Mexico President Mateos Shied Away From Politics

United Press International

Adolfo Lopez Mateos, chosen president of Mexico by an overwhelming majority in a record vote July 6, 1958, once declined an opportunity to become a deputy candidate because he felt he was "inept for politics."

On that occasion, when he was director of the Scientific and Literary Institute of Toluca, he told friends who wanted to draft him to run that he "didn't feel inclined toward politics, and preferred the tranquil life of the scholar to the hazards of politics."

He later relented, however, to run for senator from his native state of Mexico. After one term, he was appointed labor minister by President Ruiz Cortines, and in November of 1957 was nominated by the powerful Revolutionary Institutional Party (PRI) as presidential candidate. He was inaugurated on Dec. 1, 1958.

The handsome President is considered a brilliant orator and is respected for his logic, his conciliatory and administrative ability, and his level-headedness. Reputedly, he has never lost his temper.

He has surrounded himself with a brilliant array of cabinet members including Foreign Secretary Manuel Tello, who was Mexico's ambassador to Washington during the Ruiz Cortines administration and Education Secretary Jaime Torres Bodet, former head of UNESCO.

One of Lopez Mateos' first acts was a cabinet reorganization to simplify and streamline the government. Politically, he has vowed to follow the centralist tendencies of the Ruiz Cortines regime. No great changes are foreseen in Mexican foreign or domestic policies.

He has said he welcomes foreign capital, provided it is subject to Mexican law and receives no preferential consideration. He has vowed to expand public works, particularly school-building, potable water projects and communications in the provinces, and to continue to implement the agrarian land reform established by the revolution.

BB, Nikita To Hold Meet

PARIS (UPI)—A French movie-maker today disclosed the prospect of a meeting between Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and French "sex kitten" Brigitte Bardot.

The meeting, however, has nothing to do with the cold war between East and West. Miss Bardot is going to Moscow in June for the world premiere of her new film "Babette Goes To War."

Producer Raoul J. Levy said Miss Bardot probably would meet with Khrushchev during her visit.

The Paris press said Miss Bardot may prove "the most effective guided missile" that could be sent to Moscow.

Only one snag, Miss Bardot said. She hates caviar.

Gaming Lively At Cuba Casinos

HAVANA (AP)—The action was lively at eight Havana casinos which were allowed to reopen Thursday night.

The tables in six luxury hotels and two nightclubs were given 30-day permits by Fidel Castro's revolutionary regime. The rebels closed down all gambling when they took over.

Casinos which catered to small change players are to remain closed. Authorities say they don't want poorer Cubans losing their money gambling.
