

Senate Okays Inauguration Measure

SALEM (AP) — The Oregon Senate passed today and sent to the House a bill to prevent any more doubts as to when the governor should be inaugurated.

The bill, which got unanimous approval, says that the governor must be inaugurated on the day the Legislature meets.

In 1955 the inauguration was threatened with delay because of failure of the Senate to organize.

It was threatened again this year because of the dispute over whether Gov. Mark Hatfield had a clear title to his office.

There never has been anything in the law to fix the date for the governor's inauguration.

The Senate turned down 25-5 a motion to kill a bill that would let counties issue bonds to buy voting machines. The Senate is expected to pass it Wednesday and send it to the House.

Counties have been allowed since 1953 to install voting machines, but this is the first bill to set up a means of financing their purchase.

Supporters of the bill said voting machines would speed up the counting of votes and save money. Opponents said they would delay voting and be too costly.

The Senate approved 20-9 and sent to the House a bill that would benefit schools in Eastern Oregon. The bill repeals a provision, passed in the 1957 special session to use about two million dollars of basic school funds as a property tax offset. In effect, the new bill makes that amount of money available for schools in Portland and the eastern part of the state.

This bill failed to pass by one vote last Friday, but was reconsidered.

The House Judiciary Committee planned to act this afternoon on the bill to create a state Power Commission that could buy federal power or generate its own; and sell it to public or private utilities and to industries.

The House Highway Committee plans to take another look today at the bill to increase the state gasoline tax from 6 to 7 cents a gallon.

The Senate sent to the House a resolution to give the president of the Senate and speaker of the House $2,000 each for expenses. The money would be spent for such purposes as going to funerals, official courtesies, and preparing for the next Legislature.

A move to speed up its business was made by the Senate, which voted to refer to committee all bills on the day they are introduced. Up to now, they have been referred the day after introduction.

Probe Slated In Mystery

WESTPORT, Conn. (AP) — Connecticut's health commissioner is seeking to solve the mystery of a grave with an unregistered occupant.

Stephen Kalabany of Norwalk was putting in his family plot in the Greens Farms Colonial Cemetery in Westport last year.

He found a depression in the land and dug down several feet, he said, he saw the body of a man. He covered everything back up again.

Police found no record of a body in that spot. They said that because the cemetery has been in use so long there could be some anonymous bodies resting there.

Police did not dig into the matter further. They said it was out of their jurisdiction.

Health Commissioner Dr. Stanley H. Osborne, who must keep a record of all deaths and burials in Connecticut, wants the matter cleared up.

Lorin W. Wilms, Fairfield County state's attorney, said he is obtaining legal authority to make a search for the body at Dr. Osborne's request.

Wilms said he expected to come up with something, if not the body within a few days.

Woman Finds $1,000 Bill

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Trudy Wesson had the extraordinary luck of finding a crisp $1,000 bill, and she is taking extraordinary pains to make it legal.

Mrs. Wesson, a domestic worker, told an attorney she used to work for that she found the bill in a rubbish box. Law enforcement agencies were checked. None had any reports of a lost $1,000 bill. The lawyer consulted his law books and found an 1872 statute that seemed to fit the case.

Under that law, he filed an affidavit, subsequently signed by a municipal court judge. The law says Mrs. Wesson's claim to the money will carry more validity than the actual owner's unless the owner claims the bill within a year.

Two Of New York's Finest Gave Their All To Science

NEW YORK (AP)—Now it can be told—the story of two New York policemen who temporarily gave up both their digestions and the society of fellow humans for science and the greater glory of the department.

It started in a Brooklyn courtroom. Police Commissioner Stephen P. Kennedy explained Tuesday. A lawyer challenged the accuracy of the police department's drunkometer—a device used to measure the amount of alcohol in a driver's system. The lawyer claimed onion or garlic on a driver's breath would cause the same reaction on the machine.

Not so, said Kennedy. He called for volunteers to prove him right. Two chemists in the police laboratory stepped forward. They were Patrolman Jerry Mattozza and Detective Davis Innella.

Mattozza was assigned to chew and swallow a pound of raw onions. Innella did the same with a sizable hunk of garlic.

Both tried the drunkometer—no reaction. Police observers grinned victoriously. Mattozza and Innella staggered away, racked by nausea and reeking of garlic and onions.

Demo Chief To Back Ike

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said Monday he would help the President "so long as it helps the strength of America."

Sens. Wayne Morse (D-Ore), William Proxmire (D-Wis.) and Pat McNamara (D-Mich.) have criticized Johnson for what they called his one-man rule in the Senate and his too-friendly relations with the Republican administration.

"I shall always respect the office of (president) and I shall respect the man in it, whoever he may be, Democrat or Republican," Johnson told a joint session of the Texas Legislature.

He denied again, however, that he has any interest in the office himself.
