

Announce Way To Help Drain All 8 Sinus Cavities Without Discomfort

New decongestant tablet for sinus congestion sufferers acts both to drain clogged sinus cavities and relieve distressing head pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) Announcement has been made of a new tablet development which has the remarkable ability to help drain clogged sinus cavities and thus relieve congestion and pressure. The headaches, pressure pains, stuffed-up head, nasal drip, clogged breathing—all the unrelenting symptoms the sinus sufferer knows so well—are attacked directly by improving drainage of the sinus areas.

Most remarkable of all is the fact that this is accomplished with extraordinary speed and without discomfort of any kind. This new tablet does its remarkable work internally, through the blood stream. It deposits into every drop of blood plasma a new medication which is carried to the sinus area, where it shrinks the swollen doors to the sinus cavities and helps drain away the pain-causing pressure and congestion.

The shrinking substance in this new tablet has been so successful topically in promoting drainage of the sinus cavities that it is now prescribed more widely by doctors than any material for this purpose. This new medication is now available at drug counters without the need for a prescription under the name, Dristan® Decongestant Tablets. Dristan Tablets cost only 98¢ for a bottle of 24 tablets. Buy and use Dristan Tablets with the absolute guarantee that they will drain away pain-causing pressure and congestion of the sinus cavities, relieve the pain and distress, or purchase price will be refunded.

"I told him and he told the world"

"I was one of those people who had irregularity trouble for a long time," writes Mrs. Oscar Potter of Morrow, Ohio.

"Finally, I gave Kellogg's All-Bran a try, just to see if it would work. Believe me, it did. And when my husband started having trouble, I told him about All-Bran, too. Now he thinks it's wonderful and he's telling all his friends about it."

The Potters have found, as you can too, that Kellogg's All-Bran is the good-tasting, natural way to overcome irregularity caused by lack of bulk. If that's your trouble, why don't you try Kellogg's All-Bran.

RECENTLY, A YOUNG WOMAN was rushed to the local hospital. Shortly after midnight, she gave birth to a healthy baby girl. While the nurse finished up caring for the mother and baby, the interne stepped into the hall to tell the father the good news. He walked up to the man standing there and said, "It's a girl!" The man stared blandly at the doctor, then smiled graciously and said "That's wonderful."

"Would you like to see it?"

The man hesitated, then replied, "Of course."

At the nursery window, the doctor pointed out the baby, and the man nodded approvingly.

The doctor asked, "How about the mother?"

The man shrugged agreeably, "Sure."

When they entered the room, the young mother stared incredulously at the man. "Who's this?" she asked.

Suddenly, the doctor realized his mistake. He angrily pulled the man into the hall and demanded, "Why didn't you tell me you weren't the father?"

"I'm sorry," the man said, still amiably, "but I thought you were the father and just wanted to brag to somebody."

DURING OUR COURTSHIP, my husband was in service and stationed miles away from me. He was usually pretty good about writing, but sometimes would fall into a letter-writing slump.

During one of these periods I contrived a device which I thought would make his pen move once more. I typed a list of questions (from serious to pseudo-serious: "Are you still among the living?" "Do you still think about me?") and alongside each I put two blanks for "Yes" and "No." I also included a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Crude as it was, my method brought results. By return mail I usually received my questionnaire, all filled out, plus a nice, long, very contrite letter.—Mrs. C. F. Hewitt, Jr., Savannah, Ga.

WE LEARNED FROM OUR SON recently one good reason behind juvenile delinquency.

Coming home late one night, we noticed a schoolmate of his standing on a street corner. The boy was good-looking and quite intelligent, but he was a problem boy. We wondered about why he was out so late and was always getting into so much trouble. Our son gave us the answer:

"He doesn't have anyone who cares how late he stays out!"

Although the would-be Rembrandt on today's cover seems perplexed, painting can be lots of fun—and inexpensive, too. For proof, turn to the feature on page 6. Cover painting by Dick Kohfeld.
