Do-It-Yourself Frame For Swim Pool Installation

Now even swimming pools have been made possible for doing-it-yourself. Newly available on the market is a prefabricated unit that puts a personal swimming pool within price range of almost every home owner.

Basic principle is a frame of wood panels for assembly. Processed with wood preservative, these panels cut costs of pool installation drastically.

Five simple steps are involved, beginning with the bolting together of lumber sidepanels into position.

In step two, the bottom of the pool is graded from 3 1/2 feet at each end to 7 1/2 feet at the center for diving purposes.

Steps three, four and five are fitting a vinyl plastic liner, connecting pump and filter, and back-filling pool sides.

The pre-fab kit contains all parts and fittings for the pool, including pump, filter and a supply of chemicals. When installed the pool measures 16 by 32 feet, twice the size of the average living room.

The kit is easily obtainable through local department stores, swimming pool dealers, home improvement dealers or mail order houses.

PRE-FAB swimming pool has lumber panels as its basic structure. Twice the size of an average living room, it's equally at home in back yard or estate lawn. Pre-fab construction keeps the cost very modest.

IDEAL FOR KITCHEN

Special sit-down sinks, low-height "plan" desks for reading or telephoning, island or peninsula serving and eating bars, counter-height pass-throughs, hanging glass-door wall cabinets, or base and wall cabinet dividers with exposed shelves, all add glamorous touches to the kitchen area.

More And More Aluminum Items Are Used In Home Modernization

From siding and screening to windows and wall tile, more and more components made of aluminum offer the homeowner streamlined styling with the added bonus of minimum maintenance.

A popular example of products for "care-free" living is the aluminum window. Already established as a prime building item, the aluminum window is a genuine work-saving, worry-free product.

One company has introduced an electrically operated awning window. A "flip of the switch" brings summer living indoors. With more and more homeowners switching to this type of window, opening and shutting windows by hand, may soon be antiquated.

Permanent claspboard siding, made of aluminum has a permanent finish that stays new.

A LOUVERED SUNROOF, is one of the simplest and most rewarding of "do-it-yourself" projects, adding a custom-built touch to the patio. Family parties held in the shade are always more comfortable and more enjoyable.

Swimming Pools Now Within Reach Of Average

Every home is a summer resort right on the "Lake front" when there's a swimming pool in the back yard.

Now, with the wide range of back yard pools available, the whole family can "get into the swim" when the mercury soars.

Anytime the weather or spirit moves them, the family can go swimming without a thought about whether Dad has the car or if Mom is available to drive and supervise them. Dad will like it too, after a hot sticky day at work!

Family fun is the guiding principle behind the design of new backyard pools, be it a 20 x 40 ft. excavated model or a 9-ft. diameter portable type.

They are economical in initial cost, installation and maintenance, and put the private swimming pool within the reach of every home-owner.

More elaborate excavated models are now common-place in many neighborhoods. Their simple construction is one of the reasons for this new popularity.

Homart excavated pools sold by Sears, Roebuck and Co., for example, are made of common cement block or poured cement sides with a sand base and then lined with a pre-fabricated liner made of the new Krene plastic.

This plastic is ultra durable, yet soft and pliable to protect little arms and legs from scratches. Together with an effective and simple automatic filtration system these excavated permanent pools need never be emptied once they are filled.

They can be used as a winter skating rink as well and could well become the center of the year-round family playground.

How's about growing a real old-fashioned vegetable garden this year? It's easy to do.

The best of end-of-winter-early-spring crops are the cabbage family, Swiss chard, lettuce, carrots, parsnips, radishes, turnips, endive, spinach and garden peas. Once you eat your own-grown vegetables, the garden will be an annual thing!

Use Color As Handy Tool In Improving Your Home

Color has magical properties, especially in decorating a home's interior.

Do you know, for instance, that pale and pastel colors can make a room look much larger while bold colors bring ceilings down and walls in?

A long, narrow room or hall can appear wider if one wall is painted light (it will, in effect, "melt away") and the other dark.

Contrast is a good key in adding excitement to any room. Include intensities of dark, light, dullness, brightness, complementing accents.

Unequal areas of color and large areas done in a subtle color are more pleasing to the eye.

If you want to disguise the size or shape of an architectural feature or piece of furniture, blend it with a sameness color into the background.

Sunny rooms love the cool colors such as pale blue or green while darker rooms have an affinity for bright shades.

Just as the well-dressed woman wouldn't dream of wearing polka dots with plaid, so you shouldn't mix bold patterns in your interior or water colors first, to scale decorating either. One bold pattern with the room, is the wise thing to do.

Enjoy All-Purpose Family Room

Constantly increasing in importance, the modern family room ranks as the most-wanted addition among those remodeling or adding to a home.

Besides offering privacy for youngsters and adults, it takes the wear and tear off the living room in daily use.

With a modest financial expenditure and a liberal use of time, any basement or garage can be converted into a warm, inviting room which will answer the average family's needs.

Paint, pictures, new easy-to-put-up plywood panels, sound-control acoustical ceiling tiles, and other modern "do-it-yourself" materials are available at most lumber and hardware dealers.

The newest family rooms stress acoustical tiles because the hard-surface materials used generally reflect almost 95 percent of the sound waves that strike against them.

Acoustical tiles, on the other hand, absorb or "soak-in" noise reflection, adding immeasurably to everyone's comfort and reducing irritating sound to a minimum.

Don't think that these features make professional installation necessary.

You can easily "do-it-yourself" with the newest acoustical tiles that come complete with tongue and groove for simple fitting, plus a nailing or stapling flange which makes it almost impossible for you to install it incorrectly.

Since it's to be a family room, make it a family affair, and let everyone have a hand in its design and installation.

EASY INSULATION

Easiest and quickest way to insulate your home is with mineral wool which may be blown into the walls and ceiling.

The annual savings in fuel bills will make up for your original investment in the space of a few short years.

When selecting the medicine cabinet for the bathroom be sure that it is large enough to store all dangerous products such as aspirin, peroxides, iodines, etc., out of the reach of small children, yet permit storage of those medicinal preparations in daily use.
