That's My Deduction

The Government withholds from me
What it declares my tax to be;
And it withholds a little bit
For my retirement benefit;
My firm, not wanting me too fat,
Withholds for this, withholds for that;
But they don't even reach the shoulder
Of my espoused, the Great Withholder!

—Dick Emmons

If it weren't for modern home appliances, you'd never have the time to keep them in repair.

—Franklin P. Jones in Quote

"Do you know what today is?" asked the wife as she saw her husband off to work.

Only for a moment was he startled. "Of course, I do," he said sweetly. "I remember." To himself, he sighed in relief; he had forgotten the date of his wedding anniversary, but now he was determined to correct the oversight. When he returned home that night, he brought his wife candy, flowers, and some jewelry. She was overjoyed. "Now, dear," he said smugly, "you see I did remember what day this is."

"Yes, you did," said the wife, "and I want you to know that you've made it the happiest Ground-Hog Day of my life!"

America is a country infested with dictators—all under six years of age.

If She Were Only Right Once in a While!

"I'll just invite Mother down for the week end. You two can get along for a couple of days at least."

"Well, it won't do any harm to ask for a raise. The worst they can say is 'No.'"

"Why wait until payday to eat out? The children never eat more than a hamburger anyway."

"But you won't look out of place. All the men are going to wear tuxedos."

"Why not lend my brother $50? He's not going to leave town!"

"If you'd start shoveling the snow off the sidewalk, I'm sure it would shame Junior into coming out and helping you."

—George C. Schlegel

The More the Merrier

Though stories Mom and Pop enjoy
Most likely feature "girl meets boy,"
Their teen-age daughter most enjoys
The kind in which it's "girl meets boys."

—S. Omar Barker

Two youngsters were sitting on a curb, mulling over life. "Do you believe in the devil?" asked one.

"Naw," the other answered with deep feeling. "Same as Santa Claus—it's just your father."

Vive la Valentine!

by Reamer Keller

"I like beautiful women, but this time of the year they give me a pain in the neck."

"I reminded him it was Valentine Day and he sent me out to buy a present for his wife."

"I was sitting here eating out my heart."

"I've been celebrating Valentine Day."

"What did you expect? A valentine?"
