FAREWELLS were given to Lt. Col. and Mrs. Raymond A. Thornton by officers of Kingsley Field and approximately 20 civilian friends on Sunday evening, January 25, at a cocktail party in the Officers Club. The Thorntons with their children, Linda and Bill, left Wednesday for Hamilton Field. Above, left to right, Col. Jack Williams, Mrs. Thornton, Lieutenant Colonel Thornton and Mrs. Williams.

ANDREW LONEY, center, president of the Community Concert Association, chats with Mrs. Fred Ehlers and Ross Ragland, both vice presidents, at the buffet dinner honoring the Manns. These three, among many others, have given much time through the years to make the concert series a success. Steve Stone has been named as the new publicity chairman.

SNAPPED at the library tea were Mrs. E. A. Valentine, left, and her mother, Mme. Sophie Moskoff. Mme. Moskoff arrived in the United States December 22 from her home in Paris, France, where she owns and operates Manufacture Moskoff, a firm which makes beautiful knitted materials used by French designers and is also exported. It was in France that her daughter, Lily met and married her husband, Captain Valentine, who is presently stationed at Kingsley Field Air Base.

SUSAN AND MARILYN MUELLER of Portland, dressed in gowns of long ago, watch as their grandmother, Mrs. M. E. Cooper, adjusts the bonnet of a mannikin dressed in a wedding blouse and skirt from the collection of Mrs. Bert Thomas. Mrs. Cooper's spinning wheel and a doll and chair belonging to Mrs. Jack Warrick were a part of the parlor scene of the 1859 period set on the stage of the library club for the benefit tea last Saturday.

MRS. W. DON MILLER, right, and Mrs. Marshall Cornett enjoy old photos in an album belonging to Mrs. Bert Thomas and shown at the library tea. Mrs. Miller, wearing a blouse brought to Oklahoma Valley near Dorris over 100 years ago and a cameo brooch loaned to her by Addie May Nixon, was general chairman of the unusual affair. Mrs. Cornett was in charge of the cards played during the afternoon. A 150-year-old Ironstone china soup tureen holds the bouquet of flowers on the table covered with a lovely old handmade cloth.

POSED for the photographer are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Slater, at left, Mrs. Zeagler and Capt. Quitman Zeagler, assistant director of operations. Captain Zeagler flew the first jet plane to be assigned to the Air Base last week.
