Trials Fair, Says Porter

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Charles O. Porter (D-Ore.) recalled charges of excesses by deposed Cuban dictator Batista Monday, and said he did not believe the Cuban government is returning to the "same old strong man situation."

Porter visited Cuba last week at the invitation of revolutionary leader Fidel Castro and the Cuban News Reporters Assn. He placed his report in Monday's Congressional Record.

"Whether Cuba's new climate of freedom lasts depends largely on Fidel Castro," Porter said. "Castro defends the necessity of fairness of the military trials of accused war criminals."

Porter said he did not believe there had been a "blood bath" in Cuba or that Castro has denied fair trials to persons charged with war crimes.

Acts Denied By Batista

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Fulgencio Batista says he never sanctioned atrocities in Cuba and believes any which took place were the work of the rebel leader Fidel Castro. The ousted Cuban dictator was interviewed at his refuge in Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, by Managing Editor George Beebe of the Miami Herald.

In a copyright article, Beebe quoted Batista as saying Castro had weakened Cuba's economy by driving out tourists, destroying highways and burning sugar cane fields.

Batista said he believes the atrocities of which his forces are accused were "the work of Castro and not my men. If he did take place, it was without my sanction."

Batista said he has no plans to seek a return to power.

Gee-Let Us Keep Our Beards, Say State Guards

WASHINGTON (AP)—The bristly problem of whether Oregon National Guardsmen should be permitted to grow beards in observance of Oregon's Centennial was tossed back to the local commanders Monday.

That puts it up to the clean-shaven Gov. Mark Hatfield and Adj. Gen. Thomas E. Rilea to decide. It was Rilea who ordered his men to appear at forthcoming federal inspections without beards.

After a protest by State Sen. Monroe Sweetland (D-Milwaukie), Pentagon officials thumbed their Army manuals and came up with Army Regulation 600-10: it's a command responsibility to see that men have a "neat and soldierly appearance."

So the National Guard Bureau said letting Oregon Guardsmen grow beards for the Centennial would be up to the local commanders.

Freight Rate Hike Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—Oregon railroads asked the Interstate Commerce Commission Monday to require the state to increase its intrastate rates for freight to match interstate freight rates.

The companies complained that while interstate rates went up 3 per cent last year, no adjustments were made in intrastate rates.

KUHS SOPHOMORES have announced their intention to turn in more money for the current March of Dimes drive than any other Klamath Union High School class. The KUHS students set for themselves a goal of $1,000 and at the start of this week, the sophomores were ahead. Shown selling chocolate last Saturday at 717 Main Street, on one of the class money-making projects are, from left, Camille Southard, Julie Anderson, Diane Wolter, Sharon Vincze, Ginger Leaming, Myrna Frewing, Tom Fredrickson, and Carl Brisson.

Conditions Simulated In Laboratory

By DELOS SMITH
UPI Science Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two scientists reproduced theoretical moon conditions inside laboratory bottles and came up with evidence that the moon's innumerable craters are blow-holes.

What was once blown through the holes was gas trapped beneath the moon's surface, the scientists reasoned, thus giving indirect support to the Russian scientist who recently reported seeing what he took to be a volcanic eruption on the moon.

Many scientists thought the Russian had made a mistake because volcanic eruptions we know on earth require extremely high temperatures beneath the surface, and the scientific evidence that the moon is a cold moon without any heat of its own, is all but overwhelming. But the evidence from the bottles showed you can have cold volcanic eruptions.

A. G. Gaydon and R. C. M. Learner supposed that the moon's surface is composed largely of a fine, powdery dust. There is enough evidence that that is so for some scientists to believe the earth rockets which eventually reach it, will disappear without a trace into a deep outer-layer of dust.

They supposed further that large quantities of gas were trapped under pressure beneath this outer layer. Then the scientists turned to their bottles which were partly filled with magnesium carbonate, a very light powder.

Suction was applied to draw out the air trapped in the powder. Blow holes appeared on the surface. These were photographed and when the pictures were compared to pictures of the moon's craters, the resemblance was so close it was hard to tell one set of pictures from the other.

Gaydon and Learner repeated these experiments in bottles partly filled with such dry powders as sand, salt, and magnesium oxide, any or all of which could exist

Roseburg Mayor Sentencing Set

ROSEBURG, Ore. (AP)—Roseburg Mayor Arlo Jacklin, convicted of possessing and operating a game of chance, will be sentenced Wednesday.

District Judge Warren Woodruff found Jacklin guilty Monday of a charge of giving $16.60 to a Roseburg High School boy who won 332 games on a pinball machine in the mayor's bowling alley.

The maximum penalty for possessing and operating a game of chance is 90 days in jail, a $250 fine, or both.

Fights, Legal, Physical Not New To 'Bama Judge

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Former Circuit Judge George C. Wallace learned how to swap punches as a teen-age golden glove.

He earned a name for himself by winning the featherweight Golden Gloves title two years in a row.

Last year he slugged it out with Atty. Gen. John Patterson only to lose in the Democratic runoff primary for the governorship.

Now the "little judge" is swapping legal punches with the Civil Rights Commission and the Justice Department in Washington.

Political observers predict Wallace's defiance—which could put him in jail—could win him the governorship in 1963.

Wallace was born 39 years ago in the small town of Clio in Barbour County, located in the heart of Alabama's cotton-growing black belt. His father died when he was 13.

He began campaigning for the governorship right after he graduated from the University of Alabama law school where he was a friend and classmate of U.S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. Upon graduation Wallace began driving a state dump truck for 30 cents an hour.

"My life has not been an easy one," says Wallace. "We never had a silver spoon in our family. I can remember when I was going to the university I had to sell old clothes and coat hangers to collect $4.50 to help meet tuition expenses."

Wallace was discharged from the Air Force in 1945 with spinal meningitis after seeing combat against the Japanese. He was appointed assistant attorney general in 1946 and later was elected to the Legislature.

The 5-foot, 7-inch, 150-pounder became the "hantam judge" of the Third Judicial Circuit in 1952. He was elected to the Democratic National Convention in 1956 and he fought against civil rights legislation while at Chicago. He also appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee in opposition to the bill which created the Civil Rights Commission in 1957 and threatened to jail any FBI agents who tried to take records from his circuit.

SENTENCED TO DEATH
LYONS, France (UPI)—A French court Monday sentenced five Algerians to death for the 1957 murder of a fellow Algerian in a brawl over nationalist politics. The victim was Tahar Aissani, who was found dead on March 2, 1957, in a field near here.

23 Years Ago

Monday, January 27, 1936—Charley DeLap braved snow drifts in the Round Lake country to visit Klamath Falls from his farm Wednesday. DeLap called on the county court to discuss road work. The snow, he said, is at an extreme depth in the Round Lake region.

Tuesday, January 28, 1936—Mr. and Mrs. Emil Albrecht returned on Monday evening from a four day's trip to Spokane, driving up by way of the Dalles and Pasco and returning by the same route.

Wednesday, January 29, 1936—The Elks' Alturas trip, scheduled by special train for January 30, will be the chief feature of the meeting of the lodge. Those to participate include John Houston, master of ceremonies, Claude Davis, Jack Franey, Karl Urauhart, Keno Wright, Bob Thompson, Cliff Hogue, Greydon Broyles, and Carroll Hansen.

Thursday, January 30, 1936—To Percy Murray go the honors as Klamath Falls' outstanding young man for the year 1935. The 35-year-old creamery firm executive, who is chairman of the high school board and active in many other civic enterprises, was announced as winner of the award at a dinner sponsored by the junior chamber of commerce at the Willard Hotel last night. A gold key was presented to Murray as symbol of the honor accorded him. Frank Jenkins made the presentation.

Friday, January 31, 1936—"The 21st anniversary of the founding of Kiwanis International was observed by the local Kiwanis Club during the week of January 19 to 25, said Henry Perkins, president of the club. The program placed emphasis on the valuable civic betterment and welfare work the service organization has been doing for many years on international good will and citizenship.

Saturday, February 1, 1936—The Friendship Club met Friday at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. R. D. McGhehey at Riverside Addition. The regular business meeting was held, followed by a social hour.
