RED BERRIES IN THE FALL.
This is the time to plant your rose fence. You'll have masses of double-flowered roses that will bush out into a breathtakingly beautiful hedge, year after year. In the fall, the rose fence will be alive with red berries, which will attract singing beautiful birds to your garden.

REQUIRES ALMOST NO CARE
These fence roses are the hardest in the world. They're unharmed by severe weather. They're pest-resistant. They're so hardy they'll grow in most any soil.

FOR GARDENS, FOR FARMS
These glorious fence roses make one of the most spectacular fences in the world. Use them to edge your property line, to screen off the street, to divide up your garden-areas. Have large, fragrant blooms for bouquets and floral arrangements. Plant about 3 ft. from property line.

PLANT 18 TO 24 INCHES APART . . . GROWS TO 3 OR 4 FEET THE FIRST YEAR
Grows in practically any soil . . . Reaches about 8 feet at maturity. Can be clipped once or twice a year and kept at height desired.
