

INVITATIONS are such fun whether they are for coffee, for brunch or a bite to eat at a basketball game. An easy way to entertain is to have a pancake party. Shown are choice of buttermilk, blueberry or honey buckwheats. Favorite toppings can be as varied as your taste. Cook them in the kitchen or bring your electric frypan to the table and let the party be practically buffet style. Photo and recipe suggestions are from Pillsbury.

SANDWICHES Turn a cold sandwich into a hot one by buttering the outside of the bread instead of the inside. Then saute it gently in butter. Suggested fillings might be cheese or cheese and ham, corned beef, scrambled eggs combined with dried beef, sausage, mushrooms or green pepper and ground meat.

PANCAKE PARTY

When you say, "Come on to our house" after a show or the game, pancakes can quickly solve the problem of what to serve a hungry crowd. In less time than it takes to rustle up a batch of sandwiches, you can mix up the griddle and stir up a pitcher of pancake batter. If the man of the house is handy with flapjacks, why not let him preside at the griddle while you fry bacon or sausages and make coffee.

If there's time to plan ahead, arrangements can be a bit more elaborate, but needn't involve a lot of work. It might be fun, for instance, to offer several kinds of pancakes so guests can sample some of each or pick the one they like best. Mixes make all the favorite flavors — buttermilk, blueberry, and buckwheat — and take only minutes to prepare. Pillsbury's new blueberry pancake mix is especially easy to use. The berries are right in the mix, so it's not necessary to wash, drain or blend them into the batter. Another newcomer, Honey Buckwheat Pancake Mix, is a "must" for the buckwheat fans in the crowd.

Give your guests a choice of toppings, too — hot maple syrup, jam, brown sugar, real comb honey for the honey buckwheats, and whipped cream for those who like it on blueberry pancakes. Bacon, ham or sausage — or all three — plus plenty of hot coffee — complete the menu.

Arrange the pancake party making buffet style — efficient as well as pretty (an extra griddle borrowed from a neighbor will speed the supply of hot cakes when it's time for seconds). Then when the guests arrive, pass a tray of fresh fruit, and from there on the party will run itself.

California To Mark 1958 As Year Of Demo Sweep

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The year 1958 will go down in California political history books as the year of the great Democratic sweep.

It will be long remembered, especially by the Democrats, Republicans, even though they'd like to forget it, will have a hard time overcoming the political consequences of 1958.

It was a year notable for two things. — The election of Democrat Edmund G. Brown as governor with Democrats winning control of the Legislature for the first time in the 20th century; and — The decline and fall of two Republican stalwarts: Sen. William F. Knowland and Gov. Goodwin J. Knight.

Brown's resounding victory over Knowland in their battle for governor made 1958 a banner year for the 53-year-old San Franciscan and may hint of an even bigger year to come in either 1960 or 1964 when Democrats choose a national ticket.

For Knowland, his defeat by more than 1,029,000 votes spelled political disaster for a campaigner many GOPers called "Mr. Republican."

A corollary casualty on the Republican side was 62-year-old Knight, frustrated by Knowland in his ambition to run for governor again and defeated in his bid for a U. S. Senate seat by Democratic Rep. Clair Engle.

Even though he was not an active candidate last November, the results of the general election certainly were no help or comfort to Republican Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Nixon hopes to win the GOP presidential nomination in 1960 and needs every bit of support he can get from his home state.

Nixon campaigned in vain in California for the Knowland-Knight ticket. Historians will note that the only Republican statewide office holder who survived the Democratic tide was Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan, 70, who stayed as far away from GOP campaign hoopla as possible.

Despite Nixon's campaigning and the personal efforts of President Eisenhower, November saw the defeat of such proven Republican vote-getters as Lt. Gov. Harold J. Powers, controller Robert C. Kirkwood, Treasurer A. Ronald Button and Nixon's close friend and political ally, Rep. Patrick J. Hillings who was soundly thumped by Judge Stanley Mosk in a battle for attorney general.

But perhaps the most important political result in 1958 was the unexpectedly overwhelming Democratic victory in the Legislature. As recently as 1953, Republicans controlled the Assembly 53-27 and the Senate 29-11. While their majorities were whittled away in the past five years, they went into the November election with a 43-37 edge in the lower house and a 20-20 tie in the Senate.

But Nov. 4, was a dark day for the GOP in legislative contests. Democrats came out of the election with a 44-33 working margin in the Assembly and a 26-13 bulge in the Senate. For good measure, the Democrats wiped out the 17-13 Republican edge in the state's Congressional delegation and picked up three GOP seats.

The make-up of the Legislature is especially important in the next two years because the party in power will have the final say on how the state's Assembly and congressional districts are re-vamped.

If the Democrats stay in power — and it would take a stunning reversal to throw them out of both Assembly and Senate in 1960 — they will determine the size and make-up of voting districts throughout the state for the next 10 years.

History books already show that the party in power usually reapportion the state to help its own cause in future elections.

Reminder Given By County Agent

LAKEVIEW — Sheep producers, particularly farm flock owners, are reminded by Lake County Extension Agent Oris Rudd of the Sheep Production Shortcourse slated for January 14 and 15 in the county courtroom.

John Landers and Dean Frischknecht, OSC extension livestock specialists, will lead discussion planned for two consecutive afternoons. Disease and parasite control will occupy the first meeting slated for 1:30 p.m., January 14. The January 15 meeting, also called for 1:30, will treat feeding problems and include some tips on producing fat lambs. Both sessions will be broken in the middle for a coffee break and all sessions will end promptly at 3:30 p.m.

All sheep producers received a card about this session and Rudd would like these returned so that an estimate of attendance can be made.

THE 2000TH boy to be presently enrolled in the Klamath Boy Scout District is 11-year-old David Kessler, a member of Troop 9 sponsored by Car-Ad-Co. David personified the climax of a district membership drive which sought 2,000 active scouts. A son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Kessler, Pelican City, David had his Cub Scout experience in the Philippines where his father was a contractor for five years. Congratulating David, whose new uniform was presented by the district scout committee, are Hal Geiger, district chairman, and his scoutmaster, Louis Leppert.

Missile-Bomber Rate Slate Gives Reds Lower Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new estimate by American authorities of Russia's missile-bomber progress gives the Reds a lower rating than half a year ago.

An assessment made last spring, which indicated substantial leads by the Soviets in several fields of weapons, has been re-evaluated, responsible sources said today.

Now the relative, over-all position of the United States in ballistic missiles appears to have improved. In manned bombers this country retains what the analysts consider a clear superiority.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev's recent claim of an intercontinental ballistic missile capable of 8,700-mile range does not seem to have influenced this re-evaluation. Nor are the analysts ready to accept completely reports that Russia is flying a nuclear powered bomber.

The United States may not have a high-performance nuclear bomber flying for another five to eight years.

In the case of the ICBM, U. S. authorities make these points: Khrushchev speaking to U. S.

The Yreka Flower Shop won the top prize of $25 in the commercial category. Shasta Gas Company won the second prize, and Allison's Shoe Store won the third prize.

Members of the Yreka Garden Club were the contest judges.

EYE OPENER

LONDON (UPI) — The official London Gazette today carried this announcement:

"The Pin, Hook and Eye, and Snap Fastener Wages Council (Great Britain) hereby gives notice of its intention to submit to the minister of labor and national service proposals for increasing the statutory minimum remuneration set out in the wages regulations (pin, hook and eye, and snap fastener) order, 1958 (order O. 150).

Career's Biggest Gamble Looms For Movie Producer

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Samuel Goldwyn says he is taking the biggest gamble of his 46-year career as a film producer — and won't profit a penny if he wins.

He declared he has dropped seven million dollars of his own money into the making of "Porgy and Bess." Except for shares which go to his wife and son, the entire profits will be given to his Goldwyn Foundation for charitable works.

"That is, if there are any profits," he added. "I'm not even sure of that. I have done what nobody else has tried before — put a real American opera on the screen. I don't know if the public will go for an opera. Nobody knows."

"I'll have to attract a lot of people to make a success of it. With a seven-million-dollar investment, I will have to make 15 millions in order to break even. I don't know if I can do it."

"But I'll tell you one thing: I will not disguise 'Porgy and Bess.' The ads will state plainly that it is an opera. I don't think it does any good to lie to the public about what a thing is. If they don't like it, they won't come, no matter what you call it."

The 74-year-old movie maker had just finished final retakes for the picture.

The rights alone cost a minimum of $650,000, with more to be paid as a royalty," he said. "It took months of negotiations to nail down the contract. I had Oliver Smith here for seven months to design the sets, and Irene Sharaff for the same time doing the costumes. Every costume was created from scratch."

"I had an orchestra and 80-voice chorus working for four months on the prerecordings. Most of the songs are dubbed, so that meant practically a duplicate cast."

"The filming required four months, both on location in Stockton and here at the studio. The Todd-AO process is enormously expensive. And now that the filming is over, the scoring begins. Andre Previn will take at least 10 weeks to write the score, another four to record it."
