

Teachers Plan No Request For Present Salary Boost

No request for an increase in teachers' salaries will be made this year to the budget committee of the Klamath County School District, members of the district board of education learned at their regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon. However, spokesmen for the teachers' salary committee did urge members of the board and the budget committee to give consideration to the institution of a medical plan for teachers.

The hearing of the teachers' request was one of the high points of Thursday's busy agenda. During the meeting, the board also granted Superintendent Carroll Howe authorization to advertise for bids on three school buses, opened two other sets of bids, and took various other actions, including the passage of three resolutions asking for federal funds to be used for school buildings.

The board also reelected Earl Wilson, Malin, and Dave Campbell, Bly, to three-year terms on the budget committee. It set 1:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 12, for the first meeting of the committee to consider the 1959-60 budget.

The meeting began with passage of resolutions for federal aid. The first two were based on Public Law 815, 81st Congress, which authorizes federal aid for building classrooms serving dependents of armed service personnel. One asked for $228,000 assistance for construction of a 12-room elementary school near the Kingsley Field housing area. The other asked $73,283.94 to cover the construction of four additional classrooms at Henley High School.

The third resolution asked the Congress for matching funds to help construct a new high school at Chiloquin. Superintendent Howe was instructed to send copies of the resolution to Representative Al Ullman and to Senators Wayne Morse and Richard Neuberger.

The board adopted, "subject to state requirements" a 1959-60 calendar calling for 179 days of school beginning on Wednesday, September 9, and ending on Friday, June 3, 1960. The restrictive clause was inserted because state standards may call for 180 days of school in the 1959-60 years.

Bids from eight petroleum companies were opened. Low bidder for supplying gasoline to the school district was Associated-Tidewater, which made a quotation of 19.99 cents a gallon for regular gasoline in the stipulated quantities. Low bidder for 10-30 oil was the Standard Oil Company, with a bid of 89.5 cents a gallon. Associated-Tidewater was again low bidder for standard weight oil, at 58 cents a gallon. These low bids were accepted by the board.

There were seven sealed bids submitted for the construction of four classrooms at Henley School.

Club Dinner Delayed Again

Another postponement is announced by the Oregon State Mothers Club for its spring dinner meeting to hear Dr. Dan Poling, dean of men at Oregon State College, according to Mrs. Robert A. Thompson, president of the local club.

An original date of March 3 had been set and confirmed with Dr. Poling who was scheduling a March 4 date at Medford. The March 3 time conflicted with the visit of the American Red Cross bloodmobile visit here and some other activities so the date was moved to March 5.

A check with the Elks Club activity calendar revealed March 3 to be the date of the annual craft feed.

Mrs. Thompson stated that the Oregon State Mothers Club is now planning to hold the dinner in April, at a date to be determined in the near future. All OSC alumni, parents of students attending OSC and prospective students and their parents will be invited to the dinner to hear Dr. Poling.

The master of ceremonies was Everett Peery, Lawrence Campbell gave the invocation, and the host troop and post presented the colors, led the flag salute, the scout oath and laws, and the benediction.

In The Day's News

month later. It arrived first in Portland and several days more were required to relay it to Territorial Governor Whiteaker at his farm in Lane county.

This leads Charley Stanton, editor of the Roseburg News-Register to comment: "Today we're inclined to accept news for granted. We get news by our newspapers, by radio, by television. From the furthest parts of the world it is flashed to us in moments. We complain if our newspaper is ten minutes late or if our radio or television is fuzzy. Can you imagine one of today's characters who couldn't get news for a MONTH?"

A thought in closing: Do you reckon that in these days we get SO MUCH NEWS that we can no longer find the time to read it intelligently and digest it thoroughly so that we may understand what it really means? I sometimes wonder.

Court Processing Begins; Six Prisoners Meet Judge

Six prisoners paraded before Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg Friday as court proceedings against them were initiated.

Attorneys were appointed for all six men.

Two prisoners chose to have their cases heard by the grand jury, which District Attorney Arthur A. Beddoe has called for 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Two other prisoners waived grand jury action and are to enter pleas before the court at 10 a.m. Tuesday, and the remaining two chose to advise the court of their wishes next Tuesday.

Those who waived grand jury action and are to enter pleas are William Henry Leland, 47, Pawhuska, Oklahoma, and Samuel Trujillo, 36, Williamson, New York, both of whom are charged with larceny by embezzlement.

The men represented by Attorney David Card appointed by the court, are accused of stealing from their ex-employer George McKee and Company, a 1951 car, plus tools, a jack and motor oil, on November 27. They drove the car to Yuma, Arizona, where they were arrested and subsequently returned to Klamath County.

Card asked time to discuss the case, and is to enter pleas Tuesday morning.

A request to await grand jury action was entered for Owen Joseph McGinley, 47, Centralia, Pennsylvania, by his court-appointed attorney, Robert Kerr.

McGinley, also an ex-employee of the McKee excavation contracting firm, is accused of stealing an electric welding torch from a company tool shed. He was returned from Yuma at the same time sheriff's deputies brought back Leland and Trujillo.

Other cases heard: Vernon Joseph Silva, 41, 615 Adams Street, Klamath Falls, accused of forgery involving a worthless $102 check cashed at Fran's Food Store, 147 East Main Street, February 4.

Silva, who volunteered his presence to sheriff's deputies in Eureka, California, and waived extradition here, asked for time to advise the court and was told to reappear at 10 a.m. Tuesday. His court-appointed attorney is Richard C. Beesley.

Officers said Silva admitted stealing a check protector from Henris Roofing Company and a typewriter from Shaw Stationery, which he used for writing checks. His information helped Sheriff Red Britton haul the items from a car last week.

Edmund Mason Arterburn, 31, Eugene, charged with forgery involving a worthless $20 check passed at the Pines Tavern across from the courthouse in mid-January. Arterburn's court-appointed attorney, P. K. Puckett, asked to await grand jury action.

William M. Dittrick, 46, Anaheim, California, charged with obtaining money by false pretenses through a $15 check cashed at Murphy's Club and Restaurant in Merrill last June, asked through his court-appointed attorney, Freeman C. Murray, for additional time. He, too, is to report at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

The board authorized the calling for bids on one 48-passenger school bus and two "pushes" (73 to 79 passengers). It also heard a report from Seely, but took no action, on the possible cost of constructing a bus shop building.

Auto Wreck Injures One Near Weed

WEED — One person was hospitalized and the driver of the car in which she was riding was cited for driving without due caution as a result of a head-on collision on the Eason Club hill near Weed about 5:30 p.m. Friday.

Mrs. Josephine Cunial Dozier, 38, of Weed, with a load of Redding students, lost control of her northbound vehicle and it spun around in front of a southbound car driven by William Ewart Sterwood, 53, of Vancouver, B.C.

Wanda Ann Warner, 18, of McCloud, a passenger in the Dozier car, had major injuries including a broken leg. She was riding in the front seat and rescuers had to pry open the door to extricate the girl. She is in the Mount Shasta Community Hospital.

The other two passengers in the Dozier car, Nadine Munson, 18, of Callahan and her cousin, Robert Munson, 18, of Etna, were uninjured.

When a collision seemed certain, Sherwood told officers he thrust out his arm to prevent his wife's bumping the windshield. The impact threw her against his arm and her nose was injured when it struck his elbow. She was treated at the Mount Shasta Community Hospital.

The other two passengers in the Dozier car, Nadine Munson, 18, of Callahan and her cousin, Robert Munson, 18, of Etna, were uninjured.

Mishaps Snarl Highway Traffic

WEED — Traffic on Highway 97, about eight and a half miles north of Weed was tied up for more than an hour Friday evening as a result of a series of highway mishaps.

The only person injured was William Mize, 28, southbound from Portland to San Francisco, who banged his teeth into the steering wheel when his car failed to stop when he applied the brakes and plowed into the rear of another southbound car. Driver of the second car was William Howell, 21, of Opportunity, Washington.

Lee told officers he had been behind the Howell car for some time and was not aware it had stopped until too late to slow his car gradually on the icy highway. The accident occurred about 6:30 p.m.

Howell had stopped because the highway ahead was blocked. Officers said a woman driver had gone into a ditch while following a snowplow. A loaded hay truck had attempted to go around her stalled car and the driver lost control and the truck tipped over on the highway.

Lee was taken to the Mount Shasta Community Hospital for treatment.

KUHS Girl Begins Tour

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fifty high school students begin a four-day tour here Sunday which will be highlighted by naming the national winner of the Voice of Democracy contest.

The teenagers represent winners of contests in all 49 states and the District of Columbia.

The state winners include: Melba Philles, Fairbanks, Alaska; Shawna Robison, Boise, Idaho; Michael Bowler, Helena, Mont.; Karen Mode, Klamath Falls, Ore.; and Ed Kaufman, Veradale, Wash.

High school students throughout the country competed in the annual contest this fall by writing and delivering orally three to five minute scripts on the theme, "I Speak For Democracy."

Selection of the top winner will be made by a panel of 12 judges from previous recordings of the 50 state champions.

Granny, Truck Reach Impasse
BALTIMORE (AP)—Grandma Thompson and the oil company settled back to a weekend of waiting Saturday.

The impasse finds things just about the same as when Mrs. James F. Thompson "impounded" an oil delivery truck Thursday.

She said she didn't like the way commercial vehicles were indiscriminately using her driveway. And she wanted to make the yard safe for her five granddaughters, who moved into the place Friday.

The irate grandmother pulled the ignition keys out of the truck as the driver was making a delivery next door. Then she parked her own automobile across the driveway so the oil firm couldn't pull its truck out.

G. W. Benson, an official of the fuel firm, said, "I'm really sorry about the whole thing." But he determined with plenty of trucks, the company will just sweat it out.
