TV Tube Turns Into Fish Bowl

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI)—Television shop foreman Armand Caggiano has developed what he calls a "tele-fishin'" set, an aquarium made from an old 24-inch television tube.

"Took me six months to figure out how to start," Caggiano said, "but only about four hours to do most of the actual hard work."

He said the unusual fish bowl has many advantages: It magnifies the fish, and, illuminated by a small electric bulb, it has a "beautiful silvery radiance."

Caggiano said he did a lot of research before learning how to cut the tube so it wouldn't fall apart. "I found I could de-vacuum it by letting air in very slowly," he said.

"But it could be a dangerous operation and I don't advise anyone to try it unless he has expert advice."
