Minimum Wage Measure Heading For Roadblock

BY JAMES C. ANDERSON SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown's minimum wage bill heads today toward a roadblock in the Senate. Although the measure has been approved in the Assembly, at least four of the seven members of the Senate Labor Committee said they oppose a provision in the bill setting a 90-cent an hour wage for farm workers. Brown's bill must win approval of the committee if it is to stay alive. "A minimum wage would kill us in agriculture," said Sen. Paul L. Byrne (R-Chico). "If the administration would agree to cut agriculture out of the bill entirely and exempt part-time workers like college students, it would be acceptable to me," Byrne added. "But our poultrymen already are being knocked out of business by competition from states like Georgia where labor is cheap. "We can't compete with cheap labor if we have a 90-cent minimum."

Clover Tariff Extension Hopes Fade

TULELAKE — Basin farmers' hopes for an extension of the Alaska clover tariff were dampened this week, when the Tulelake Growers Association received a copy of a letter sent to Sen. Clair Engle by C. L. Miller, assistant secretary, Department of Agriculture. The letter stated that President Eisenhower had decided that up to three million pounds of clover seed could be imported without severe injury to domestic producers, and that there is no present indication that imports during this year will exceed three million in the absence of controls. Farmers in Oregon, Washington and California maintain that the large carryover of Alaska seed in Canada is a major threat. They claim that the large buyers in the industry are waiting to buy this year's supply as soon as the tariff is lifted and they will be able to buy cheaper Canadian seed. The Growers Association is filing protests to the U.S. Department of Agriculture and to Senator Engle and Kuechel and state Senator Johnson. Cliff Jenkins, manager of the association, also reported that California Assembly voted to place all agricultural workers under a minimum wage law of 90 cents per hour. No provisions were made to take care of piece-work rates, or to restrict the unlimited powers granted the Industrial Welfare Commission. Under the bill the commission has complete power to establish any wage above the minimum that it deems necessary. The association is urging all farmers to write to Senator Collier or Assemblywoman Pauline Davis urging them to vote for a complete agricultural exemption which will be offered on the third reading on the Assembly floor in a few days. Dick Falconer, president of the Growers Association, will attend a hearing before the Assembly Agriculture Committee on Bill No. A.B. 1996 at Sacramento, April 15. The bill would prohibit the use of compound 1080 as a field rodenticide in California, by deleting that portion of Section 1080.6 of the agricultural code which permits its use by government officers or employees. Letters of protest may be sent to Samuel R. Geddes, chairman of the House Agricultural Committee.

Water Chiefs Renew Pleas For Rights LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Water leaders renewed their demands Thursday for constitutional guarantees of Southern California water rights under the state's development program. In a telegram addressed to Gov. Edmund G. Brown, the water officials said a constitutional amendment protecting the integrity of contracts "is a basic essential to the program." The telegram stated that the governor had made "heartening progress" toward getting California's water program underway but that steps taken so far did not "constitute accomplishment." The water spokesmen said a water development program should include: —Approval by the Legislature of a bond issue submitted to a vote of the people. —Approval of the bond issue by the vote of the people. They said the proposed bond issue must be specific and must be adequate to complete construction. The telegram was signed by J.E. Fishburn Jr., president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce; James Krieger, vice chairman of the Southern California Water Coordinating Conference; J. C. Miller Jr., president of the board of Water and Power Commissioners of Los Angeles. Joseph Jensen, chairman of the board of Metropolitan Water District of Southern California; Howard Crooke, general manager of the Orange County Water District; William P. Price Jr., general manager of the United Water Conservation District of Ventura County, and the Board of Directors of the Western Municipal Water District of Riverside County.

Class Records Orb Signals FORT JONES — Merlin McGinnis, principal of Fort Jones High School, announced that satellite tracking equipment set up by science classes under direction of Allen Fowler recorded signals of a satellite April 6 from 10:36 a.m. to 10:45 a.m. McGinnis said the signals apparently were from Navy satellite Vanguard 1, sent up March 27, 1958. Signals were picked up on radio equipment set at 108.3 megacycles. Reception of satellite signals at Fort Jones is unpredictable because orbits of satellites are not directly in the path of satellite tracking equipment. This is the first clearly-discernible signal the school has received in several months. Identity of signals is established by recordings of confirmed signals and by visual graphs of sound waves. All satellites have distinctive individual signals. Signals picked up April 6 indicate Vanguard I sent them from its solar-charged batteries. McGinnis said a tracking station at Napa, California, could not confirm the signals, although operators there said they probably were from Vanguard I. Science classes at FJHS have been working for more than a year with satellite tracking equipment. Recordings of signals from all satellites known to be in orbit were made by radio classes. These recordings were incorporated into a single recording describing the satellites. McGinnis said the recording has been borrowed by other schools in California for use in science courses.

Library Adds Tule Author ALTURAS — A copy of "The Causes and Significance of the Modoc War," written by the late Cadet Hugh Wilson Jr., of Tulelake, has been added to the Shasta College Library for reference. Neasham is instructor in an extension course in Northern California History given in Alturas by Chico State College. The booklets, which include a map of the Modoc War area, were sent to the society on consignment by Bill Quinn, commercial teacher at Tulelake High School. Sales from the small books add to the scholar fund set up by the Tulelake PTA after the death of young Wilson in an air crash in Wyoming that took the lives of several West Point cadets en route back to school after spending the Christmas holidays on the West Coast. Hugh was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wilson Sr., now living in Ohio. He was a graduate of Tulelake High School as an honor student.
