

AGAIN THIS YEAR, hundreds of gifts are going to the Fairview Home and State Hospital at Salem through the generosity of residents of Klamath County. Shown at the Klamath County TB and Health Association office, clearing house for the gifts, are, from left, Helen Majors, in charge of the TB and Health office; Mrs. E. A. Geary, member of the board of the State Mental Health Association, and Mrs. Hagen A. Moore, who has assisted Mrs. Geary and Mrs. Majors for the last three years in this program. These three women volunteer their time and energy each year to the sorting and boxing of the gifts which are transported without charge by Dick Samples of Klamath Falls Fast Freight to their destination. Last year, for example, Mrs. Moore fastened 1,000 pairs of earrings to cards in addition to her other work in packing the gifts. Unwrapped gifts may be taken today and tomorrow to either the TB and Health Association office, 209 East Main, or to Mrs. Moore's home for last minute delivery to Salem.

Beck's Heavy Cold, Fever Cause Recess Of Trial

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—The income tax evasion trial of Dave Beck has been recessed until Monday because the former Teamsters' union boss has a heavy cold and a fever. Beck squirmed and occasionally dozed in his chair Friday while Frank Brewster, president of the Joint Council of Teamsters, was testifying about Beck's borrowings from the union he once headed. U. S. Dist. Judge George H. Boldt asked a physician to examine Beck at lunch time and the recess was ordered when the doctor reported Beck was ill. Brewster told the jury he had no knowledge that the union ever approved a loan for Beck, who is accused by the government of evading nearly a quarter of a million dollars in taxes. Brewster said he and Beck loaned themselves $5,000 from Council 28 in 1940 to buy a site for a gasoline station. They paid back the money from the station's profits, Brewster said. Once head of the 200,000-member Western Conference of Teamsters, Brewster now is union president in this state only. Beck, now retired, was head of the international union. Brewster said he and Beck had complete control of all income and expenditures of the Western Conference, the Joint Council and the Joint Council Building Assn. Brewster said the Western Conference made provisions for audits but no audit was made until 1954, when tax agents began investigating Beck's finances. The audit showed he owed the union $570,000. Judge Boldt said the trial would be recessed again Tuesday for the remainder of Christmas week.

Wrists Cut By Teen-ager

SEATTLE (AP)—A teenage Tacoma youth, who last Tuesday confessed a 1957 slaying, Friday night cut his wrists with a ball pen in what King County sheriff's officers described as an apparent attempt to gain attention. The youth, David D. McLain, 16, was given first aid at the King County jail and did not require hospital attention. McLain signed a confession he shot Norton Gregory, a suburban Houghton grocer, on Oct. 31, 1957 during a $90 robbery of the store. However, records at Western State Hospital at Kelocoom, Wash., indicate the boy was a patient there the day Gregory was slain.

Judge Sets Bond In Timber Case

Bond of $2,000 was set by Judge D. E. Van Vactor for Charles R. Turner, 39, Murphy, who was held for the grand jury on a charge of larceny following a preliminary hearing in district court Friday. Turner was arrested by state police on the afternoon of December 13, when he was allegedly discovered in possession of Christmas trees which did not belong to him. Police say he was stopped while he was driving along the Poe Valley Road with a load of trees. Some of these trees, they allege, bore markings which the Weyerhaeuser Timber Company was using to identify trees cut by its personnel on its holdings in the area. Fred Goeller of Weyerhaeuser reportedly identified the marked trees after Turner had been stopped, and signed the complaint. In the heart of Paris there is a late-night place called The Crazy Horse. It is a French version of an American Wild West saloon.

Sports Devotees Said 'Frosted' By Lack Of Snow

To the hordes of skiers, tobogganers, assorted winter sports lovers and others who have been "frosted" by the absence of snow in the Klamath Basin and surrounding areas this winter can now be added the list of those who attended the snow surveyor training school held in Klamath Falls Tuesday and Wednesday. Despite the presence of W. T. (Jack) Frost, Oregon snow survey supervisor for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service, under the sponsorship of which the school had been organized, the best patch of snow the school could find was on the rim of Crater Lake, a just-adequate 18 inches. Frost, who came from Portland to direct the school, was assisted by Manes Barton, his assistant supervisor, and Maurice Benson, snow surveyor from the Bend soil conservation service office, and Ranger John Bowdler of the park service. The trainees were Gene Cox, Don Baldwin and Dave Edwards of Klamath Falls; Calvin Gregg, Cottage Grove; Roger Reid, Bonanza; Gerald George, Madras; and Myron Buswell, Lakeview. All but Buswell, who owns a flying service in Lakeview, are members of the soil conservation service staff. Except for the morning spent at the lake, the trainees had to use their imaginations while listening to lectures on such subjects as "the snow survey party," "travel on skis or snowshoes" and "travel by over-snow vehicle." The most appropriate item on the agenda was entitled "over-the-snow survey party;" unfortunately Earl Jones, who was supposed to teach it, was not able to attend.
