GRANGE NEWS

KLAMATH COUNTY POMONA
Much business was considered, and interesting reports made when the Pomona Grange met with a large attendance Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Shasta View Grange Hall. All of the 10 granges in our county, with the exception of the new one at Upper Klamath Lake, were represented.

The ritualistic work was exemplified by the officers, and the flag was presented by Rosa Meeker, Ceres; Bill Novotny, assistant steward; and Ada Barlen, lady assistant steward pro tem. Opening prayer was said by the chaplain, Aletha Macken.

Reports were given by the officers, and all the subordinate masters present gave interesting reports from their granges. A number of our members were reported sick, and our wishes for speedy recoveries went to them. The conference was discussed; as yet, no definite date has been set for it. A delicious banquet was served at the noon hour by the Shasta View Grange, host, and Fort Klamath Grange, co-host.

Immediately after the banquet, Lecturer Mayme Camnock presented her program, with a special opening prayer by Chaplain Macken. The "Happy Birthday" was sung by the group for Lillian Thomas. After this, the program was turned over to the youth chairman, Guy Galetti, and he had a hilarious program of games and contests in which all present took part.

The attendance prize was won by Fort Klamath Grange; it was donated by Ron Phair of the Big Y Market. A great big "thanks" goes to him from all the grangers for these prizes, as he has been donating them now at every meeting for the past year.

As Master Francis Flowers will be unable to attend the state grange session at Baker in June, Gtts Osburn of Bly was nominated to go.

The meeting adjourned at a late hour and the next meeting will be an all-day session on May 9 at host.
