KU Teachers To Attend College Meet

Klamath Union High School will be one of 50 Oregon high schools participating February 14 at Oregon State College in a series of principal-student interviews designed to point up strong and weak points in high school preparation for college and OSC's orientation program for new students.

Under the program, the high school principals or student advisers have individual, voluntary interviews with their former students concerning their progress and problems in college and their "look-back" appraisal of their high school training.

Andy Knudsen and Francis Scapple will represent Klamath Union High School. Student chairman in charge of arranging the interviews on campus will be Michael Probst of 1615 Portland Street. He is a freshman in the school of science.

The principal-student interviews were started seven years ago by Oregon State College as part of an evaluation of its counseling and orientation program for new students. The number of schools participating has increased each year.

Following the interviews, principals meet with college leaders and review comments and recommendations of the students. Findings in past years have brought several improvements and changes in some aspects of both the college's "new student" program and the college preparatory programs in the high schools, according to Dallas W. Norton, OSC personnel coordinator, who heads up the program.

In addition to the interviews, this year's program will include talks on the new OSC honors degree program in science that will include entering freshmen beginning next fall; reports on selective admission requirements; and a review of offerings in the school of engineering as an aid to principals in advising their high school seniors on engineering course offerings, requirements and career possibilities.

Siskiyou College To Be Renamed

DORRIS—The new Siskiyou Junior College will be known as the College of the Siskiyou, omitting the word, junior. The name was decided upon by the board of trustees of the Siskiyou County Junior College district at a recent meeting in Weed.

Opening date for the school was set for September 8, 1959, with the term to run until June 10, 1960.

The college will offer courses in art, education, engineering, foreign languages, English and literature, home economics, health, library science, music, mathematics, philosophy, psychology, physical education, biological sciences, speech and social sciences.

The trustees agreed on a salary schedule and authorized Dr. M. J. Greenshield, president of the college, to take bids on the printing of a college catalog which will include the courses offered, statement of goals and policies, and a brief history of the college founded on January 8, 1957.

A MOSELEY SORTWELL LUMBER SORTER is being installed at the Ralph L. Smith Lumber Company Mill in Mount Shasta by the Irvington Machine Works of Portland. The automatic machine will sort, according to length and width, 360 board feet per minute and stack in 26 different combinations. Seven men are replaced by the automaton and they will be used to expedite the flow of lumber to the big 326-foot installation. Robert Kohn, superintendent of the Smith Company, states that more lumber at the same cost can be handled by the mill.

PHS Hops Off Panic Button

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Public Health Service (PHS) said today it did not intend to "push the panic button" in warning that the influenza outbreaks in Europe probably would spread to the United States.

Officials insisted that if any outbreaks occur they will be nothing like the Asian flu epidemic which broke out in the fall of 1957.

Legion Posts Plan Caucus

MALIN — A district caucus of American Legion Posts in District 4 will be held in Malin on Saturday afternoon, February 28. Plans for the conference were made at the regular meeting of the Malin American Legion Post No. 24 held Monday evening, February 2.

Special visitors at the February meeting were Tom Wheeler, District 4 commander and Wally Chapman, district chairman of ceremonies, both of Lakeview. Posts that will be attending the February 28 caucus are Klamath Falls, Merrill, Lakeview and Malin. The meeting will be held from 2:30 to 5 p.m. in the Malin Community Hall.

Jim Conroy, commander of the Malin Post, introduced Sherman Waldrip of Merrill who talked to the group about the proposed trade of Tulana farm lands for government owned lands.

Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney Wednesday alerted the nation's health officers that the European outbreak probably would hit this country.

PHS officials said there is no present plan to urge the public in general to get another round of flu shots. Dr. Burney, however, recommended that persons in "special risk groups" such as the aged, the chronically ill and pregnant women — persons in whom a secondary infection could be dangerous — should consult their physicians on the need for a flu vaccination.

The health chief also urged inoculations against flu for hospital staffs and industrial poor service workers whose sudden mass absenteeism could cause a serious disruption of work.

More than 20 million persons in this country were stricken in the 1957 epidemic. It hit its peak in

Pupil Plans To Exhibit Slide Show

LAKEVIEW — Judy Hanson of Clatskanie, Oregon, International Farm Youth Exchange delegate to Finland, will be in Lake County Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week and will present a colored slide program at various schools, civic groups, and at a public meeting Wednesday, February 18, at 8 p.m. in St. Patrick's Parish Hall.

As an IFYE, she spent five months in various parts of Finland living with different farm families.

She attended the Finnish 4-H festival at Virolahiti, not far from Russia. She also spent some time in Lapland. One of her host fathers was a Rotary member.

The International Farm Youth Exchange is a program for rural young people aimed at developing better understanding among people of the world. Under the IFYE program rural young people, who are single and between the ages of 20 and 30, spend between four and six months living and working on farms in other countries, and in exchange, farm youths from other countries do the same in the United States.

Although the IFYE program is conducted by the National 4-H Club Foundation and the extension service, no government funds are used in exchange of delegates. Farm organizations, 4-H clubs and civic groups contribute funds to the program.

In the eight years that Oregon has taken part in the program, 28 youths have visited 22 foreign countries. In exchange for each Oregon youth sent to another country, two rural young people from other countries came to live for two or three months on Oregon farms.

A family acts as host to an IFYE for about one month, teaching their newly acquired "son" or "daughter" the American customs while learning the ways and habits of those in other countries. Farm families interested in being hosts to IFYE young people may make application through the county extension office.
