Medical Aid Cut Ordered

A sizable cut in welfare funds available to Klamath County must result in a like cut in medical services available to welfare recipients.

Thus decided the County Welfare Commission, which sent to doctors, dentists and druggists in the county a revised letter of authorized services.

Until more funds are available, the commission said, medical care must be limited generally to services essential for life and limb and to essential pre-natal and infant delivery care.

No long, said the commission, may it authorize elective surgery, dental care except extractions, glasses, hearing aids or physical therapy.

Additionally, office visits must be limited to one a month except in cases of chronic illness, unless otherwise approved.

"The foregoing material is in no way intended as a restriction or limitation on the services you wish to give your patients," the commission letter noted. "It sets forth only the services for which County Public Welfare can pay."

Club Women Attend School

Mrs. Hugh O'Connor, landscape design chairman of the Oregon Federation of Garden Clubs, and Mrs. Crystal Cheyne are attending the first landscape design school in the west. The school is being held at the University of California in Berkeley.

There have been only four other schools in the United States sponsored by the National Federation of Garden Clubs, which hope to establish schools in every state which is a member of the federation.

Many outstanding instructors will participate in the session, one of whom is Douglas Byles, an outstanding landscape design architect and a member of the national board.

Bank Files Trust Suit

The U.S. National Bank has filed a civil suit in the county clerk's office to establish its right to sell property it holds in trust for members of the Klamath Indian tribe.

The friendly suit, designed to establish the bank's rights in present and future cases, is styled against 37 members of the tribe.

The bank maintains it is unable to furnish marketable titles to property it holds in trust. Clarification is necessary, it said, "to protect and preserve . . . said trusts and provide income for beneficiaries designated."

Specifically, the suit stems from a proposal to sell property held in trust for Geraldine Marie Cole to the Ellingson Lumber Company for $45,526.

Another title suit was filed by Donald and Hazel Sloan to establish clear title to lots in the El Dorado Addition in Klamath Falls. The suit is styled against McCollum Lumber Company, W. D. Miller Construction Company, East-side Electric and others.

Critics Claim KUHS Concert 'Gracious Gift'

The concert presented Thursday night in Pelican Court by the music department of Klamath Union High School was a gracious gift to the community, in the opinion of the appreciative audience who heard the students present one of the most versatile performances of the school year.

Particularly commended by two members of the audience, Mrs. Fred Ehlers and Mrs. William Graham, was "the excellent musical taste and wide knowledge of the department faculty, demonstrated in the choice of selections from the classics and the best of contemporary music."

Figures show that an impressive approximate 25 per cent of the KUHS student body is included in one of the musical groups receiving the benefit of training under faculty members who teach not only in the high school but the elementary schools of the city.

Concert band numbers, "Concertino for Clarinet," C. M. von Weber, with Gary Breneman, Russell Schuh and Jerry Jensen, soloists, and Anderson's "Bugler's Holiday," with Jan Baxter, George Filtrcraft and John Lawson, soloists proved to be especially delightful numbers during the concert band interlude.

"Great Day," Youmans, by the mixed chorus, "March, Showboy," Huff, cadet band, and "Gloria—Only Begotten Son," Retchkov, by the freshman mixed chorus, drew rounds of applause.

Lakkar Jensen directed the concert band; Stephen L. Stone, directed the chorus numbers and Russell Whalen the cadet band. Accompanists were Vicki Roman and Hazel Robertson.

Polio Victim Clears Lots

BLY—The task of removing several buildings from recently purchased lots in Bly has been undertaken by Mrs. Charles (Betty) Wright and her six children.

Mrs. Wright and her late husband, who died in January, purchased the property with the goal of fencing the three lots and planting a small fruit orchard and some nut trees.

Two of the buildings have been sold and are in the process of being moved by the purchaser of the buildings, but Mrs. Wright plans to tear down the remaining out-buildings and garages with the aid of her two eldest children, Charlotte, 12, and Kay, 10, and a friend, Susan Ward, 14. Mrs. Wright has four other children, Vance, 6; Esther, 3; Dibbom, 3, and Tsiya, four months.

The Wright family came to Bly nine years ago from the Ivory Pine Camp, which at that time was three miles north of Bly and where Wright was employed.

Mrs. Wright was a victim of polio when she was 10 years old and was completely paralyzed for a year, but through will and determination she overcame her disability.

Ullman Decries Resource Plan

PORTLAND (AP) — Rep. Al Ullman (D-Ore) told the Western Forest Industries Assn. meeting here Friday the Eisenhower administration is wrong in advocating single-use development of Western resources.

The only way that Western areas can be properly and permanently maintained, he said, is through balanced management, one that takes into "consideration all uses."

The Democratic Congressman from Eastern Oregon added: "We are vitally interested in a balanced recreation program in our great outdoors but we are also concerned about full economic utilization and conservation of our resource potential on which may hinge our very survival, not just in this generation but for centuries to come."

J Canal Check Aids Water Flow

TULELAKE—A more consistent flow of water through the mains of the Tulelake Irrigation District is assured water users through the successful operation of an experimental check developed for the district, according to Maurice K. Strantz, manager.

The check operates on a float principle and is located in the J canal north of the state line near the Hab Wilson farm. The check has electric motor operation, which was one of the principal expenses in making it automatic.

"The installation was experimental both as to demonstrating the cost of such installation and showing that the check would be effective in improving water control on the main canal system," Strantz said.
