuries to two passengers, considerable damage to both vehicles, and one arrest. City police said Gerald Nelson Bovee, a Kingsley Field airman, was entering South Sixth Street from Washburn Way at 5:04 when his car struck the front of a bus driven by Mrs. Elsie Lee Harless, 215 Sequel Street. Injuries were sustained by Mrs. Tommy Waller, 2505 Crest Street, a bus passenger, and by A. C. James A. Warford, Kingsley Field, a passenger in the car. Both were hospitalized. Warford was released Friday morning but Mrs. Waller was held for X-ray examination of neck injuries, hospital spokesmen said. Bovee, driver of the car, was cited for failing to yield the right of way to a vehicle. Other police reports: Raymond R. Souza of Dorris was arrested at the corner of Sixth and Broad streets for permitting four persons to ride in the front seat of his vehicle. Mrs. Roy Galloway, 900 Division Street, said someone apparently had entered her house last Sunday because a railroad watch was missing from the kitchen counter. Bill Cooksey, 2143 Vine Street, said he had accidentally run over a small, black and white, part shepherd dog which was caught under the car and couldn't be removed. The dog bit Cooksey, who got help from police to return it to its owner. The dog was badly injured in its hind quarters, police said. Vandalism reportedly entered the R. J. Reddard home at 2226 Oregon Avenue Thursday, emptying drawers, pulling down drapes and disrupting things in general. And a woman, apparently scantily clad, appeared at Klamath Valley Hospital after a fight with her husband. She asked for something to quiet her nerves, but she disappeared before she saw a doctor.

County Weather Said 'Inverted'

DUNSMUIR — Extremely "inverted" weather in Southern Siskiyou County in November put temperatures on the mountain slopes above those at the lower levels. According to Frank Ashbell of the U.S. Weather Bureau station in Mount Shasta, temperatures at the Mt. Shasta Ski Bowl, elevation 7,850 feet, were as much as nine degrees higher than those recorded at the weather bureau office in Mount Shasta, elevation 3,350 feet. This inversion, plus a lack of wind, accounted for the foggy conditions experienced north of Mount Shasta this last month, Ashbell said. Precipitation in November was about one fourth the usual amount and at the end of the month seasonal rainfall was 3.03 inches below normal.

Handbills Aid Paperless NY

NEW YORK (AP)—A newspaperless New York today awaited the outcome of a negotiation session aimed at ending a deliverymen's strike at the city's nine major dailies. Mayor Robert F. Wagner offered his help. Some of the news was getting through as radio and television stations expanded coverage. There were other sources. The New York Central Railroad was distributing handbill-like digests to commuters with news supplied by The Associated Press as a public service. WICA, key station of the NBC network, published tabloid-sized "extras" for distribution on streets and in railway stations. The Long Island Daily Press, one of the nine papers at which presses were still set up a projection slide news service in Pennsylvania Station for Long Island Rail Road commuters. Also, a limited amount of out-of-town papers were seeping into the city, the largest newspaper publishing community in America. The nine papers that have temporarily discontinued publication are the Press, the Times, the Herald Tribune, the Daily News, the Mirror, the World-Telegram and Sun, the Journal-American, the Post and the Long Island Star-Journal. They employ more than 22,000 persons with a payroll in excess of two million dollars a week.

KF Airman Is Celebrity

James Buttner, 19-year-old Kingsley Field airman of 219 South Eleventh Street, has become suddenly, through no fault and certainly through no desire of his own, something of a celebrity around the local office of the state police. Thursday's Herald and News reported that when police officers picked up two joy-riding 15-year-old boys Wednesday night, the car they had appropriated turned out to be Buttner's. The lads were held for juvenile authorities. Friday morning, state police answered a call to Altamont Drive and Johns Avenue. There they found Buttner and his car again, this time as parties to a two-car collision. Buttner was southbound on Altamont and within 40 feet of the intersection when he applied his brakes to avoid a collision with the station wagon driven by Mike J. Zupan, 72, of Route 1, Klamath Falls, officers report. The Zupan vehicle, which had been headed west on Johns, sustained damage to the right front fender and door, while Buttner's was damaged on the grill and left front fender. Zupan was cited for failure to yield the right of way. A police officer investigating said that Buttner's car was probably so damaged by this second misadventure that it was beyond repair. If that is true, the car at least made a dignified exit, being driven — and not towed — from the scene of the accident.

AS WE SEE IT

By Jack Myers & Don Robin. There are a number of important days in the year... but one of the most star-spangled ones is December 15th. That's Bill of Rights Day... and if it isn't worth remembering, we're looking at the world through the wrong pair of eyes. To say the Bill of Rights is good for us is like saying Mount Whitney is a fair-sized hill. It's an understatement with echoes. Today we are among the freest and most fortunate people in the world... because we have rights that assure us of the protection of our individuality. But even the best of laws can fade if no one cares about them. The Bill of Rights protects us... and we can protect those rights by being the kind of Americans the rights were designed for. It's sure worth the effort. It's reported that South America is having a time with a U.S. bubble gum craze. I just hope this doesn't gum up our international relationships. From reliable sources it's also reported that you'll enjoy driving and owning the new MORRIS, the car that seats four people comfortably, gets better than 40 miles per gallon, and cruises at a speed over 60 m.p.h. Economy of operation alone is important but there are many other advantages to owning a MORRIS. Drive one yourself! Visit our show room.

Inn Operator To Face Jury

A tavern operator in Dairy faces a district court jury trial next Wednesday on a charge of selling lottery tickets. The charge against Dorris May Short, 36, maintains that she displayed a Texas Charlie punchboard which offered a transistor radio as its major prize. A state police officer was driving through the town December 8 when he noticed punch boards on the bar. He returned to get a better look at what he had seen in passing, but said Mrs. Short was hiding the boards after warning from her husband. Mrs. Short pleaded innocent to the charge and posted $200 bail pending her jury trial. Other district court action: Paul R. Hawk, 21, charged with taking and using a car without the owner's consent, requested a preliminary hearing before District Judge D. E. Van Vactor. The hearing was set for 10 a.m. next Tuesday and Hawk was released on $1,500 bond. Hawk was shot by a city police officer early Thanksgiving morning when fleeing from the car. He was hospitalized, under guard, for approximately a week. Keith Duane Thomas, was fined $15 for hunting ducks on Miller Island December 7 during prohibited hours.
