WALL STREET

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market closed sharply lower today after profits were taken on a wide range of speculative and high quality issues. Trading was heavy.

Volume for the day was estimated at 4,400,000 shares compared with 4,110,000 Wednesday.

Pivotal issues fell from 1 to 5 points.

The advancing wave of space age stocks topped out and flatted with losses of 1 to 8 points in a wide variety of issues.

Thiokol, the week's most active stock so far, fell about 8 points as the New York Stock Exchange banned "stop orders" in the issue.

Motorola trimmed an 11-point loss to about 8. Haveg, Raytheon and General Instrument were 3-point loser as many electronics backed away from recent large gains.

American Telephone toppled to a 5-point loss. U.S. Steel and Eastman Kodak fell around 3 points.

General Tire, which has boomed along with its rocket-making subsidiary, Aerojet, dropped about 5.

Losses of about 3 were taken by Lukens Steel, Chrysler, Anaconda, American Cyanamid, Union Carbide and Air Reduction.

Du Pont fell about 4. International Telephone and Radio Corp. were off around 3 apiece.

U.S. government bonds were mostly steady.

San Luis Bill Still In Doubt

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The fate of the San Luis bill was in doubt today as Senate debate on the measure bogged down in a discussion of water law.

Sen. Clair Engle (D-Calif.), a co-sponsor of the legislation, said that if there is "much more fooling around" the proposal could be defeated.

Engle and Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif.) co-sponsored the bill, which would authorize joint state-federal construction of the San Luis Reclamation Project.

Although a similar bill passed the Senate last year, the measure now has run into trouble because of objections raised by Sens. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.) and Wayne Morse and Richard L. Neuberger, Oregon Democrats.

The three senators have complained that the bill contains provisions which "violate" federal water statutes. They also have charged that it would give landowners who got water from the state features of the project "preferential treatment" over those who took water from the federal part of the unit.

Engle and Kuchel, who at first were confident the Senate again would approve the bill, said after a stormy debate Thursday that there is "real concern" over the chances now.

Engle said the issues raised by Douglas and Morse "might stir up a lot of unwarranted opposition that never existed before."

However, the two Californians said they hoped that a "cooling off" process over the weekend might help erase some of the objections to the project.

Although the San Luis proposal passed the Senate last session, a similar bill was never acted on by the House.

Grand Jury To Investigate $3 Million Embezzlement

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Federal Grand Jury opens an investigation next week into a $3,714,710 embezzlement climaxed by the suicide of a bank vice president.

George A. Hewlett, 40, took his life last Friday after agreeing to go over discrepancies in record of the Long Beach branch of the U. S. National Bank of San Diego.

He left a note mentioning John Hendrickson, a wealthy manufacturer, who was arrested in the case and freed in $50,000 bail. Hendrickson was ordered to appear before the Grand Jury next Wednesday.

Hewlett, a banker for 22 years and up to his recent promotion to vice president a cashier at the Long Beach bank for four years, was outwardly a successful man.

But last Friday, Hewlett received a call from the bank just before he and his wife were leaving to go to a movie.

The call from the bank informed him that discrepancies had been found in the bank's books. Hewlett was asked to go to the bank the next day, Saturday, and he agreed.

Hewlett and his wife went to the movie but halfway through the film Hewlett slipped out of the theater, went into a nearby alley and put a bullet through his heart with a .38-caliber automatic.

He left a note of apology to his wife.

The part of the note federal agents studied with interest read: "No one else is involved in this terrible mess or even has the slightest knowledge of it, but Johnnie Hendrickson. We have not used any of this ourselves. It has all gone to John."

Hendrickson denied any part in the embezzlement, admitting only that he had become friends with Hewlett in 1954 when as a plumber he had a commercial account at the bank.

IWA Calls Strike Vote

McCLOUD—Howard Roe, secretary of International Woodworkers of America Northwest regional negotiating committee, announced the committee unanimously decided to call for a strike vote of the membership. The ballots are to be returned not later than May 18. Roe stated, in a communication to all locals, that negotiations to date have been fruitless.

The secretary said, "The lumber industry has not argued that it cannot afford wage increases, but say that it does not know how long the present boom will last." He further stated, "various plants in the industry have submitted numerous propositions which would put the workers back 25 years."

Among proposals being made by the operators are, "Give companies the right to farm out any or all of its work to other firms and discharge present employes; loss of job and seniority and vacation rights after six months layoff; interference in union affairs by demanding a supervised strike vote."

The union is asking: A two-year agreement; a raise of 12 and one half cents per hour or six per cent, whichever is larger, on June 1, 1959 and a similar increase on June 1, 1960; a seventh paid holiday; a third week of vacation after five years employment; 15 minute rest periods each half shift for mill and factory workers and travel time for woods employes.

Fashion Show Slated Monday

FORT JONES—A fashion show will be held at Cadola's Sewing Room starting at 7:30 a.m. Monday, sponsored by adult sewing classes instructed by Mrs. Ray Luce.

The fashion show is a regular event marking the end of the course and enabling participants to show what they have accomplished during the semester.

It will feature displays of play clothes, mother-daughter outfits, dressy clothes and various ensembles.

The evening will feature entertainment by youngsters enrolled in a local dance class. Light refreshments will be served. Because of limited space, admission, which is free, will be by invitation only.

California History Class Given Illustrated Lecture

By ORA DEMICK

ALTURAS — Walter Lowell of Fort Bidwell gave an illustrated lecture to the extension class in Northern California history when the class made a field trip to the historic military post of that place Saturday.

Ernest R. Neasham, instructor of the class for Chico State College, is a descendant of pioneers of Fort Bidwell. He is also a nephew of Dr. Aubrey Neasham of the California Beaches and Parks Commission which has been asked to consider the development of the old military post into a state parks monument.

Lowell, who was raised near the edge of the old fort and is also a descendant of Fort Bidwell pioneers, now teaches a class of aviators to fly over the ground once traveled only by foot, horseback, wagon and stagecoach. Lowell is an aviation veteran of World War II, during which he flew a reconnaissance plane over Germany. He and his mother operate a general merchandise store.

After Lowell addressed the class in the civic club, he conducted them on a tour of the first military post and the later one, which after its abandonment by the United States Army, became a boarding school for Indian children. The federal government maintained the school and used the fort's hospital for clinical purposes in treating the Indians living in the area.

The military post was established on the eastern slope of the Warner Mountains in Surprise Valley just north of the Lassen Trail which is now known as Fandango Pass. Its original purpose was to provide protection to the early settlers from the hostile Indians. Ranches were developed from the Oregon line to the Lassen County line on the south and from the Nevada line to the Warner Mountains on the west, with Upper, Middle and Lower lakes within the valley itself.

Some of the original buildings of the military fort which still stand were formerly used as officers quarters, its very first school and a portion of a cavalry barn. Square nails were used in their construction.

The hospital is located higher upon the side of the mountains, commanding a splendid view of the valley.

The cemetery, north of the site of the fort, contains the graves of soldiers, Indians and pioneers and their descendants. The whole is maintained in respectable condition.

The class heard reports on forts and mining as they pertained to Modoc, Lassen, Siskiyou and Shasta counties. They also heard about the Indian Commissioner Meacham whose life was saved during the Modoc Indian War by Winema, an Indian princess and wife of a white settler of Yreka.

After a potluck luncheon served by the Civic Club members and the Modoc County Historical Society, the class was led to the last remaining pioneer log cabin in the upper part of the valley. The cabin is believed to be more than 100 years old, according to Mrs. Leo Sagehorn, hostess on this part of the trip and mother of the present landowner where it stands.

Henry Kober, aged storekeeper, who maintains a rare collection of museum items including Indian artifacts, was also host to the class.

As the class entered the quaint little white and steepled church, strains were heard from a modern electric organ which was recently given the congregation. Mrs. B. N. Bock was the organist.

About 11 miles south of Fort Bidwell, Mrs. Edna Harris, one of the students, pointed out the original "49" schoolhouse which stands at the Forty-Nine Corners. She said that this is the only place on the highway in that part of the valley where there are four corners. As the class looked eastward across the valley into Nevada, the road leading into Forty-Nine Canyon was clearly visible. Peter Lassen, Joseph Goldsborough Bruff and others led wagon trains through this canyon into California.

The original plans for the field trip had included the Fandango Pass but a snowstorm that morning made the road impassable.

The final session of the course will be held in Alturas on Saturday, May 9. The Modoc County Historical Society sponsored the course in cooperation with Mrs. Clara Eddie, superintendent of Modoc County schools.

Just off the press is a book written by the class instructor. "Fall River Valley" is a history published by Ben Jenne and E. R. Neasham at Fall River Mills, California. Fall River is one of the headwaters of the Sacramento River, and emitted by springs near Fall River Mills.

SCOUT NEWS

AWARD MEETING

McCLOUD—About 60 Cub Scouts invited their parents to attend a potluck dinner award meeting at the McCloud lodge hall kitchen the evening of April 30. A total of over 125 persons attended.

Graduation certificates were issued to Marshal Willis, Eddie Ray Long, Salvatori and Dan Zezado. Those receiving bobcat awards were Sammy Spagnolo, Bruce Jones, Eugene Murphy, Randy Baldini and Larry Prosperi. Bob Sharrah and John Hitchcock received den chief cords, Eddie Ray Long was awarded a Webelos badge.

Those receiving denner awards were Billy Clime and Lorin Burlison; assistant denners David Gordon, Terry Jones and John Ricci; wolf badges, Bobby Hall and Arthur Hamb. Arthur also received his gold arrow and two year pin. Marshal Willis received his three year pin. A display of handicraft work was shown.

Skits were presented by each of the three dens of Pack 42, under the direction of den mothers.

McCloud IOOF No. 432 is the sponsoring body. Representatives of the lodge attended the meeting. Robert McLain is cubmaster.

June 20 was set as father and son day. A wiener roast and fishing contest will be held on that day on the McCloud River.

Video Actress Weds Secretly

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Television actress June Lockhart secretly married architect John C. Lindsay last month.

The couple disclosed Thursday that the ceremony was performed in the San Francisco home of Stephen Zellerbach.

Miss Lockhart, 34, was divorced from Dr. John F. Maloney of New York April 1. They have two children. Lindsay, 40, was divorced from actress Diana Lynn in 1953.

TV Corporation Holds Meeting

MONTAGUE—A special business meeting of the Nor-Sis Television Corporation Wednesday evening authorized Jim Dow, technical engineer for the corporation, to proceed with all investigations and to prepare profile maps to obtain permission from the television stations and the FCC for the construction of the installation of the translators on Antelope Peak.

They also appointed a road committee, headed by Roy Bengard, to investivate the building of a road to the peak.

It was reported to the group that there is $25,700 in pledges and paid-up memberships in the Yreka-Weed areas.

The campaign will be extended until June 1 because the service clubs in Yreka, under the leadership of Lynn Cecil, are making a concentrated drive in that area.

HAS ENOUGH RAIN

PIERRE, S. D. (UPI)—A caller who wanted to discuss "solicitations for weather experiments about the rain" declined Wednesday to enter the office of State Agriculture Secretary Ray Fitzgerald.

"My feet are muddy," he explained.

Fall Dedication Date Set For Mormon Church In Etna

By BERNITA TICKNER

ETNA—During 1936, missionaries of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints visited the Etna Branch of the Klamath Stake when only two families of that faith lived in Scott Valley. Meetings were held in homes of the members in the beginning and later in rented halls as the congregation increased.

Now, the Etna branch of the Klamath Stake has a new $52,000 building for its meetings. A dedication date has been tentatively set for fall of 1959 when church officials from the parent church in Salt Lake City, Utah, will conduct the ceremony.

In 1942, a small chapel was constructed on Diggles Street in Etna. By 1957, this chapel proved to be inadequate and plans were drawn for a larger structure which would incorporate the original building.

Through the incessant efforts of both men and women members, funds were partially raised through food sales, dinners and assessment of members. Financial aid was also given by the parent church. The labor was done by the men and women of the faith with some assistance from nonmembers, under the supervision of the building supervisor, William Rickenbach of Oregon. In order to conform with state and county regulations, the plumbing and electrical wiring were done by licensed persons.

The original chapel was moved to become the left wing of the new church and is still the chapel. At the right end is the large recreational hall equipped with a large stage and adjustable lighting, including spotlights for the stage. Between the recreational room and the chapel is the foyer, kitchen, nursery, office, rest rooms and furnace room. Improvements include a sound deadening ceiling in the chapel to improve accoustics; automatic heating and ventilating.

Landscaping plans have not been completed. Remaining are two redwood trees planted in 1942 on either side of the original chapel. One tree being dedicated to the priesthood and the other to the Relief Society of the church.

Since 1936, the two families of the Latter Day Saints have grown to 36 with 125 church members.

Local affairs of the Etna church are led by Glenn Hiett, president, and his councilors, Paul Norris and Charles Hovenden. The Relief Society is headed by Mrs. Orville Johnson, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Charles Hovenden and Estella Hiett.

Survey Planned By City Council

FORT JONES—The city council, at a meeting in the Community Center Monday night, decided to make a survey of city property so that insurance coverage may be adjusted.

Councilmen received eight folding chairs for use in the council chamber to replace benches. The chairs were donated by the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Fort Jones Methodist Church.

EMPLOYE TRANSFERRED

MOUNT SHASTA — Wilbert S. Frazier, an employe with the state fish hatchery at Mount Shasta for 10 years, has transferred to the State Department of Beaches and Parks. He left Mount Shasta on May 4 for Mt. Diablo State Park where he will become Park Ranger No. 1. Frazier was active in all civic enterprises while living in Mount Shasta, and was agricultural leader in 4-H Club work. His daughter, Ethel, a high school student, was the first president of the Strawberry Valley 4-H Club.
