Cold Weather Driving Tips

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Drivers who deflate their tires a bit in the winter thinking this creates greater friction on icy roads have been warned that they are actually increasing their chances of skidding.

"Flattening" the tires, according to researchers of the Socony Mobil Oil Company, Inc., produces a "floating" effect the prevents them from getting a "good deep bite out of the snow or ice."

They recommend that "for winter driving, maintain your tires at the same or slightly higher pressure than you use in summer."

The researchers also said drivers who don't install snow tires until well into winter are making a mistake. "They are needed most during the early and late winter periods when mild weather intends to melt ice and snow" and the danger of skidding is greatest.

Other winter driving tips: In areas where winter strikes hard, it is best to have chains as well as snow tires. Check the voltage output of your battery at least once a month and the condition of your oil on every third visit to the service station.

JUROR'S BIRTHDAY

RUTLAND, Vt. (UPI) — While presiding at a tax evasion case, U.S. District Court Judge Ernest W. Gibson heard that one of the jurors was celebrating a birthday. After court adjourned, Gibson had deputy marshal Joseph Breen sing "Happy Birthday" to the entire jury.
