Outstanding Americans of 1958

FEW PERSONS achieve real greatness in a given year. But in various fields a number of Americans usually reach sufficient prominence to be called outstanding, and to receive the applause of their fellow men. Though it is impossible to list all of these, Family Weekly believes its readers will agree that the personalities pictured here well deserve to be included among 1958's outstanding Americans.

Comdr. William R. Anderson made history when he and his crew of atomic submarine Nautilus sailed their craft under polar ice cap.

Stage and screen star Julie Harris continued to enthrall her vast TV following with "Johnny Belinda" (above) and "Little Moon of Alban."

Wernher von Braun, technical director of the Army's missile base at Huntsville, Ala., led team of scientists who were responsible for successful launching of first U.S. satellite.

The 1958 Nobel Prize in medicine was shared by Drs. Joshua Lederberg, University of Wisconsin (left), Edward Tatum, Rockefeller Institute (top), and George Beadle, California Institute of Technology. Their valuable work and discoveries were on the fundamentals of heredity.

But why MEN over 45?

Our doctors still don't know why, but if you are a man over 45 you are six times as likely to develop lung cancer as a man of your age 20 years ago. Our new film, "The Warning Shadow," will tell you what every man should know about lung cancer. Phone your nearest American Cancer Society office or write to "Cancer"—in care of your local Post Office.
