Scotty's BARKS 'N' BITES

By WAYNE SCOTT

If the enthusiasm and interest displayed by the more than 400 parents who accompanied their sons to the South Suburban Little League tryouts this week is any indication, the newly formed league is off to a roaring start.

They have their work cut out for them . . . Bless 'em. Before the first bat is swung in the "major" leagues a "minor" league system will be a thing of reality and that means a whale of a lot of baseball in the South end this season, in addition to the staggering amount set within the confines of Klamath Falls proper.

The thought occurs to yours truly that even if the proposed Little League Ballpark is completed this year, and it seems probable that it might, we will still be far short of enough good diamonds to handle all the action. All we can do is keep working so that every boy that wants to play gets a chance.

Our summer baseball program cannot get too big, nor out of proportion, so long as there is one youngster for whom there is no place.

To my way of thinking the tremendous turnout of parents interested in our program sort of puts the lie to the occasional muttering, "The little leagues, etc., fall into the category of the 'built-in baby-sitter' for parents who want their kids out from underfoot."

I like to think that the interest is sincere and that the parents want their youth to get a chance to learn good baseball, good sportsmanship and good clean, earnest competition.

The revival of boxing, on the local scene, can be credited to, primarily, Buck Davidson.

Davidson, who promoted a lot of wrestling in the past, swung into boxing programs with his usual zeal, when the Little League Ballpark Benefit Fund needed money.

Buck didn't work alone, he will be the first to admit, but the show was a tremendous success. Since that time Davidson has devoted a lot of time, money and enthusiasm to making a place for Klamath Falls youngsters who wish to learn the manly art.

The appearance of welterweight title seeker Denny Moyer in Klamath Falls in a special six round bout last night, in the big benefit show held in the auditorium, is one result of Buck's work. It's not often that we see, in our town, a fighter of Moyer's ability, especially so near to his bid for the world crown.

I've lost track of the number of boxing shows that Buck has undertaken since February but I do know that each one of them has been a benefit performance for some worthy cause, and that Buck and his assistants have worked gratis. Last night's profits are going to the Klamath Boxing Club toward the eventual construction of training quarters and a gym . . . thereby creating another sports opportunity for our young athletes.

Elroy Hirsch, one of the easiest guys to know, also one of the most down to earth "big name" sports figures ever seen, created no little hubbub last week when he showed up at the field house on Modoc Field with a duffel bag crammed with sports equipment to get a little workout.

Hirsch got more than a "little workout" . . . within seconds he was surrounded by a mob of KU athletes, in track suits, tennis gear, baseball shoes and so on, all of whom insisted on a game of touch football.

Crazylegs obliged . . . gladly . . . and they had a ball . . . Hirsch demonstrating the ability through which he gained his name.

Track, baseball and tennis may have suffered a little that day but the morale of the kids soared.

Bowlers at Lucky Lanes late Friday night got a pleasant surprise when Hirsch capped a chock-full day with a 600 series that started with six-straight strikes and a 235 game. Hirsch, admittedly tired, delayed his departure long enough to help a youngster on the next alley with his delivery . . . quite a guy.

BUCK DAVIDSON
. . . Willing worker

Hirsch flew to Madison, Wisconsin, for the alumni game yesterday. He and a group of more ex-Badgers returned to their alma mater to test the varsity at the close of spring practice.

Yep . . . Crazylegs keeps busy and Union Oil should be mighty proud of its choice of representatives.

The largest gun supply on the coast belongs to Bill Harless, Oregon Technical Institute 1951 graduate who now makes his home in North Bend. Bill operates the Pacific Sportman, a sporting goods center, in the Coos Bay area.

If you are heading for some fishing on the coast it makes good sense to give Bill a call at SK 9-4082. He has all the dope on what and where they are biting.

Big Bob Drace, the "towering towhead" at Klamath Union, added a new high hurdle school record to his list of accomplishments in the cause of the Pelicans as he sped to a :15.0 flat in high hurdles Friday.

And he also came within a tenth of a second of a new mark in the lows. Plus sharing a tie at 5'8" in the high jump.

Bob could undoubtedly go a little faster than he does if someone would come along that could crowd him . . . all the way.

Frank Hunnicutt, of the Klamath Independent Baseball League notes that there is a golden opportunity awaiting boys not playing American Legion or Kub baseball this year if they will just try out for KIBL berths. Call Hunnicutt at Merrill for the dope.

A big change is under way at the Klamath Auditorium if you haven't noticed. It began with the hiring of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Mathis as the new custodians.

A harder working pair you won't see. People who may have attended various events in the Old Armory over the last few months won't recognize the place. It's clean . . . now. And that's the way it will stay, thanks to the Mathises.

The auditorium had fallen to the place where it was a near disgrace to the community . . . but that's all over now.

Moyer Displays Top Form

Displaying a sharp attack which he plans to use against welterweight champ Don Jordan July 10 in Portland, Denny Moyer performed against former Canadian welter amateur champion Jimmy Watters in a six-round exhibition match to a crowd of 700's delight Saturday night at the Klamath Auditorium. The sparing match was one of 15 bouts staged for the benefit of the Klamath Boxing Club, which plans to set up a fund for the construction of a gymnasium in the future.

With both Moyer and Walters using head guards as in sparring to prevent against possible cuts, the pair sent the Klamath Basin fight fans in attendance home well pleased as they slammed away at each other with sharp jabs, each possessing a sharp attack.

In other bouts on the card Ronald Scott from Kingsley Field pounded out a decision of Lakeview's Frankie Lightle, Leroy Slocum of Weed lost by a decision to Klamath's Larry Bender, Weed's Willie Tatum scored a second round TKO over Klamath's Sonny Cozine, Kingsley's Jim Gardiner won by a knockout in the first round over Bob Jones of Weed, Lakeview's Jim Godsby won a split decision over Ted Barney of Sprague River, Klamath's Bill Stevenson won a split decision over Weed's Ira Fair and Butch Browning of Weed and Klamath's Buck Thompson battled to a draw.

The new Latonia race track in Kentucky, built eight miles from the site of the old course, will be a mile oval with a seven-furlongs infield turf course. It will open its inaugural meeting August 27.

OTI Thinclads Grab Second In Portland

PORTLAND—The Portland State Vikings more than doubled their closest competition as they swept to 92 points and victory over the Oregon Technical Institute Owls and the Southern Oregon College Red Raiders in a tri-way track meet here Saturday afternoon.

The Oregon Tech squad, led by speedster Dick Hocevar, collected 39 points for second place while the Southern Oregon team compiled 23 for the third and trailing spot.

7 BIG REASONS Why WADE RAIN Owners Save Time and Labor.

1 Easiest to Move . . . and Fastest! Light Aluminum Coupler makes it easy to carry 30-ft. or 40-ft. Lengths of Pipe. No Tools Required . . . all normal Field Changes can be made by hand.

2 Self-Locking Couplers — LATCH-O-MATIC locks from carrying position, ready for Water. SPEED-MATIC locks and unlocks from carrying position. Just push pipe into WADE RAIN Coupler from carrying position . . . it's locked, sealed and ready for water.

3 Double-End Coupler . . . enables you to "build" a Lateral from the Main Line out (with water in the line) for extra speed in Lateral Assembly.

4 Self-Draining . . . Famous "Loks-In" Gasket relaxes when pressure drops below 5 lbs. Then water drains automatically from Pipe. No Lifting Pipes full of Water!

5 Flexible to Follow Land Contours . . . without strain or leaking. "Loks-In" Gasket maintains seal even on rough, rolling ground.

6 Riser Pipes Can't Lean . . . Lateral line Pipe locks in one position . . . can't roll or tilt. Prevents faulty Sprinkler Pattern.

7 Coupler Easily Detached from Pipe . . . or when secured Semi-Permantly, it can be quickly removed for Pipe transportation — avoiding damage to Sprinklers.
