Neuberger Explains New Figures In Reservation Timber Appraisal

Sen. Richard Neuberger explained his views on the recent new Klamath timber appraisal figure in a letter submitted to editors of several Oregon newspapers. Senator Neuberger stated: "Inasmuch as you asked my opinion concerning the new Klamath timber appraisal, I shall try to give you my views on the situation. To begin with, we plan Senate Indian Affairs hearings in March to get at the accuracy of the new estimates. There, the Indians, the appraisers, the public, the federal departments all will have a chance to be heard in full.

that the Indians receive full and fair value for their resources. But I owe it to the taxpayers, who must put up the funds, to see to it that fair value is not grossly exceeded. If three independent appraisers say the forest is worth 90 million dollars, can I ask my colleagues in the Senate to put up 28 million dollars above that in order to reimburse Indians who may have been disappointed by an earlier appraisal which was not realistic?"

Masked Thief

(Continued from Page 1) fulfill an errand for his mother. The boy found nobody in the store, but he heard the phone ringing. He answered it. On the phone was Durbin's wife, who was worried because Durbin hung up so suddenly before and had not called back. At this moment Durbin made his first attempt to leave the cooler. He found no bandit, but only the boy in the store. And his wife on the phone.

"The House of Representatives insisted on the provision for a new series of appraisals. They would not budge on this, especially after I had won my point in conference on restoring the essential and necessary language calling for 'sustained - yield procedures.' I feel that the Congress will insist that the average of these three new appraisals be allowed to prevail. Furthermore, there is a limit to how much may be demanded of taxpayers in all 49 states to reimburse Indians in one state.

"After all, we must remember this. The original appraisal figure would assure each withdrawing Klamath—man, woman and child—$38,000 tax-free. The new appraisal reduces that to $45,000. Naturally, there is chagrin. Yet $45,000, tax-free, is a huge sum. It means nearly $200,000 for a family of four. The sum of $45,000 would seem extremely large if the more tempting sum of $58,000 had not earlier been reported by the first appraisal. "I am going to hold full and fair hearings in March. Yet I have an obligation to taxpayers and to the treasury not to be stampeded by pressure from the Indians and their allies and supporters. I understand Secretary Seaton is accepting the new appraisals and establishing them as the value of the timber. In addition, our bill calls for a 90 million dollar authorization, so there was some hint to us way last summer that 90 million dollars might be the more actual value of the forest resource."

Bartender Testifies In Forgery Trial

The manager of the Malin Hotel resumed his testimony today in the forgery trial of Jim Howell, 39-year-old Tulelake resident, accused of cashing a fellow-worker's $14.25 paycheck. Harvey Copper, under questioning by District Attorney Arthur A. Beddoe, said that on December 5 Howell and another man "by the name of Anderson" appeared at his bar and asked him to cash the check. He said Anderson asked him to cash the check and Howell asked him for a pencil. "I was busy," he said. "I put a pencil down on the bar and waited on other customers."

Klamath May Play Host To Archery Tournament

The project of constructing a multipurpose building at Moore Park, the possibility that Klamath Falls may play host to a national archery tournament in July, and Moore Park's potentialities for tourist camping were among the subjects discussed at Tuesday's meeting of the city's park and recreation committee. The first two subjects were raised by three representatives of the Klamath Archers who attended the meeting: Jack Moore, Dale Baxter and Walter Bower. Their objective was to build a structure measuring about 40 feet by 96, with a finished area including a fireplace at one end, and a large unfinished area suitable for an archery range at the other. The building would be located in the day camp and archery area of the park.

The archers' spokesmen also told the committee that Klamath Falls was being considered as the site of a national field archers tournament, which would bring some 2,000 archers, and probably 1,000 extra family members, to Oregon in July. The tournament will definitely be held in this state, because of the Centennial celebration, and the park and recreation committee adopted a resolution guaranteeing participants exclusive use of the Moore Park archery range for two weeks, as an inducement for them to come here. Other visitors at the Tuesday meeting were Charlie Schuss and Charles Malin, chairman and member, respectively, of the chamber of commerce's tourist and convention committee. They familiarized members of the park and recreation committee with studies made by the chamber of commerce relating to suitable sites for tourist camping in the Klamath Falls area. The gist of the visitors' report was that trees and other physical assets are necessary for a tourist campsite, and that the only point closer to the city than Keno at which such a site could be developed would be within Moore Park. Schuss and Malin provided committee members with studies showing criteria established for such installations set by the U.S. Forest Service and the park department of the state of Washington, the program of which is generally considered to be a model of its kind. Director Bob Bonney told committee members that he had discussed the question with Mayor Lawrence Slater and members of the chamber's committee, and that there had been agreement that there were suitable sites at Moore Park where such a development would not interfere with existing uses. He said they had also agreed that any tourist camping development would have to be coincidental to the total development of the park and situated in an area of secondary importance, and that construction, operation and maintenance would have to be financed outside the existing city budget. The committee took the matter under advisement.

Adventists Name New Officers

The Seventh-day Adventist Church has elected the following officers to serve during the coming year: Harold McKay, superintendent; Opal Benjamin, secretary; Margie Humphrey, treasurer; Cecil Humphrey, organist; Charles Clafee, home missionary leader; Wilma Venruh, choir director; Don Howard, M. V. leader. Mrs. Opal Benjamin read the report of the 1958 church progress in attendance, offerings and all other departments, showing substantial gains. This quarter of the church year, the Sabbath school is studying the Book of Romans and the Sabbath school offerings for the quarter will go to the South African division. There are classes in Sabbath school for all age groups with competent teachers and all interested persons are invited to worship at the church.

Parking Expert To Visit Klamath

An authority on parking problems — a man described as the country's "No. 1 doctor of parking" — will be in Klamath Falls two days next month to discuss what can be done about all downtown parking. The authority, William Barr, executive director of the National Parking Association of Washington, D.C. He is credited with having surveyed parking conditions in 100 American cities of all sizes. R. Frank Tucker, manager of the Klamath County Chamber of Commerce, said Barr would arrive here February 3 for a pre-conference discussion of parking problems. On the next day he will speak at a noon luncheon open to interested persons. Tucker said the Medford and Klamath County chambers of commerce were able to intercept Barr while on another northwest assignment, and that his appearance here will not cost the city or the chamber any money.

Suburbs Plagued By Pellet Guns

The pellet gun menace which was becoming quite alarming in the suburban area a month or so ago, was once again in the news this week, after a welcome absence. Sunday, two windows in the Richfield service station at Shasta Way and Alameda Avenue were broken by pellets, as previously reported. Tuesday night there was a similar occurrence at Bob's Union Service, South Sixth Street and Summers Lane. State police take a very serious view of these occurrences. Sgt. Bruce Lattin declared. These pellet guns are dangerous weapons; the projectiles will pass through a two-inch pine board and are obviously capable of killing a person. Anyone having information regarding the incidents reported, or any similar ones, is urged to get in touch with the state police, phone TU 4-3131.

Barbershoppers Work On Songs

The Klamath Falls Barbershop Chorus is meeting weekly to polish off numbers to be used this year in the 1959, 11th annual Barbershop Quartet Show in the Pelican Theater on April 18. The Bay Town Four, 1958 champions of the Far Western District of SPEBSQSA, will appear with other quartets booked from Seattle, Portland, Salem and Coos Bay. The famous Cascade Chorus of Eugene has also been scheduled. Men who like to sing are welcome to join this organization and take part in the fun of producing the show. Meetings are held every Monday evening and any interested male singer can get information as to location of rehearsals by calling Bill Bullard, TU 4-8363 or TU 4-3389 or Hub Stone at TU 4-8595.

Ex-Basinite Wins Decision

A former Tulelake resident, son of Mrs. Francis Hannon of Tulelake, has won recognition as a successful attorney for the petitioner in a recent United States Supreme Court decision. Services of Robert E. Hannon of the law firm of Hannon and Hannon, Castro Valley, California, were sought by Carl L. Rhoades and Charles Upton Shreve, Encino, Michigan attorneys, counsel for John Lee, convicted murderer, serving sentence on Alcatraz, when Lee's case was due to come before the federal tribunal. Lee, 37, is serving a life term for the fatal stabbing of a fellow Army prisoner at Camp Cooke, near Lompoc, California, in 1949. At a court-martial for the slaying, Lee was sentenced to death but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by presidential order. Later Lee began habeas corpus proceedings to win release from the life term. The supreme court reversed the decision following Attorney Hannon's presentation of the case, previously decided against the defendant in the U.S. Court of Appeals. Hannon was given permission to argue the case on December 9. The supreme court decision was handed down on January 12. The court ruling permits Lee to be brought to trial again for the Camp Cooke slaying in a civil court in California. The case was taken to the supreme court by the U.S. Court of Appeals, Ninth District, San Francisco. Robert Hannon is associated with his brother William Hannon. The attorneys are nephews of Bernadine Hannon and E. J. Murray, 117 North Eighth, Klamath Falls.

Nazarenes Show Gain

Gains in every area made the 1958 golden anniversary year one of the best in denominational history for the Church of the Nazarenes. Announcement of the year's growth is announced through the Rev. L. Dew Wright, pastor of the Klamath Falls Nazarene Church. The annual statistical report by Dr. S. T. Ludwig, general secretary, showed that 232 new churches were established. These increased the total number of churches to 4,587. The previous high was 202 new churches established in 1951. Church membership climbed about 9,500 persons to 301,700, or a gain of 3.8 per cent. During the decade of 1948-58, the denomination gained 85,300 members, or an increase of 39 per cent. Three large anniversary year goals were exceeded. A total of 1,126,500 persons was witnessed to during the first church-wide week of witnessing, October 5-12. Also, for the first time in denominational history, the special offerings for world missions at Easter and Thanksgiving each exceeded one million dollars. This Easter offering went to $1,040,000. On January 5, the Thanksgiving offering passed $1,030,000 with gifts still coming in. Sunday school enrollment gained 48,000 to total 673,750. The Foreign Missionary society gained 18,500 to a total of 155,778, and the young people's society grew 2,800 members to 93,000.

Talk Scheduled By SA Leader

Brig. Margaret Cox of the Salvation Army, San Francisco, will be present for the annual advisory board dinner on January 20, to speak on the "Unwed Mother." The brigadier is in charge of all women's social activities of the Salvation Army that are responsible for operation of homes and hospitals for unfortunate young women. The annual report at the local level will be presented to the board and guests by Capt. Lewis Kendall, in charge of the Salvation Army here. Officers for 1959 will be installed. The 6:30 p.m. dinner and business meeting will be held in the Winema Hotel. G. Marion Grant is advisory board chairman.

RECOVERING

Olivia Pisan, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pisan, is now out of danger, authorities at Klamath Valley Hospital reported Friday morning. Olivia, now reported in "good" condition, suffered possible third degree burns January 6, when her clothes caught on fire as she reached across the kitchen stove at her home, 4319 Bartlett Avenue. She is the sixth of nine children.

Seed Courses Open Soon

Two scheduled events of interest to farmers are a seed processors short course at Oregon State College, February 5, 6 and 7, and a nematology workshop January 27 and 28 in Portland. The seed processors short course features demonstration of separation of small and large seeded grasses and legumes by various types of equipment including screen, gravity, pneumatic, indent disc, indent cylinder, aspirator, magnetic and electronic equipment. Seed identification and seed testing is part of the course which includes explanation and demonstration of fluidized seed conveying and demonstration of a single story cleaning plant. The nematology workshop in the Neighbors of Woodcraft Hall in Portland is an annual event sponsored by the Shell Oil Company in different sections of the country. This year's meeting will be the first held in the Northwest. The meeting is expected to draw attendance from a wide area and features discussions by many specialists in nematode problems. Copies of the program for both events may be examined at the Klamath County agent's office.

Legion Auxiliary Holds Meeting

MALIN — Malin American Legion Auxiliary Unit No. 84 met Wednesday evening, January 14, at the community hall with President Virginia Blown in charge. It was announced that Julia Williams, District 4 president, will visit the Malin unit at the next regular meeting, Wednesday evening, February 4. This will be her first visit as district president. The group decided to gather clothing for "Save the Children Federation" and members are asked to bring clothing for children and adults to the next meeting. Helen Loosley will attend the Malin Clinic Corporation meeting on Monday, January 19, as a representative from the auxiliary. Refreshments were served following the meeting by Irene Freitag and Trudy Freitag.
