

Canada, U.S. Observing 109th Year Of YMCA

By LAMAR HOOVER

Now in its 109th year of service, the Young Men's Christian Association of the United States and Canada is at present observing National YMCA Week. In Klamath Falls this observance serves as a prelude to the Y's annual Membership Roundup, which has been set for January 27 to February 3.

The YMCA was brought to America on December 29, 1851, (just seven years after the organization was founded in London) when Thomas V. Sullivan, a retired sea captain, followed a Y in Boston. Today there are 1,618 YMCAs in America, with 3,517,627 members and annual operating costs of $125,066,890.

Boys and girls, men and women of every age, race and creed are welcomed in the YMCA, the membership of which accurately reflects America's Protestant, Catholic, Eastern Orthodox and Jewish population. Sixty-two percent of its members are under aged 25 and there are 463,122 women and girl members. The professional staff consists of 3,747 workers while there are 341,241 volunteer leaders. Besides the United States and Canada, the YMCA serves 74 other countries or territories.

During the course of National YMCA Week and the Membership Roundup the Klamath County YMCA will sponsor a number of special programs, while the Herald and News will publicize certain of the organization's activities for families, for boys and girls, for teen-agers for young adults, for women, for OTI students, for men, etc.

Among the special programs will be an open house, Tuesday night, January 20, at the Y headquarters, 722 Pine Street, at the OTI YMCA Community Center and at the church basketball league center, Altamont Junior High School.

The following day, Wednesday, at 3:15 p.m., there will be a meeting of freshmen and sophomore girls who have been invited to have the Tri-Hi-Y program explained to them, at the KUHS Little Theater.

On Thursday at 3:15 p.m. there will be a similar meeting of freshmen and sophomore boys who have been invited to learn about the Hi-Y Club.

Sunday, January 25, is YMCA Sunday. A number of churches are scheduling special mention of the Y on that occasion.

Tuesday, January 27, the kickoff breakfast of Membership Roundup workers will take place at Y headquarters, at 6:30 a.m.

Also on January 27, at 5:30 p.m., there will be a Talamath Tri-Hi-Y dinner meeting for girls who plan to join the Tri-Hi-Y.

Thursday, January 29, at 6:30 a.m., the Y's Men-Young adults service club will hold a breakfast meeting at Brady's Brekfast.

Also on January 29, there will be a dinner meeting for new Hi-Y members at Y headquarters, beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Friday, January 30, the Y will inaugurate a new program by presenting its first dance for eight graders from the Fremont and Altamont junior high schools.

In charge of planning local observance of YMCA Week is the Y's Public Relations Committee, of which Earl Kent is chairman and Fred Hayes and George Procter, members.

Wilber Womer is the Roundup Boss, with Ross Ragland the assistant boss.

The Klamath County YMCA is a United Fund agency.

Quartet Sets Opera Slate

The San Francisco Operatic Quartet, which will offer its program of operatic airs and ensemble numbers here on Wednesday, January 21, at the Pelican Theater, under the auspices of the Community Concert Association, is a group of four operatic voices under the direction of its founder, Maestro Nino Comal.

The singing foursome is composed of soprano, Nancy Cronburg, Margot Blum, contralto, Robert Thomas, tenor and Ronald Duro, baritone. Each of these young singers has achieved distinction as a solo artist. Each brings to the San Francisco Operatic Quartet a keen developed through the best of American training, a wide range of professional experience, and a zest for performing the music which never fails to communicate its enthusiasm to their audiences.

The group is currently in its fifth season. During the past four years the quartet has made extensive tours throughout the West and has been warmly received not only by sophisticated listeners in the large cities but also by persons in the smaller towns who rarely have an opportunity to hear a concert.

In addition to the spirited performances of its members, the sound program planning of director Comal is a chief factor in the success of this group. Maestro Comal's basic reason for forming the quartet was to present to the public, together with the old favorite arias, solo and ensemble pieces from seldom performed operas and thus acquaint music-lovers with some of the great but unjustly neglected masters. The excellence of his choices is attested by the fact that many of the critics have hailed the program as "new," "unique," "endowed with artistic integrity," and audiences have always responded with delight when his novel programs are presented by his quartet of singers.

Doors open at 7 p.m. and admission is by membership card only. Newcomers to Klamath Falls may purchase membership at the Ace Mimeo Service, 424 Main Street.

KPCA Growth

Montana, Oregon and Washington. Nieberg said the associations in this four-state area have completely repaid the $9,400,000 which the government had at one time invested in their capital stock, have built surplus and reserves approximately $9,500,000 and now have a net worth of 20 million dollars. There are 30 associations in this four-state district.

While there will be necessary new innovations in the short-term credit field, as agriculture continues to change in its efforts to become more efficient and to obtain a higher standard of living for farm families, Nieberg said, farmers who have a sound basis for credit will know they can get money for any constructive farm purpose.

Referring to the local association's silver anniversary celebration, Nieberg commended the organization for the outstanding service it has rendered agriculture in this area during the last 25 years, and pointed out that the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank also is celebrating an anniversary, the 35th anniversary of its service to agriculture in the four-state area.

Lions' Clubs Aid School For The Blind

The work being accomplished by the Oregon State School for the Blind, Salem, and the contributions of Lions club and auxiliaries that have made possible a summer orientation program for parents of preschool children under sight, was explained to members of clubs by Everett Wilcox, Wilcox, superintendent of the school, and an affiliate since 1938, was present for a joint meeting of members of the Klamath Falls Lions Club, the Tokete Lions Club and auxiliaries in the Willard Hotel.

Through the efforts of Oregon Lions auxiliaries since 1959, a total of $20,000 has been donated to finance annual summer sessions on the campus of Oregon State College for parents of small children who do not see.

To date 390 children have attended this institute with 378 mothers, 227 fathers and over 100 brothers and sisters. Understanding of all members of the family is a necessity in the education of a blind child.

More than 1,200 volunteer workers have assisted with the campus program, sent to Salem by 187 auxiliaries. This group serves as playground attendants and baby sitters.

The 1959 budget has been set at $2,495 to be used largely for special toys and equipment in the training program. Some auxiliaries earmark donations for special funds, dental care, psychiatric services, bus transportation.

The institute continues for three or four days with work sessions and opportunities given for parent conferences and exchange of ideas.

Many sightless children now find it possible to attend public schools after orientation at the institute.

A film on the institute was shown by the speaker. Others are planned as part of the public educational program.

Police Arrest KF Teenager

A 17-year-old girl gave city police a hard time Saturday night. The young woman first came to the attention of police when she was observed participating in a struggle at the intersection of Fifth and Main streets. When the patrol car stopped to investigate, the 17-year-old ran down Fifth toward Klamath Avenue while the other participant in the struggle identified himself as Henry Ketsdverer, Grants Pass. He said he had been defending himself against the young woman, who coveted his watch to the point that she was trying to tear it off his wrist.

The evidence seemed to officers to support Ketsdverer's story, so the patrol car set off after her, and she was apprehended at Sixth and Klamath.

At the police station, Ketsdverer said that the 17-year-old and another girl had attempted to "mug" him, and had taken a ring from him. The girl in custody said she had been operating alone, and returned the ring.

Police turned the young woman over to juvenile home authorities but she escaped from custody just as she was about to enter the home.

The girl was finally apprehended at Twelfth and Main streets Sunday evening and successfully lodged in the juvenile home.

Senate Group To Ponder Timber Figure

Senator Richard Neuberger today outlined the purposes of hearings by the Senate Indian Affairs subcommittee which will be held in Washington in March to give further study to the new reduced appraisal figure on Klamath Indian reservation timber stands. He is chairman of this subcommittee.

Sen. Neuberger said, "Hearings in Washington will determine the validity and authenticity of the appraisal just completed. The Indians should receive only the actual value of the resources on their reservation. In fairness to the Indians, the full value of those resources must be paid to Klamath tribal members. Such fairness will be the goal of our subcommittee hearings."

The reappraisal, just concluded, Neuberger stated, was made by three firms chosen by Secretary of Interior Fred Seaton and Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson. The three firms are Hammond, Jensen and Wallen of Oakland, Bigley and Feiss of Eugene, and Marshall and Stevens of Los Angeles.

It is significant, the release continued, that the Oregon firm placed by far the lowest value on the forest, the estimates of the California appraisers being considerably higher.

The Hammond estimate was for $91,965,880, that of the Bigley firm for only $82,356,760, and that of the Marshall and Stevens firm was $95,136,635. The average of the three new appraisals, as required by law, is set at $90,791,123.

A recent release by the Bureau of Indian Affairs points out that in February, 1958, the property of the tribe, including cash assets, was appraised at $119,758,029. Since then, however, cash distributions have been made which amount to more than $1,000 for each tribal member.

Since the original appraisal and the recomputations, the Bureau report states, timber market prices for ponderosa pine dropped about 15 per cent. That, they point out, contributed to the decrease in appraised values. Moreover, all three firms participating in the appraisal had lower final totals than the original estimate by the Western Timber Services of Arcata, California.

The appraisal covered 694,000 acres of forest land, 128,000 acres of open range, 23,421 acres of marsh, 1,245 acres of farm land and 14,524 acres of other miscellaneous lands.

The bureau also affirms that the new appraisal totals add to about $44,000 for each of the 1650 withdrawing tribal members, and also includes realization values of land that will be administered for the non-withdrawing members.
