1959-60 school year at Monday to 33 per cent. The increase for District 1, the elementary district, would be from $340 to $444, and for District 2, the high school district, from $1,050 to $1,365.

The "school employees" made two alternate proposals to the budget committees.

The first proposal called for establishment of a 40-hour week with Saturday and Sunday off. The proposal also called for the payment by the districts of the charges for the physical examinations which a new law requires bus drivers to undergo; these cost the drivers $26 each in 1958.

The music extras, that is, the music teachers devoting time outside of school hours to school-sponsored music activities, requested that the extra remuneration they receive for such extra time be increased by between 20

The alternate proposal was for a flat rate increase whereby all employees of both districts would be granted a $15 a month raise, at an estimated cost of $6,390 per year. This proposal also asked that the boards pay for the drivers' physicals, and called for reimbursement to the drivers of their 1958 expenses in this connection.

No spokesmen for the school districts' cooks appeared at the Monday meeting.

The educational secretaries contended themselves with presenting a resolution that "whatever consideration will be given other personnel, the secretaries would like to be given the same consideration."
