

TICKET SELLERS for Thursday's dinner to raise funds to send the Klamath Union High School orchestra to a music educators' conference in Seattle in March include orchestra members Judy Gregory, left, and Charlotte Book. The girls were temporarily "sold out" when this picture was taken, but they have some tickets to sell now: $1.50 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Proceeds from the dinner, which will be held in the KU cafeteria, will virtually all go to the project, thanks to the generosity of local merchants.

Unique Plan By Writer May Be Aid To All U.S.

Everyone In Agreement; New Paris Line Wearable

By PAT HERMAN
United Press International
PARIS (UPI)—Press critics, department store buyers and even the only people who have yet worn the new Paris spring line—the mannequins themselves—agreed unanimously today that it is the most wearable in years.

Their reaction to this year's collection was one of relief and jubilation that women finally will be allowed to show their natural shapes.

Sacks, trapezes and artificially high waists were things of the past until next season anyway as every designer in this fashion capital paraded his own version of the natural female silhouette.
