Herter Has No Time For Fishing

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The new boss of the State Department, Christian Archibald Herter, may not be the champion grandfather in official Washington, but he should be close to it. He and Mrs. Herter boast 14 grandchildren.

The Herters have four children —three sons and a daughter. Christian A. Herter Jr., the eldest, is a Boston lawyer active in Republican politics and sometimes mentioned as a future candidate for Massachusetts governor.

Chris Jr. has also followed in his father's footsteps by working in the State Department. He was on the Policy Planning Board for a time. He also served as counsel for the Economic Cooperation Administration.

The second Herter son, Dr. Frederic, lives in Dobbs Ferry, N.Y. He is a surgeon on the staff of Columbia Presbyterian Hospital in New York City.

Daughter Adele is now Mrs. Joseph Seronde, and lives in Lincoln, Mass., near Boston.

Youngest son Miles is in business in Boston. Christian Jr., Frederic and Adele have four children each. Miles, most recently married, is father of two.

The Herters have two homes. While he was Governor of Massachusetts, the Herters bought a house in Millis—southwest of Boston. In Washington they live in their Georgetown home, acquired when Herter was in Congress. It's one of the town's colonial showplaces, filled with beautiful furniture, about three blocks up "P" Street from former Secretary of State Dean Acheson's.

The Herters try to stay quietly at home at least two evenings a week. But sometimes that's difficult to arrange. The social demands that go with the job of being head of the State Department are heavy.

When one of these official state visitors comes to town, it involves three formal white tie dinners right in a row. The President gives the first in the White House. Then the Secretary of State gives one at Anderson House, or at Pan-American Union. Then the visitor gives a return dinner at his country's embassy or a hotel.

Recently, when the President of El Salvador, the Prime Minister of Ireland and King Hussein of Jordan were here right in a row, followed by the North Atlantic Treaty Council of Foreign Ministers, the pace was killing.

Herter puts in a normal 12-hour working day, five or six days a week, 8:30 to 8:30. An average schedule starts with a White House conference with the President at 8:45 a.m. Back to the State Department for the daily staff conference. Then one conference right after another, all day long and into the evening.

Deputy Undersecretary Robert Murphy, in charge of political affairs, is in his office a great deal. Ambassadors are received by appointment. There are calls from congressmen and appearances before congressional committees.

Just before Secretary John Foster Dulles went into the hospital for cancer radiation treatments, Herter got what will probably be his last vacation in some time. He went to South Carolina for two weeks to shoot ducks.

In spite of the arthritis that has cramped his style somewhat in recent years, Herter is still an ardent sportsman. He's a good fisherman in both salt and fresh water, but he's had no time for that this past year.

He's a Boston Red Sox rooter, with second place loyalty to the Nats. He's also a good bridge player, though he has never played with the President and his White House cronies.

When Herter does get an evening at home, it's often spent with reports and State papers that have to be studied. When he gets to bed, he likes to read himself to sleep with a paper back Western. "While doing that," he explains, "you don't have to think."

Plane Prop Injures Man

COLDWATER, Miss. (AP) — A campaigning Democratic candidate for governor was slashed on the chest from shoulder to waist when he walked into a spinning airplane propeller Wednesday night.

Ross Barnett, 60-year-old Jackson lawyer, was taken to a hospital at Memphis, 40 miles to the north. He was reported in fair condition.

Physicians said the propeller fractured numerous ribs, but apparently there was no damage to the lungs or heart.

The accident occurred after Barnett's chartered single-engine plane landed at the Coldwater Airport.

Barnett has been a vigorous candidate in a four-way race for governor. The Democratic primary will be held Aug. 4.

House Fears Commission

WASHINGTON (AP) — An embarrassing legislative situation is delaying House action on a Senate-passed bill for a special commission to study unemployment and its remedies.

House Democratic leaders reportedly fear that establishment of such a commission now would strengthen opposition to housing, aid to depressed areas, and other bills they are pushing to create jobs. Opponents could urge a delay until the commission had time to study the problem.

The proposal for an 11-member commission was sponsored by Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas. It passed by the Senate two weeks ago. Once it is allowed to go to floor, passage does not appear to be in doubt.

A top-ranking Democrat said the problem was entirely one of timing, and added: "If I had my way, the time would be the end of the session."

Republicans were taking obvious enjoyment in the embarrassment of their Democratic colleagues. They were not unaware that the author of it was Johnson, a potential aspirant for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination.

Because of its poorly developed nervous system, a fish probably experiences discomfort rather than actual pain when hooked.

No Change In Fish Law

"There has been no change, as far as our regulations are concerned, in angling on the Klamath Reservation by non-members of the tribe," according to P. W. Schneider, director of the Oregon State Game Commission. The inquiry was made of the game commission by State Sen. Harry D. Boivin after some misunderstanding had developed over fishing in Williamson River and Spring Creek, as well as other creeks on the Klamath Reservation.

A statement concerning policy published in the angling synopsis of the game commission was apparently misinterpreted, according to Mr. Schneider. Actually, non-Indians may fish on any reservation land if permitted by the Indians.

The Klamath Reservation streams have been open to fishing by non-Indians for a number of years, and have been stocked by the State Game Commission which has set special seasons on certain streams, such as the Williamson River, with no objection by the Indian authorities.

Agency Boards Name Members

United Fund Agency boards have appointed members to serve on the UF Campaign Planning Committee, Paul Cruikshank, 1960 campaign chairman, announced recently.

Vern Owens is representing the Boy Scouts, Mario Pastega the Girl Scouts, Frank Drew the Camp Fire Girls, Earl Kent the YMCA, Mal Gellup the Red Cross and Marion Grant the Salvation Army.

Richard Gallagher, Ron Phair, Frank Ganong, Chuck Bailey, Bud Franklin, the Rev. Robert Greene, Max Ruge and Dorman Turner were appointed earlier.

The committee's first meeting was held April 8.

Ike Selects Army Aide

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today named Gen. George H. Decker, now commanding U.S. forces in Korea, as vice chief of staff of the Army.

Lt. Gen. Carter B. Magruder was given Decker's Korean command.

Magruder has been deputy chief of staff for logistics for the Army in Washington.

In connection with the change, Eisenhowef sent to the Senate a nomination to promote Magruder to the rank of full general.

The shifts stem from the decision by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor to retire as Army chief of staff.

Last month, Eisenhower tapped Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who had been vice chief of staff since 1957, to succeed Taylor.

Decker is following in the footsteps of Lemnitzer who had the Korean command when he was called to Washington in 1957.

And presumably he was Lemnitzer's choice for vice chief. Lemnitzer has just wound up a visit to the Far East during which he spent some time with Decker.
