Assemblywoman Office Tells Of Toil In Capitol

MONTAGUE — News releases from the office of Assemblywoman Pauline L. Davis in Sacramento, indicates considerable activity.

After a great deal of debate AB 140, authorized by Assemblywoman Davis, went out of the Water Committee "do pass." This bill is a very important water policy for Northern California's economy. Its concept is a mandate to the Department of Water Resources insisting that it consider all phases of recreation and Fish wildlife as a non-reimbursable cost in all state water projects wherever it is justifiable and feasible. This bill must face the Ways and Means Committee, of which Mrs. Davis is a member, and if it survives this committee a real hassle is contemplated on the floor of the Assembly. It will require 41 votes to send it on its way to the Senate.

The administration won its biggest victory of the session thus far last week when the Assembly, by a 50 to 24 vote, passed a bill to dedicate tideland oil royalties almost exclusively to financing water projects.

This means that if the measure is approved by the Senate, and its prospects there appear to be excellent, 172 million dollars currently in the Investment Fund will be made available for water development. In addition, all future income from oil production on state-owned tidelands in excess of the amount reserved for the Beaches and Parks program also will be available for water project.

At the same time money will be available to proceed immediately with major water projects. Without this money, says Assemblywoman Davis, "this action would have to be delayed for about three years while the state waited for proceeds from a bond issue to be prepared, voted upon and processed to finance water development."

The field itself, a World War II effort, continued to grow from a status of near abandonment into an active operational base.

Progress of the base has continued through such excellent base commanders as Col. Samuel Grashio, Lt. Col. Raymond Thornton and Col. Jack Williams, the current commander.

In early 1957 the field was renamed David Kingsley Field in honor of a Portland man who sacrificed his life for another airman in action near Ploesti, Romania, when he gave his parachute to an injured man, and perished with the plane, winning the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Even as construction of the field went forward, methods of warfare were changing, with the emphasis switching to rockets and guided missiles and atomic warheads.

But planning at Kingsley Field kept pace with current strategy resulting in constant updating of both facilities and operational planning.

Today, April 1, Kingsley Field officially closes a gap in the aerial defense line of the West Coast, and adds another bristling defense weapon to the nation's arsenal.

The new sound of jet aircraft which will now become familiar to the Basin area has now become the sound of security with the addition of this new defense facility.
