Mayor's Mom Slows A Bit At Age 91

By PEGGY WALSH DUNSMUIR—Mrs. Helen Jones, the mother of Dunsmuir's mayor, enjoys a trip to Las Vegas. She likes to see the latest floor shows. Her only problem is getting close enough to catch all the jokes because at 91 she has a slight impairment of hearing. But other than that there's nothing wrong with her ability to enjoy life. She reads, sews and writes letters without glasses, in fact she doesn't own a pair. But she prefers a social life or traveling to any of these activities. In the last 10 years she has crossed the continent by plane, train and automobile dividing her time between a home near Chicago, Florida and Dunsmuir. She has made two recent trips to Hawaii, one via luxury liner and one via airplane, and looks forward to going again. Mrs. Jones' father was superintendent of schools in Newark, New Jersey, when she was born on Christmas Day, 1867. Her mother had been a school teacher. She was introduced to a traveling life when she married. Her husband was a railroad man but liked to change jobs when he felt he had reached the top rung of a particular assignment. So Mrs. Jones raised her three sons in successive homes in Illinois; Iowa, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Florida, Georgia, Mexico and California. She has been widowed for the past 25 years. "Mother," Jones, as she is known to her friends in Dunsmuir, does not spend her time in reminiscing. She prefers to be interested in the current activities of the Jones family life, in her friends, and their interests. She is carefully coiffured and takes pride in her appearance. Her daughter-in-law, Beth, says of Mrs. Jones that her charming sense of humor makes her a companionable traveler and member of the household even at her advanced age. Mrs. Jones attributes her longevity to baptism with water from the River Jordan brought to her parents by a friend who had visited the Holy Land. Or on the other hand, she thinks it might be her fondness for sweet pickles. Beth Jones claims Mrs. Jones' good health is the result of tender, loving care and the lively example of her husband who is pushing 70. Mayor J. Morgan Jones. The three plan to spend the pre-Easter week in San Francisco and Palo Alto where they will shop, see a few shows and visit J. Morgan, Jr., at Stanford University.

He is majoring in science and mathematics.

Pair Of Films Presented Noting Conservation Week

MONTAGUE—A film on "Smoking, the Bear," and "California Deer, Unlimited," were shown recently to the students of the Montague Elementary School as a special program in observance of Conservation Week by members of the California Division of Forestry and the Fish and Game Department. Bert Knowles, game manager for the Department of Fish and Game, addressed the pupils of the upper grades from the sixth on through the eighth on the junior hunter safety course. Knowles told the youngsters that any boy or girl, under the age of 16, who wanted to hunt game was required to have at least four hours of the safety course, and upon completion and examination they could be eligible to receive a certificate. The minimum age limit is 12, and Knowles stated that girls as well as boys could participate in the course if they wanted to. He told the youngsters that the course was devoted mainly to showing them how to handle guns, and the various safety measures that should be practiced while hunting game. The course is to be conducted in the near future at the Montague School. Members of the departments that represented present for the program were Grant Teasley, fire control foreman, Forest Health, fire control foreman, both of the California Division of Forestry; Mark Petty, timber management, Klamath National Forest; Glenn Robinson, fire control assistant, and Ken Duncan, USFS, Oak Knoll District; and Herman Hamack, assistant ranger. The Conservation Week program was also presented at the following schools: Big Springs, Bogus, Delphic, Gazelle, Grenada, Mt. Hebron, Little Shasta, Willow Creek, Grass Lake, Fall Creek, Macdoel, Dorris, Hilt, Honolulu, Hornbrook, Red Rock, and the Gold and Jackson Street schools in Yreka.

Historians Hold Meeting

ALTURAS—The Modoc County Historical Society luncheon meeting in the social hall of the Federated Church Sunday afternoon, March 15, featured committee reports concerning an adult course in "Northern California History" which it is sponsoring, and progress of the museum committee in obtaining a fire-proof building to house museum articles available. Mrs. John Neer, teacher in the Bieber elementary system and member of the history class, reported that of the 36 men and women who were present for the first session which was held on Saturday, March 7, 38 enrolled. The extension course of Chico State College is directed by Ernest Neasham of Redding, a faculty member of Shasta College. Students enrolled were not required to purchase text books but in lieu of same were informed of the necessity of doing a great deal of research work to find material for making two reports each on events pertaining to the northern counties of this state. The society is assisting the instructor in arranging field trips for the class which may include some short drives from Alturas as well as a major lengthy excursion to some points of interest in neighboring counties. Dr. E. F. Auble reported that the museum committee has not yet come to a decision about a proper housing facility for a museum collection in Alturas. The meeting was closed with a poem read by Joshua Hutchinson.

Dunsmuir Hi Wins Kudos From Group

DUNSMUIR — A general commendation was given the Dunsmuir Joint Union High School in the accreditation report of the visiting committee of the California Association of Secondary School Administrators. Expansion of the counseling service to the equivalent of one full time counselor and library improvements were among the specific suggestions in the report. Provision for a part time vice principal and expansion of ability grouping were also recommended in the report which is part of an accreditation study requested by the Dunsmuir High School board of trustees. The report noted the school now has a student body of 260, a faculty of 14, plus the superintendent-principal, Delwin Poe. It serves the Dunsmuir-Castella area, a non-agricultural area with a relatively stable population. The school philosophy and school and community relationships were found satisfactory by the committee. Under the program of studies, the establishment of remedial reading classes was suggested. In evaluating the curriculum, stress was placed on the continuing development of mathematics, science and modern language courses. A more organized graduate follow-up plan was suggested also and a re-evaluation of the non-college preparation program. Need for an improved library was again stressed under materials of instruction analysis. At present the school library is at one end of the study hall and the school has only a part time librarian. Reference books appropriate to the course of study are kept in the various classrooms, the principal's secretary explained. The school was complimented on its use of audiovisual materials. Commendations were given the school for its testing program, discipline and attendance procedures. Inadequate counseling from the standpoint of personnel, time available and an adequate room for counseling was given particular emphasis. It was pointed out that a fulltime counselor would collect and file information about all students, provide scholarship data, counsel students on educational, vocational, social and health problems, work with the teaching staff to assist them with student relationships through data gathered. More attention could be given to leadership training for student body, class and club officers, the report said. It was suggested provisions be made to inform the entire student body of actions of the student council and foster more wholesome inter-class competitions. In the custodial department, provisions for adequate heating of the school on Monday mornings was suggested. Members of the visiting committee preparing the report were Russell T. Stauffer, principal of Fall River High School; Edwin H. Harper, state department, division of administrative services, Sacramento; Harold L. Puffer, principal of Shasta High School, Redding; Neal E. Wade, principal of Marysville High School; Kenneth Young, secondary consultant and director of curriculum, Siskiyou County, Yreka. They spent March 5 and 6 making the school evaluation.

SCOUT NEWS

YREKA—Approximately 60 Girl Scouts, from the fourth grade on up, gathered at the site of the Fred C. Burton property on the Fort Jones road, on Saturday afternoon, March 14, to plant 1,000 ponderosa pine trees, serving a twofold purpose, the observance of Conservation Week and marking the closing of Girl Scout Week. The site for the tree planting event was chosen by the Girl Scout troops in the west Siskiyou area, as a gesture of appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Burton, who have allowed the girls the privilege of using their land for day camping and other Girl Scout activities since 1952. Mrs. T. M. Deter, district chairman of west Siskiyou of the Rogue Valley Girl Scout Council, purchased the trees from the California State Nursery in Sacramento to under the reforestation program. Other adult scout committee chairmen for the project were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McEain and Mr. M. Deter. Also present in supervision of the event was Granville Teasley, fire control foreman for California Division of Forestry. Other activities in observance of Girl Scout Week consisted of the troops having window displays and selling Girl Scout cookies. With the chosen theme for the window displays based as "Home Frontiers," prizes were awarded with the sweepstakes winner being Troop 221 of Hill, which consisted of a display of a miniature sawmill in the Community Center building at Hill. Yreka Troop 167 won the blue ribbon award for its display in the Yreka Bakery window; and Troop 236 was awarded a white ribbon for its window display at Handley's in Yreka.
