Native Daughters Meet In Etna

ETNA—Thelma McNeil, president, Native Daughters of the Golden West, Escholtz Parlor No. 112, presided at the regular meeting, Tuesday evening, March 17. During the short business session it was resolved to make a donation to the public speaker's junior college scholarship fund, sponsored by the Native Daughters of the Golden West. The final speaker's contest will be held at the grand parlor meeting at Santa Cruz in June.

At the first April meeting of the local parlor a secret pal revealing party will be given. Members from Siskiyou Parlor, Mount Shasta will be invited.

At the conclusion of the meeting the members attended the public card party sponsored by the organization in the banquet room.

SPRING MILLINERY

White tall crowns and vivid color continue as dominating factors in millinery, the newest entry in the spring fashion picture is the brim. Brims appear in many forms, from skinny inch-wide versions to deep brims which descend to shadow the eyes or curve upward reiterating the lines of high crowns.

High crowns retain their top position and add new dimension to classic shapes such as sailors and bretons. High pillboxes, towering toques, turbans and rounded or conical-shaped crowns all share the spotlight. Cloches with turned-down brims are numerous, varying from face-framing styles to wide Oriental lanterns shapes, occasionally rippled and laden with flowers.

Flower hats in every shape are everywhere. Flowers are also used extensively as a trimming for large shapes.

Simple trimming is the decree for the majority of spring hats. Emphasis is placed on smooth straws, such as ballbunt, milan and leghorn with new softened qualities.

Thomas Jefferson was an enthusiastic book collector, assembled three extensive libraries.

Four Generations Present At Party

McCLOUD—Four generations were present when Mrs. Lena Naughton, 94, was honored at a birthday party given in the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. A. Murphy, of McCloud March 16. Members of the family and friends enjoyed a luncheon party. Traditional St. Patrick's Day decorations, including shamrocks, leprechauns and Irish hearts were used in the decor at the luncheon.

Youngest member of the family attending was the 6-day-old great granddaughter, Sara Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alexander.

Those joining in the festivities were Mrs. Kinyon Young of Camp Kinyon, Mrs. Harry Doyle, Mrs. Merle Straub, Mrs. Tillie Linn, Mrs. Jennie Piltz, all of McCloud and Mrs. Rose Parentice of Mt. Shasta.

Greeting cards from her many friends and relatives were read aloud. Movies were made of the festivities, and those of previous parties were shown.

Four of Mrs. Naughton's five children were born in Oklahoma territory, the fifth in Ohio. She has 12 grandchildren and 27 great grandchildren.

ETNA REBEKAH LODGE

ETNA—The regular meeting of Aureola Rebekah Lodge No. 113 of Etna was held on March 12 with Laura Grossen, noble grand presiding. Attending the short business meeting was Myrtle Wild, noble grand of Ora Rebekah Lodge No. 40 of Fort Jones. March birthdays will be celebrated at the next meeting. Appointed to the committee were Claire M. Potter, Sadie Starr and Doris Jackson.
