Plans For 1959 Outlined By National Forest Chief

LAKEVIEW—Activities on the Fremont National Forest during 1958 and a brief resume of plans for 1959 were outlined in the annual report just released by Clayton N. Weaver, supervisor.

A few highlights from the past year showed the following: While fire occurrence was up this past year with 102 lightning fires and 34 man-caused fires, only one acre burned. Hunters caused the increase in man-caused fires. Direct receipts from the sale of Fremont National Forest products was over two and one-fourth million dollars. Fifty-seven miles of system roads were added to the forest to bring more intensive management to the land, and to increase enjoyment by recreationists. Livestock and hunter uses continued important

Council Mulls Water Needs

DORRIS—The Dorris City Council at the regular monthly meeting in the city hall Monday night studied figures submitted by John McGinnis, part-time city employee, pertaining to pumphouse No. 1, Second and California streets.

McGinnis reported to the council that the present pumphouse is falling to pieces. McGinnis' figures showed that material and labor to be used in erecting a new pump house, 80 by eight feet with metal door and frame, and changing switch box wiring will cost the city about $800. Lighting and other data of the city's three other wells were discussed.

McGinnis also reported of numerous complaints of not enough water pressure.

City Clerk Virginia Hamilton read a letter from McGinnis, stating that he wishes to discontinue the water turnoffs for delinquent water users. Mayor Bob Edgar instructed Police Chief Byard Kelly to take over the duty, and to collect water payments in advance from new water users.

Mayor Edgar authorized Mrs. Hamilton to contact different cities to get some ideas of their procedure to determine who is responsible, the owner of property or their renter, for the cost of water installations and monthly water bills in the city and out-of-city limits.

Mrs. Hamilton was also instructed to contact City Attorney George Tebbe and find out if out-of-city limits water users, who do not pay on the water bond issue, should pay more than the regular city water fee of $3.50 monthly.

The city clerk brought to the attention of the council a city ordinance where the city should collect a license fee on all coin operated mechanical machines and devices. Mrs. Hamilton pointed out that city licenses had only been collected for the operation of juke boxes.

Councilman Richard Fenwick asked why this was brought up and Mrs. Hamilton told the council that protests from citizens personally, and in paying their taxes cited the fact that the city does not collect all the revenue it should, but the council had raised city taxes two consecutive years.

Mrs. Hamilton gave attorney Tebbe's opinion that the ordinance could be amended to exclude the license fee in the case of penny gum and candy dispensers.

The council hired Mike Chubb at $2 per hour to paint three litter cans, clearing two lots on Main Street and to paint the doors of the fire station.

The board authorized the transfer of $2,000 from the liquor license fund and $2,000 from the motor vehicle license fees to the general fund.

Attending the meeting were Sikivou County District Attorney Albert Newton Jr., Sheriff Al Cotlar and Yreka attorney, Harry Hammond.

Sheriff Cotlar, through the city council, congratulated and thanked the people of Dorris and the whole of Butte Valley, for their cooperation. He said the people and organizations were doing a fine work with the youngsters of the valley which, he said, is evident in the lack of the juvenile problems which are so prevalent in the county. Sheriff Cotlar said the county hasn't now the proper facilities for caring for juveniles who may be in trouble. The Sheriff invited the people of Butte Valley to avail themselves of the services of his office at any time.

Airline Pilot Marks First Million Miles With Jets

WASHINGTON (UPI)—At 2:53 a.m. east Saturday, Capital Airlines Flight #16 from Milwaukee to Washington made what was a routine landing to its passengers—but a big event in the life of its pilot.

At the moment the wheels of the prop-jet Viscount touched the National Airport runway, Capt. Melvin C. Garlow became the first scheduled airline pilot in the United States to complete one million miles of jet engine flying.

The Viscount has jet engines hitched to conventional propellers. Garlow was one of the first Capital pilots to qualify in the British-made airliner when the line put it into operation more than four years ago.

The 53-year-old pilot, a baldish, soft-spoken veteran of 29 years in the cockpit, recalled his last million miles as "frankly, pretty routine."

"You can't have anything but praise and respect for the jet engine," he told UPI in an interview. "If I had been flying a piston engine aircraft, I could have expected to encounter 10 or 12 engine failures in four years of flying. I've had only one in a Viscount—and that was my own fault. I was cross-feeding fuel and accidentally shut off the fuel supply to one engine.

To a multi-million miler like Garlow this first transport plane was an ancient Fairchild, commercial aviation isn't the fun it used to be.

"We used to get to know pilots on other airlines and get acquainted with passengers on our own," he reminisced. "Now we're too busy up front to walk back into the cabin and talk to folks."

When he isn't flying, Garlow operates a farm near Morgantown, W. Va. And when he is plowing "the back 40," he admits recalling with some nostalgia the old days of flying.

"Like the tricks we used to play on new hostesses," he chuckled. "There was one girl who came up in the cockpit and wanted to know how fast we were going. I just put my hand on the side of the cockpit, looked thoughtful for a second and told her '187 miles an hour.'"

"How can you tell?" she wanted to know.

"Vibration," I assured her. "So help me, to the day she quit flying, anytime a passenger asked about our speed, she'd put her hand on the cabin wall and says '187.'"

Song, Dance Veteran Dies

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Fred Stone, whose nimble song and dance acts and amazing acrobatics delighted musical comedy audiences for decades, is dead at 85.

The veteran of 50 years on stage and screen died Friday at his home from a complication of ailments. A heart attack about two years ago was soon followed by total blindness.

Stone's sight had been failing for five or six years, the delayed effect of injuries suffered in a 1927 plane crash.

He was flying solo between his Connecticut farm and rehearsals for a Broadway show when he crashed. Both legs were broken, an ankle crushed, his jaw broken. His friend, Will Rogers, flew from Hollywood to replace him in the show, "Three Cheers."

A barber's son, born in Vailmont, Colo., Fred started as a circus acrobat and worked in medicine and minstrel shows before teaming up with Dave Montgomery in 1893 to form a song and dance act.

GIRL SCOUT regional adviser Laura Mae Hammer of Seattle will be in Klamath Falls Monday to work with the Klamath Area Girl Scout Council. The Girl Scouts' Pacific Northwest national branch office in Seattle works with Scout units in Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington and Alaska.

Activities Today Will Open National Girl Scout Week

National Girl Scout Week starts today. Its theme is "You Can Count on Her to be Creative." It's the organization's 47th anniversary, and Klamath Falls girls are all set to make the most of it.

Today they will attend religious services of their choice and then they will pay special daily attention to some of their activities.

Monday the spotlight will fall on homemaking. Tuesday on citizenship. Wednesday on health and safety. Thursday on international friendship. Friday on arts and craft, and Saturday on the outdoors.

The girls have been making window displays to be shown downtown March 7 through 14. During the week local radio and television stations will feature programs on Girl Scouting.

Several Dad-Daughter dinners will be served in the Klamath area during the week.

Scouts from the Klamath Area Council will meet in the First Presbyterian Church March 10 to plan the coming year's activities. Laura Mae Hammer, national regional adviser of Seattle, will be on hand for consultation.

The organization was founded in Savannah, Georgia, March 12, 1912. National headquarters were set up in Washington, D.C. the following year. By 1914 the organization had attracted 1,185 members. The next year the Girl Scouts' first annual convention was held there.

By 1958, a total of 2,530,000 girls and 765,000 adults were affiliated with the organization. One of every seven girls in the country were scouts.

Of these, 32,673 were members of the Troops on Foreign Soil branch of the Girl Scouts. They are American girls who live overseas.

The local council has a bit of history behind it as well. It was chartered in May, 1932, had attracted 232 members by 1939, and has 1,100 members today. Besides, there are 300 adults connected with the local group.

The Girl Scouts are supported in part by donations collected by the United Fund agency.

Tourism Obvious Industry, Dunsuir Council Advised

DUNSMUIR—"Tourism is Dunsuir's obvious industry," Chapman Wentworth, president of the Dunsuir Chamber of Commerce told the city council at its meeting Wednesday night.

Wentworth, in making a plea for the city government to take responsibility for proper signs at the north and south approaches to Dunsuir, called attention to the special levy of five cents per 100 assessed valuation authorized by the voters in 1940 for park maintenance, public musical entertainment and civic advertising. He said this restricted fund amounts to about $3,800 a year and suggested about $1,000 could be wisely allocated toward inviting the motoring public to stop in Dunsuir for rest, recreation and service needs.

Mayor J. M. Jones thought the chamber should do the research on proper sites, copy and whether or not the signs should be rented or owned. Council members promised favorable consideration of the chamber resolution requesting the signs.

Mayor Jones also challenged the validity of the chamber's interest in civic concerns. He said 25 Dunsuir business men refused the post of councilman the last time he had to make a council appointment. He said the predominance of Southern Pacific men on the city council reflects the unwillingness of others to serve. Wentworth promised that if another vacancy occurs, the chamber will suggest a business man who will accept appointment.

In other business, the dog dilemma was discussed at length. Mayor Jones announced that if anyone could suggest a workable, financially feasible dog control method, it would be welcomed by the council.

A public hearing for the proposed zoning ordinance was set at 7:30 p.m., April 2, at the regular city council meeting of that night.

On the request of the county assessor's office, the council adopted the 1928 "John Kennedy" map as the city's official map, subject to revision. The city has heretofore had no official map.

A need for a more efficient system of electrical and building inspection was discussed. E. A. Christensen suggested the city hall was the "worst offender" from the standpoint of inadequate wiring.

Missionary Plans Talk About China

Miss Esther Gulley, a missionary to China from 1932 until forced out by the Communists in 1947, will speak at the Lakeside Church of the Nazarene, at 7:30 p.m. Monday. Her talk will be illustrated with pictures.

She will be present also for the Holiness Association meeting to be held in Lakeside Nazarene Church Monday, March 9. The church is located in the Chelsea Addition, off Highway 97 North on Quarry and Acosta streets. The public is invited.

Since returning from the Orient, Miss Gulley has taught in Taylor Institute, a World Gospel Mission school for Mexican children at McAllen, Texas. She speaks Chinese, Spanish and English.

She is now on a year's leave of absence from the Mexican Border Bible Institute in order to travel throughout the United States and speak to various groups regarding opportunities and challenges which confront Christians in this country to evangelize Mexicans north of the border.

Bond Effort Fails Again

Eldon Lyle Shafer failed again Friday in an attempt to raise $7,500 bond needed for his release from jail pending an appeal of his rustling conviction.

Shafer had appeared before Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg Thursday with three potential bondsmen, but the judge ruled that property offered was insufficient to cover the amount required by law.

So the defendant reappeared Friday with a fourth potential source of bond revenue. Again, after exhaustive hearings, the judge ruled that the offered amount was insufficient.

Shafer and his employer, Paul Robert Wilson, were convicted in separate trials on an identical charge of cattle rustling. Both have appealed the jury verdicts to the supreme court. Wilson was released on bond two weeks ago.

Pair Given Jail Sentence

Two men were sentenced to state prison Friday morning by Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg.

Edmund Mason Arterburn of Eugene received a sentence of a term not to exceed three years in the Oregon State Penitentiary.

Arterburn was charged with forging a check for $20 at the Pines Tavern in mid-January.

He forged the name of the Rev. Robert L. Greene, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Klamath Falls.

Arterburn was defended by Attorney P. K. Puckett.

Questioning by the judge revealed that Arterburn previously had forged the name of the Rev. O. H. Whiteside of St. Mary's Episcopal Church of Eugene to a check.

Arterburn gave identical Eugene and Reno addresses.

Trial date Friday morning was set for April 6 at 10 a.m. for Wayne Colvard, 23, Raymond Harry Short, 19, and Larry Theodore Roosevelt Mills, 18, all of Wocuc.

They face charges of assault and robbery while armed with a dangerous weapon of Pastega's Grocery earlier this year.

The trio is accused of robbing the store of $75. They will be defended by Attorney P. K. Puckett.

Robert McCulloch, 23, of 4230 Winter Avenue, was sentenced to a term not to exceed three years in the state penitentiary for obtaining money and property by false pretenses.

He was accused of cashing a worthless check for $12 at Drew's Manstore in the Town and Country Shopping Center January 23.

Farmers May Form Co-Op

Farmers particularly are invited to a meeting Tuesday night in the Merrill Recreation Hall to discuss building a new feed mill in Merrill.

The mill would replace the Winema Mills operation destroyed in a $200,000 fire January 18.

Stock subscription toward establishing a cooperative will be the object of the meeting, a spokesman said. Winema Mills have offered the land and would build a railroad spur and two 90-by-300 ft. buildings.

Interested farmers are invited to hear plans for the cooperative. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. Backers hope to have the mill in operation by September.
