He farmed as a young man with his father and uncle Mart Real of Langell Valley where he became interested in the handling of livestock.

LEGION HALL SITE

McCloud-Cloude Robert American Legion Post 92 said negotiations between the Post officers and the McCloud River Lumber Company officials had resulted in the selection of a site for a new Legion hall. The site agreed upon, should members agree to the program, is to be near the McCloud river. Tentative plans call for a wood structure with a 3,000 square foot floor space. Robert Leatherman is building committee chairman.

Frugality Charge Hurlled At Space Administration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of the House Space Committee charged today that the National Space Administration has taken a penny-pinching approach to the interplanetary space race.

High-ranking Democratic and Republican members said they felt certain the nation's space program could be speeded up despite space administration claims that it is moving ahead as rapidly as possible.

Members particularly expressed skepticism of statements by top space administration officials that there are no more projects they profitably could spend money on if they had it.

The statements came as the committee summoned Sen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, and other top Air Force officials for the second day of its hearings.

with testimony from space administration director T. Keith Glennan and deputy director Hugh L. Dryden. They outlined space program goals over the next 10 to 15 years.

Committee Chairman Overton Brooks (D-La.) told United Press International he has "not been happy with the progress of the nation's space program" and what he heard from Glennan and Dryden "bolstered his feeling."

However, he said he wanted to reserve judgment of their conviction that they couldn't move faster until he heard from space experts in the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Rep. James G. Fulton (R-Pa.) said the "national space program needs a real push." He said he hoped the committee hearings would "awaken the public to the need."

Rep. B. F. Sisk (D-Calif.) said "there is no question whatsoever" that the space program already is being held up by shortages of money, personnel or equipment.

Death Penalty Abolition Opposed By Law Officials

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Law enforcement officers in California's largest cities said today they intend to fight against bills in the Legislature to abolish capital punishment.

District attorneys and chiefs of police in Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, Sacramento and Alameda County vigorously notified they will oppose severely the McMillan-Farr bills to do away with the death penalty.

The measures already have been introduced by Assemblyman Lester A. McMillan (D-Los Angeles) and Sen. Fred Farr (D-Carmel), both attorneys. McMillan said he intends to set his bill for public hearing in late February or early March.

A United Press International survey of the men whose job it is to apprehend and convict criminals showed very little sympathy for abolition of capital punishment.

On the other hand, Democratic Director of Corrections Richard A. McGee told UPI he takes no position on the issue as a public official. But he said as a "long-time student and observer of capital punishment" he believes the "weight of logic and experience lies on the side of abolition or at least a moratorium to test the validity of the contention that it does in fact serve as a deterrent."

Offsetting the views of the governor and McGee were statements from such veteran law enforcement officers as Police Chief W. H. Parker of Los Angeles, District Attorney J. Frank Coakley of Alameda County, District Attorney Don Keller and Sheriff Don Cox of Sacramento, and San Francisco's Chief Tom Cahill and District Attorney Tom Lynch.

"I am very much opposed to any law that would abolish capital punishment on an unqualified basis," said Keller. "I feel such a law would be ill advised."

Cox joined with Sacramento District Attorney John M. Price in an open letter to the state's three state legislatures.

"Such a drastic change in the law without a complete study of the problem may very well invite disaster to the state and the ever increasing efforts to combat violent crime," they said.

Coakley, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the California Peace Officers Association, said his organization opposed bills to outlaw capital punishment two years ago and will do so again. "I spent 10 years in homicide department," said Cahill, "and I am satisfied that in cases where capital punishment has been used, it was fair and just."

Lynch, who once served as an assistant district attorney under Brown, said he favors capital punishment but "I believe any bill to outlaw it should be submitted to the voters."

Parker has voted on record numerous times in the opposition to doing away with the death penalty and said he is against the McMillan-Farr bills.

McMillan admitted his measure is running into more opposition this time than it did two years ago when the Senate voted 31-9 against Farr's moratorium bill and a McMillan bill to restrict the use of capital punishment squeaked by the Assembly 43-39 but died in a Senate committee.

"Sooner or later California" he said, "will reach the point where it has abolished the death penalty. I hope the Legislature will do it this year."

Police Seek Bay Killer

DALY CITY (UPI) — San Mateo County authorities today sought a killer with a "terrific" for a landscape gardener who supposedly had no enemies.

The bullet-riddled body of August Norry, 28, was found Monday on its back, arms outstretched, on a lonely hill just south of the San Francisco city limits.

Police found the body four miles from where the victim's blood-spattered car was discovered Sunday night in a lovers' lane.

Sheriff Earl Whitmore said the assailant pumped 10 bullets into Norry's body with a .38 caliber pistol, probably Sunday afternoon. The body was dragged from the car, which was then abandoned at the lovers' lane.

The victim's wife of 18 months, Darlene, 20, said Norry left home Sunday morning to work on a landscaping job. She and Norry's three brothers were unable to explain the crime, pointing out the victim had "no enemies."

The sheriff said he was convinced Norry had at least one enemy.
