Metal Shack Houses Cops

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI)—A police force stationed a few miles outside this city has only a small corrugated metal shack for headquarters. Yet it is larger than the law enforcement agencies of most villages around the country. Capt. M. Alvin Johnson, a veteran of 27 years in police and fire service, heads a 4-man force on duty at the giant Niagara power project now under construction. Johnson said his men's primary job is "to enforce safety rules, prevent uninvited guests from invading construction areas and prevent thefts and pilferage of the millions of dollars worth of equipment and material being used here." The unusual police force has two patrol cars and also operates the projects ambulance when necessary.

WHOA!
THOMPSON, Conn. (UPI) — James Ide and Stanley Chaplowski fled from a tavern brawl in a horse and buggy. When asked how he captured the pair, state trooper James Donahue replied, "I headed them off at the pass."
