

GRANDMA'S COOKIES are a special treat for the holidays and a treat for the homemaker because they come from the package oven-fresh and all ready to eat. Made in Portland, they are distributed here by Bowers Food Sales and are available at your favorite grocery outlet. Shown is an assortment which includes the always popular chocolate eclairs.

GRANDMA'S COOKIES

Time gets away from all of us at this time of year. That's one reason for having several extra packages of Grandma's Cookies on hand to serve at a moment's notice. Youngsters and grownups like them and having "spare" refreshments on hand is a big saving on the homemaker during the holiday rush.

Grandma's Cookies are an Oregon product. They come from the spick-and-span kitchen at Portland and some of the recipes are family recipes which have been used since the first Grandma's Cookies reached the market years ago. Whether you like your cookies crisp or chewy, frosted or plain, there is the particular variety to suit your taste.

PANCAKES

Pillsbury's first pancake mix was marketed in 1919.

Now there are three: Butter-milk Pancake Mix, the all-time favorite which makes a light, tender pancake; Blueberry Pancake Mix, which has crystallized blueberries right in the mix; and Honey Buckwheat Pancake Mix which now replaces plain buckwheat. Honey in the mix makes it just a little richer, enhances the buckwheat flavor.

Pancake mix is one of the best bargains in food. One pound of buttermilk pancake mix makes 28 to 30 four-and-one-half-inch pancakes. Two cups of the mix makes seven 7-inch waffles.

The 13½-ounce package of blueberry pancake mix makes 21 pancakes. Two cups of the mix makes eight waffles or 12 to 15 muffins. Pancake mix can be used also as a quick bread mix.

For extra-special pancakes, add bits of fried bacon, ham or sausage to the mix; or, whole kernel corn; or chopped nuts; or chocolate chips; or cooked wild rice; or pieces of canned tuna, chicken or turkey.

BAKING TIPS

Pancakes will be more tender if you do not overbeat the batter. Leave small lumps.

For pancakes of uniform size, use small measuring cup for pouring batter onto griddle. One-fourth cup of batter makes one 4½-inch pancake.

Griddle is right temperature if drops of water "dance" when sprinkled on it.

Pancakes can be baked ahead and kept warm on a platter in a slow oven for serving a large crowd. Better yet, get a helper and borrow a second electric griddle.

TOPPINGS

For breakfast pancakes toppings might be cranberry sauce, hot, spiced apple sauce, sour cream and marmalade, cream cheese and fresh or frozen strawberries, comb honey, jam or jelly.

For the main dish, top pancakes with creamed chipped beef, chicken or turkey a la king (with chopped pimiento and green pepper).

For dessert, top with orange or lemon sauce, whipped cream and fruit such as pineapple, cherries, berries; hot fudge sauce or thickened fruit juice.

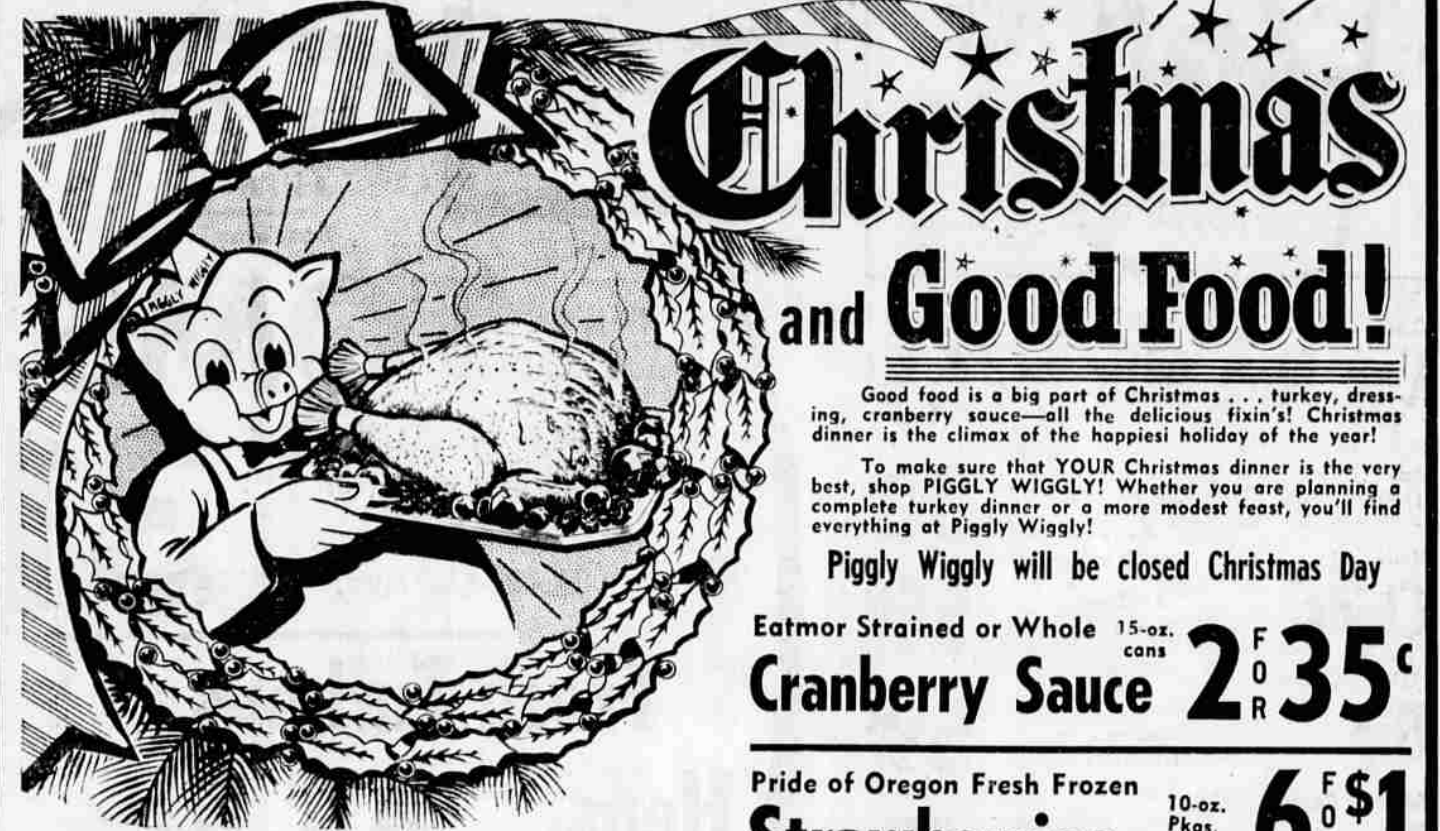

Butter the tender pancakes, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar (Oregon's White Satin Powdered Sugar), roll up and then add the topping when serving the pancakes for dessert. One egg, used as a thickening, is the equivalent of one tablespoon of flour.
