SERMON IN SILHOUETTE—Silhouetted against sky and mountain in Rainier National Park, the wooden cross and the minister conducting services were symbols of Easter. Reading from the Bible is Robert S. Clark, 23, a student at Union Theological Seminary in New York.

IT'S TOO MUCH—Summing up the weather story, this letter box, belonging to a lady with an appropriate name, stands out amid the drifts of snow in Dutch Hollow, Wis. In the state's worst winter storm in 39 years, the ground froze to nine feet and snow piled up 20 feet.

A STRINGER—Corky, a parakeet, is perched on the bow-string of owner Harry Goshkowitz's violin in Dallas, Tex. An apparent music lover, the frisky bird likes to nibble the varnish of the violin and pluck the strings with its tiny feet. Goshkowitz plays in the Dallas Symphony Orchestra.

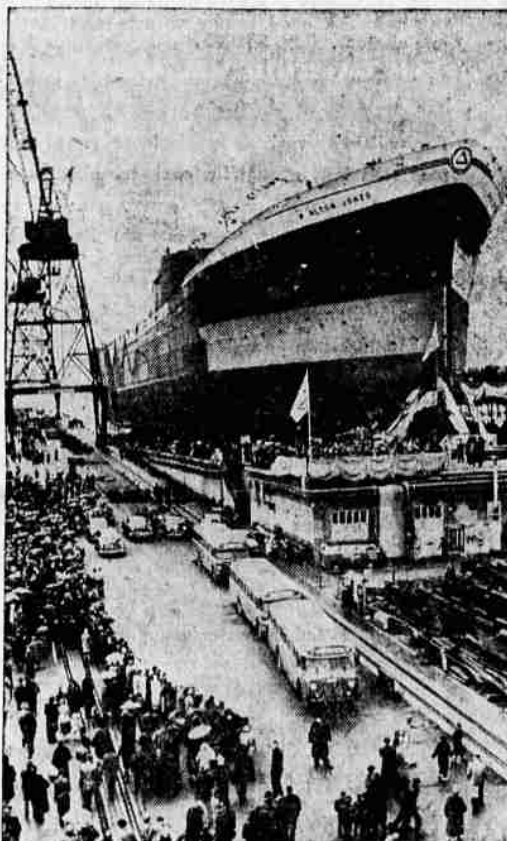

POWER PICTURE—Clusters of high tension lines stretch across the desert sky near Aswan, United Arab Republic, as the power plant that's part of the dam project nears completion. Slated to be finished in 1960, the project is expected to supply the industrial centers of the United Arab Republic with almost two billion kilowatts of electricity yearly.

OLE!—While an attendant holds a rope tied to a bull during a bullfight at Naha, Okinawa, the bulls are having a go at each other. The animals maneuver like wrestlers while trying to push each other out of the ring. The object of this bullfight is merely to see which of the animals is the stronger. The fights usually draw crowds of farmers from the surrounding countryside. Official betting is banned, but wagers are made between individuals.

KICKING UP—Long-stemmed Julie Newmar is off on a ballet kick as she displays some fancy legwork in New York. Once a prima ballerina, the 33-year-old blonde is currently appearing on Broadway in "The Marriage-Go-Round," which stars Claudette Colbert and Charles Boyer in the comedy.

SWEDISH MADE—The biggest tanker ever launched in Europe, the W. Alton Jones, is sliding down the ways in Uddevalla, Sweden. The giant vessel is the first of three new super-tankers to be built by a Swedish company for an American tanker fleet. The ship is 824 feet long, and has a loaded displacement of 88,850 long tons. She was built at a cost of more than 12 million dollars.

A SURE SIGN—By watching the birdies, you can discover if spring has followed the calendar. In Winston-Salem, N. C., Suzy Moore, a freckle-faced youngster, uncovered a nest of baby chirpers. She was careful not to disturb them, even if those open mouths indicate their hunger.

DONE IN WOOD—Ex-lumberjack Abe Patterson has turned his wood-carving hobby into a business in Pembroke, Ont., Canada. He took some of his work to a sport show in Chicago and he whittled a carving of two fighting bull moose.

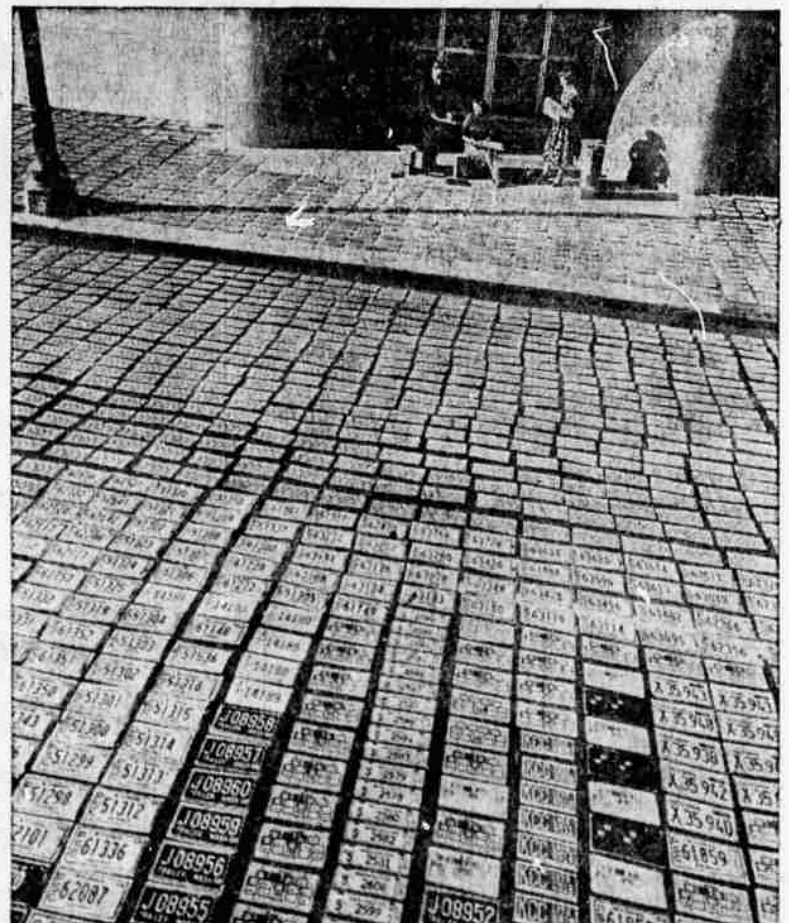

IN THE EXHIBIT—Sponsored by the Government of Israel in cooperation with the America-Israel Cultural Foundation, crafts and materials from Israel will soon make a tour of principal museums in this country. The photo of two youngsters is one of many to be included in the exhibit.

GOLDEN TOUCH—A floral pattern blooms on gold matelasse in this cardigan neckline coat. Nichi Giglio designed the coat with softly puffed underarm fullness which conceals side pockets. It was modeled at a fashion show in Warren, Ohio.

ANCHORS A-WEIGH—Shouldering a burden, seaman Roy Clerihan seems to have superhuman strength as he carries a giant anchor in Melbourne, Australia. The load isn't as heavy as it looks for the anchor is made of wood and weighs only 100 pounds. A real anchor this size weighs over four tons.

POETIC LICENSE—In seemingly endless profusion, license plates are spread out in all directions in front of an express company in Oakland, Calif. However, all these represent only a tenth of the total required by the company each year before its trucks can begin rolling over the 17,000-mile route system in the western two-thirds of the U. S.
