

THE F-89 SCORPION is an Air Force interceptor which carries a crew of two. Powered by an Allison J-35-3 turbojet engine, the plane is capable of flying in excess of 1,000 miles at a speed of 600 miles per hour. Built by the Northrop Aviation Corp., in California, the Scorpion is equipped with an afterburner, and has a wingspan of 57' 10" and is 53' 4" long. This aircraft will be on display at Kingsley Field on Armed Forces Day, Saturday, May 16, 1959.

Local Air Base To Observe Armed Forces Day, May 16

The 408th Fighter Group at Kingsley Field will observe the 10th anniversary of Armed Forces Day on Saturday, May 16, with an open house, parade, static displays, and other events according to Col. Jack W. Williams, Kingsley Field Base commander.

Open house will prevail during the day giving the people of neighboring Klamath Falls and other towns the opportunity to see for themselves how an Air Force installation operates. The open house will also give military and civilian personnel a chance to show their working areas to families and friends. All facilities and activities, consistent with security and work schedules, will be open to the general public.

"Power for Peace," which has been used since 1953, will again be the slogan in the annual invitation to the public to become better acquainted with the nation's defense structure. Highlights of the day's activities will include: a parade in downtown Klamath Falls by the military; static displays of the Air Force's century series aircraft, the F-104 Starfighter, F-102 Delta Dagger, F-101 Voodoo, and the F-100 Super Sabre; as well as the F-89 Scorpion and the F-86 Sabre Jet. There will also be huge transport aircraft on display, and a B-47, the Air Force's first line bomber. On Saturday, Armed Forces Day, aircraft will make flyovers over the cities of Klamath Falls, Ashland, Medford and Grants Pass. An Armed Forces Day dinner at the Willard Hotel in Klamath Falls

Beach Murder Jury Reports

CHICAGO (AP)—A jury which deliberated nearly eight hours Friday acquitted 25-year-old Barry Cook of murdering a sunbathing spinster three years ago in a North Side lakefront park. Although the acquittal cleared Cook of the spyglass murder of Miss Margaret Gallagher, a 50-year-old beauty operator, he is not a free man. He will be returned to prison Monday to serve the remainder of a 1 to 14-year sentence for admitted assaults and robberies of women. The state had sought the death penalty. It based its case largely upon alleged admissions by Cook to police and a lie detector expert. His lawyer contended that Cook was brainwashed into making the statements. The bludgeoning of Miss Gallagher was witnessed by an apartment dweller scanning Lake Michigan through opera glasses July 23, 1956. However, he was too far away to prevent the slaying or identify the assailant.

THIS PICTURE, taken about 1920, shows a feed wagon on the A. L. Marshall ranch in Poe Valley. On the wagon are Mr. and Mrs. Marshall, parents of Bill and Jack Marshall who have continued to operate the property which was homesteaded about 1872. The snapshot was taken by V. E. (Vic) O'Neill of Klamath Falls.

Ex-Football Star Settled Here In 1912

The late A. L. Marshall, an All-America football player and later a football coach, came to Oregon from Indiana in 1907. After five years at Medford, he moved his family into the Poe Valley of Klamath County. Mechanization of farm and ranch operation had barely started in those days as is shown by the picture of the horse-drawn feed wagon. The snapshot was borrowed from a family scrapbook at the Bill Marshall home and was taken about 1920 by V. E. (Vic) O'Neill who had persuaded Mrs. Marshall to pose on the hayrack with her husband.

In addition to the old homestead, Bill and Jack Marshall maintain a livestock operation at Swan Lake and have added to their Poe Valley holdings. The Marshall men and their wives are active in Klamath County Cattlemen's Association and Cow Belle activities and other phases of beef promotion.

This picture is published as part of a series of oldtime pictures of early day cattle operations in the Klamath Basin. The project is under the chairmanship of Mrs. Lee Holliday, vice president of Klamath County Cow Belles. The series is presented to show a little of the background of the cattle industry in this area and as a prelude to the Beef for Fathers Day promotion of the Cow Belles.

Cleanup Week On Today; Final Sweep Due May 23

Klamath Falls Cleanup Week begins tomorrow. In theory, it begins today, but who is going to tackle such a monumental project on Sunday? There is altogether too much trash lying around the city, officials who instituted the cleanup campaign are convinced. So they have tied-in with a national institution—the Clean-up, Paint-up, Fire Prevention Month of May. In that way, they hope townspeople will help spruce up the town to make it cleaner, healthier and less combustible. The officials, chiefs of the various fire departments in and near the city, and chamber of commerce personnel, have set May 23 as Clean-up Day. On that day people who want to get rid of trash they have accumulated and piled this week can call the chamber of commerce, which will dispatch trucks with Boy Scouts to pick up debris. Sometime during the week a team of fire chiefs will inspect various trouble spots in the city. Then they will reinspect the area after Clean-up Day to see how the campaign worked. In a sort of contest, greater Klamath Falls, including the suburban area, will be broken into competing units using boundaries of all the school sub-districts in town. Children of the area which does the best clean-up job will get free ice cream. If residents want to burn trash they may receive free fire permits by calling the Klamath Falls, Suburban or Stewart-Lenox Fire Departments. If they want to burn trash piled dangerously near buildings, a call to one of the departments will bring men and equipment to tend the fires.

Minister Dies In Road Crash

GRANTS PASS (AP)—A young minister was killed and his wife and child were injured in the head-on collision of their station wagon with a lumber truck and trailer just north of here Friday. The Rev. Aubry Ashburn, pastor of an Assembly of God Church at San Diego, died shortly after his arrival at a hospital. His wife, Betty, 20, and their child, Daniel, 11 months, were hurt. Hospital attendants said their injuries were serious but not critical.

Military Asks More Money For Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP)—Several military leaders, in secret testimony made public Saturday, complain that their missile development programs are not getting enough money in the administration's proposed defense budget. None of them dissented formally from President Eisenhower's budget recommendations, but they do contend that the administration is an adequate mixture of deterrence and defense. But high officers of each of the services voiced their missile worries to the House Appropriations subcommittee that holds the purse strings on defense spending. The testimony given in March and April was published Saturday, though shredded by the censors' shears. The officers said there was not enough money budgeted for: 1. The Nike Zeus program, the Army's hope for destroying enemy intercontinental ballistic missiles. 2. The Air Force's program of building more U.S. intercontinental missiles. 3. The Navy's Polaris missile-submarine combination, which the Navy views as a more effective retaliatory threat for the next few years than anything the Air Force has now. NEW LOCATION RICHMOND, Va.
