Big Cattle Drive On Again, But Not Like In The Films

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The big spring cattle drives are on again but if you're looking for a bit of the old West, pardner, forget it!

One of the biggest of these drives is moving through Little Rock today. It started Sunday and before the week is over 5,500 head will move through town.

But there are no clouds of dust on the horizon. This is a streamlined affair. The cattle ride the railroads and with top priority, too.

They are part of 85,000 head that graze the 940,000-acre King Ranch at Kingsville, Tex. They are going to Pennsylvania pastures for the summer.

Unfortunately for them, they'll never get out alive. They are part of the big movement of prime beef steers (sizzling steaks to you, sir!) each spring from Texas and Oklahoma for fattening on pastures to the north.

Their grandfathers wouldn't know them. They look like a cross between a Shorthorn and a Brahman. That's what they are. They are called Santa Gertrudis and were developed by King Ranch back in the 20s for the beef qualities of the Shorthorn and the toughness of the Brahman, to take south Texas hot weather.

They got all the federal law allows here. It calls for a rest after 36 hours of train riding. At the North Little Rock stockyards they were watered, fed and rested before being reloaded 12 hours later. Another train load is not far behind. The cattle left the ranch in six trains at one-day intervals.

There are many pastures where cattle grow fat in the summer. There are the Osages in Oklahoma, the Bluestem grassland of Kansas. These are going to the Buck and Doe Runs Valley Farms, the 10,000-acre King Ranch pastures at Doran, Pa.

Wherever they go, all will literally eat themselves into an early death by growing into what makes juicy steaks.

Lolobrigida Makes It To Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Viva Gina! The Lolobrigida doll has finally made it to Hollywood for a movie — "Never So Few" with Frank Sinatra and Peter Lawford. She has proved a delightful interview subject, speaking without inhibition about such matters as—

Brigitte Bardot: "I like her very much. I think she is very sexy. But I could not do what she does—appear in the nude. I have never done it and never will."

Italian taxes: "I pay. Oh, how I pay! I pay more than anyone else in the entertainment field. No, I do not pay happily. I would do so if I knew that everyone else paid what they should. But the industrialists—they pay only a fraction of what they really owe. No one criticizes them because they control the newspapers. One big publisher declared as tax the same amount he paid me to appear in a movie for him. How could that be?"

Sophia Loren: "I know the journalists have tried to work up a feud between us. It is not true. There is no feud."

Howard Hughes: "Howard Hughes? The mention of that magic name is apt to evoke a spate of Italian invective, plus some American cuss words she claims she learned from Hughes himself.

The reason for Gina's ire is a contract which she signed with Hughes when she was virtually unknown in 1950.

"Not a contract, but an option," she explained. "It was enough to keep me from working in Hollywood. All the big studios were afraid to combat such a powerful man as Hughes. They wouldn't hire me. Even today, people here say to me, 'Gina, how can you work for MGM when you belong to Howard Hughes?' The option expired two years ago.

"He even tried to prevent producers in Europe from hiring me. But he could not scare them."

Psychiatrics See Link Between Murder, Suicide

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—There is a strange link between suicide and homicide and perhaps between Denmark and Burma, two psychiatrists noted today.

That link is the way people handle their anger, said Drs. Hazel M. Hiltson, of the Massachusetts Mental Health Center, and Daniel H. Funkenstein, of Harvard Medical School.

This seems to be determined in the way children are raised, they told the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Assn.

Is anger turned inward toward themselves, as in suicide, or turned outward toward another person, as in murder?

The two researchers have made a psychiatric study of a village in Burma, a country with one of the highest homicide rates in the world. They intend to make a similar study in Denmark which has a high suicide rate.

They suspect they may find the same pattern they discovered between child-raising and mental illness in a Boston study.

Starting with a group of Boston mental patients, the researchers went to the families to find out how the patients had been brought up as children.

In the families of depressed patients, the dominant parent tended to expect the children to think and act as he himself would. When punished the child was told he ought to have known better.

The families of aggressive, suspicious paranoid patients generally had a harsh, critical father who ordered about his wife and children.

He never expressed pride in his children and seldom indicated he was fond of them.

The first type of family molds its child by setting "ought to" channels of behavior. The second type of family restricts its children by an "ought not to" sort of order.

When mental illness occurs, the first type of family tends to yield a depressed patient; the second type tends to yield the aggressive, suspicious paranoid type, capable of murder, the psychiatrists said.

In Burma, the researchers found elements in child-raising that appeared related to the aggressive paranoid type.

Burmese fathers are dominant. They are feared by wives and children alike, the researchers said.

Edinburgh Duke Bermuda Bound

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh enplanes for Bermuda today on the last leg of his world tour, ending a five-day Bahamas visit.

Monday Prince Philip was serenaded by 13,000 children singing "Our Sailor Prince." He asked that they be given extra days off from school.

During his Bahamas stay Philip visited the Out Islands, attended church, reading a lesson to the congregation, and tried sailing a racing boat during a regatta.

Negro Freed Of Charges

PHENIX CITY, Ala. (AP)—A Negro has been acquitted of a charge of assault with intent to murder a white taxicab driver following a dispute over a taxi.

An all-white Russell Circuit Court jury found Gussie Lee Patterson innocent Monday.

Willie Bob Edwards, testified Patterson refused to pay a $1 fare after a three-mile drive, drew a knife and pointed it at his throat.

Patterson said he paid Edwards $1.25 on entering the cab and was asked for another $3 at the end of the ride. He said he drew a knife when the driver said he would "take him to place where he would pay."

A city official said the proper fare for the ride was 85 cents.

Negro Freed Of Charges

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It's very crude to discuss bosoms, says buxom actress Anita Ekberg.

Arriving at Los Angeles International Airport Monday, the Swedish actress was asked by a reporter: "Do you think that Europeans, especially the men, were more bosom conscious than Americans?" The reply:

"Why, they don't consider that over there. Besides I think it's very crude of anyone to bring that subject up."

Miss Ekberg, just back from a year in Europe, will visit here briefly, then leave for New York and a May 10 television appearance.

She declined to discuss reports of a rift with her husband British actor Anthony Steel, who was not at the airport when she arrived.

$3 Million Air Terminal To Open In Newfoundland

GANDER, Nfld. (AP)—Canadian air gambling on Gander's ability to retain its title as North America's main air terminal for transatlantic flights to Europe.

More than 11,000 oceanic flights were serviced here last year, and it looks as if even more will be handled this year.

To meet the crush, a new $3,500,000 air terminal is slated for opening June 19. Last January, a new radar traffic control system made Gander Canada's only airport equipped with precision approach and airport surveillance radar.

But prophets of despair continue to predict the airport will lose its position because of advances in aviation technology, especially in jet flying.

Mayor Jack Robertson insists the "same old story" accompanied every forward step in aircraft development. He believes the commercial airlines will always find it more profitable to carry extra passengers and stop here to refuel, than to scrimp on the passenger load and carry enough fuel to fly nonstop between North America and Europe.

Gander's strategic position was first recognized by the British Air Ministry, which cooperated with the Newfoundland government to build the airport in 1937. The facilities were rarely used until World War II, when they were among the world's busiest. The community's population shot up from 300 to 15,000.

Immediately after the war, the population dropped down to 3,500, but eventually reached the present 5,500 with the increase in commercial flying. Mayor Robertson predicts the population will rise to 10,000 by 1970.

USAF Launches Two-Stage Shot

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A smoky two-stage rocket, one of the test models for the Air Force's new Bold Orion air-to-ground ballistic missile, roared aloft Monday on what appeared to be a perfect start.

Air Force officials said only that a research and development vehicle was launched.

The aim of the highly secret Bold Orion program is to develop a nuclear tipped ballistic missile that could be fired more than 1,000 miles from beneath the wings of the nation's huge jet bombers.

Six Nabbed For Bushwack

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Six white Richmond youths have been arrested in connection with the shotgun wounding of six Negro teen-agers which grew out of an inter-racial rock-throwing incident Sunday night.

Police said one of those arrested, Jerald Kenney, 17, was charged with felonious assault with a shotgun after he admitted firing the weapon from an automobile in a middle-class Negro residential section.

Two of the Negro victims, walking along the sidewalk when the shooting occurred, were hospitalized with serious wounds. Four companions received less serious wounds.

John B. Flournoy, 18, a sheet metal worker; Earl Price Garrison Jr., 17, a grocery bagger; Charles Melton Carlton, 22, a roofing worker, and his brother Robert Lee Carlton, 20, also a roofing worker, were all charged with being accessories before the fact.

Thomas Ashby Parkinson, 20, was charged with being an accessory before and after the fact.

Garrison, Parkinson and Flournoy were released under bonds of $2,500 each, pending preliminary hearings in juvenile and domestic relations court May 12. Similar bonds were set for Kenney and the Carlton brothers.

Actress Bans Bosom Talk

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It's very crude to discuss bosoms, says buxom actress Anita Ekberg.

Ex-Cleric Given Term

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A former Methodist minister who said he committed burglaries to raise money for a fresh start in life has been sentenced to five years in prison for grand larceny.

Judge L. A. Grayson sentenced Byrd Alexander Geiger, 41, Monday. Geiger admitted he broke into 18 business establishments and schools.

He told police he pawned some of the items he stole to pay off debts and to have money for a new start in another city.

Geiger's wife, Elizabeth, 36, pleaded guilty to a charge of participating in one of the break-ins. Grayson referred her to presentence probation investigation. The ex-preacher's stepson, Charles Long, 16, admitted taking part in some of the burglaries and was turned over to juvenile authorities.

Earplugs, Man, Beat Rock 'n' Roll

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—Larry Royster thinks rock 'n' roll music is the least, man.

That makes it tough on Larry, who is a saxophonist with a band that plays little else.

Recently the band, with Larry blasting along on his sax, was rock 'n' rolling it up. He didn't mind. He couldn't hear it. His ears were stuffed with paper.

But his antidote backfired. After the session, he couldn't get the wadding out of one ear. It took a trip to a hospital to remove it.

He's back in the rock 'n' roll business again now and undisturbed by it.

The answer? Earplugs, man. Earplugs.
