

Pope To Bestow Red Hats On American Clerics At Vatican Consistories

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Two Americans and a foreign visitor to the United States will receive the red hats of princes of the church at the consistories beginning here Dec. 15. They will bring to 28 the number of cardinals who have served the church in the United States.

Scheduled to receive their red hats from Pope John XXIII are two American-born archbishops, the Most Rev. Richard James Cushing of Boston and the Most Rev. John O'Hara of Philadelphia, and one Italian who was serving as apostolic delegate to the U.S., the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani.

The new cardinals will bring to six the number of church princes still living who served in America. The others are:

Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of New York; James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, archbishop of Los Angeles; Pietro Cardinal Fumasoni Biondi, Italian-born former apostolic delegate to the U.S., now serving in the Roman curia as head of the church's Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith. Italians who have served as apostolic delegates in the U.S. and later became princes of the church, like Fumasoni Biondi, are often listed by Catholic publications as among the "American" cardinals.

There were seven other Italians who served in the offices of the apostolic delegates and one as a special papal envoy. One Italian and one Frenchman have served as bishops in the United States, later to become cardinals in their own countries. One Italian and one Spaniard served religious orders in America, and later became princes of the church.

Twelve other cardinals, including Archbishops Spellman and McIntyre, were U.S.-born cardinals, elevated while archbishops in American cities.

Two of the U.S. cardinals were naturalized Americans, both born in Ireland.

The first "American" cardinal also was one of the first bishops in the U.S. He was Jean Cardinal de Cheverus, first bishop of Boston when the diocese was established in 1808, along with New York, Philadelphia and Maryland as the first in the newly-independent nation.

Bishop de Cheverus returned to his native France in 1823, was created cardinal there in 1836, but died that same year.

Italian-born Ignazio Persico, a Capuchin, served as the fourth bishop of Savannah, from 1870 to 1872, and was made a cardinal after his return to Italy, in 1893. He died two years later.

The first American-born cardinal, made a prince of the church because of his ecclesiastical position in the U.S., was John Cardinal McCloskey, who received his red hat in 1875.

McCloskey was born in Brooklyn in 1810 and studied at the seminary of Mount St. Mary in Baltimore, Md., and in Rome. He was archbishop of New York from 1864 until his death in 1885. Succeeding cardinals created in the U.S. were:

James Cardinal Gibbons, 1886: Born Baltimore in 1834; first apostolic vicar in North Carolina; bishop of Richmond, Va., 1872-77; archbishop of Baltimore, 1877 to his death in 1905.

John Cardinal Farley, 1911: Born in Ireland, 1842; bishop of New York, 1895; archbishop of New York, 1902 until his death in 1918.

William Henry Cardinal O'Connell, 1911: Born Lowell, Mass., 1859; rector, North American College in Rome, 1895-1901; bishop of Portland, Maine, 1901-1906; special papal envoy to Japan, 1905; archbishop of Boston, 1907 until his death in 1944.

Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, 1921: Born Girardville, Pa., 1865; bishop of Nueva Segovia, and Jaro, Philippine Islands; bishop of Buffalo, N.Y., 1915-18; archbishop of Philadelphia, 1918 until his death in 1931.

George Cardinal Mundelein, 1924: Born New York City, 1872; auxiliary bishop of Brooklyn; archbishop of Chicago, 1915 until death in 1939.

Patrick Cardinal Hayes, 1924: Born New York City, 1867; chief chaplain U.S. Army and Navy, World War I; archbishop of New York, 1919 until death in 1938.

John Cardinal Glennon, 1946: Born Ireland, 1862; archbishop of St. Louis, 1903 until death in 1946. Died on way home from consistory which made him cardinal.

Samuel Cardinal Stritch, 1946: Born Nashville, Tenn., 1867; bishop of Toledo, Ohio, 1921-30; archbishop of Milwaukee, 1930-39; archbishop of Chicago, 1939 until this year, when came to Rome to take high Vatican post but died.

Edward Cardinal Mooney, 1948: Born Mount Savage, Md., 1882; apostolic delegate to India, then auxiliary bishop of Boston, 1932-37; archbishop of New York, 1939 to present.

James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, 1953: Born New York City, 1886; auxiliary bishop of New York, 1941-46; coadjutor archbishop of New York, 1946-48; archbishop of Los Angeles, 1948 to present.

Of the other foreign-born cardinals with American ties, Camillo Cardinal Mazzella of Italy was a 1900s, served as a special papal envoy to America.

Cardinals Giovanni Bonzano, Diomede Falconio, Sebastiano

Tuto of Spain served the church in California.

Gaetano Cardinal Bedini of Italy, a church prince of the mid-1800s, served as a special papal envoy to America.

Cardinals Giovanni Bonzano, Diomede Falconio, Sebastiano

Martinelli and Francesco Salotti, all of Italy, were once apostolic delegates to the U.S. Cardinals Bonaventura Cerretti, Francesco Marchetti-Selvaggiani and Donato Sbarretti, also Italians, were auditors of the apostolic delegation in the U.S.
