

BOILER BAY is always a pleasant stopover when you are driving along the Oregon coast. The big dent in the Pacific shoreline is located just north of Depoe Bay and is noted for the beauty of the rushing waves as they pound themselves to spray on the rocks. The state highway department has constructed a park and viewpoint on a stone ledge jutting out into the sea which affords a splendid view of the wild waters.

A TYPICAL SCENE from a beach motel is this shot of the swirling surf breaking around a massive rock upthrust at Taft. The picture was taken from the dining room window of the Ester Lee apartments on the edge of town. Comfortable accommodations are always available on the Oregon coast, particularly during the off-season months. This particular motel is perched high on the bluff overlooking the whole sweep of ocean. A stair leads down to the beach from the broad terrace on the west side of the establishment. Carrie McClanathan is the gracious hostess at the Ester Lee.

THE COVER

The fellow on the cover is named Gideon and he lives at Depoe Bay. That is all the information we got at the time. He is fishing at Boiler Bay just south of Taft. That fence borders the state park there and the fisherman's line drops 125 feet to the water below. He catches mostly cod and sea trout. Two weeks before this picture was taken "something" got on his hook and ran away with it and 130 yards of line.

Christensen Named Chief Of Cattlemen

LIKELY — Brunel Christensen of Likely was named as president of the California Cattlemen's Association at its annual meeting at Santa Rosa. He succeeds Robert Johnson of Sanger. Christensen served three years as association vice president and chairman of its legislative committee. He is a graduate of the University of California and is a county supervisor of Modoc County.

He is a member of the executive and national forests committees of the American National Cattlemen's Association and of the grazing advisory committee of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management. The association's board of directors created a new association committee on recreation to cope with the growing problems of recreational use of public and private lands. It will also be concerned with trespass and other similar matters resulting from expanding population of the West. The 1959 convention will be held at Eureka.

The National Fire Protection Association, a non-profit membership organization, insists that 90 per cent of fires are preventable.
