

Forest Fires Extinguished

Forest service men and a logging truck driver put out two potentially dangerous fires in forest service land Tuesday, and the blazes prompted D. K. Frewing, district ranger of the Rogue River National Forest, to issue some warnings.

"These warm, dry spring days with gusty winds are especially hazardous for fires," Frewing said. "Fishermen and other persons frequenting forest areas are going to have to realize how critical the situation is, or we are going to have a devastating fire one of these days."

The two fires, both in the vicinity of Three Mile Ridge, were presumed to have been caused by fishermen or mushroom pickers who were smoking Tuesday morning.

The first on Three Mile Ridge, was discovered and reported by Ben Brown, a logger of Fort Klamath. It was controlled and extinguished after burning half an acre near concentrated logging slash.

The second, a small spot fire, was smothered with water from Three Mile Creek where it was burning, by W. M. Raymond, a logging truck driver of Klamath Falls.

KF Engineer Gets License

Clifford D. Lawrence of 2220 Reclamation Avenue, Klamath Falls, was among 11 Oregon engineers who were awarded professional engineering licenses by the State Board of Engineering Examiners following examination March 20 and 21.

He is chief of the Hydrology Division of the Klamath Bureau of Reclamation Project, and is a principal assistant to the project manager.

The division handles all water supply studies and manages all project reservoirs. It also takes part in planning.

Lawrence was graduated from Utah State College with a bachelor of science degree in 1936. His specialty is irrigation and drainage engineering. He has worked for the federal government since.

The professional certificate will allow Lawrence to go into engineering business for himself. "But I just took the test to satisfy myself," he said.

Lawrence and his wife have four children.

HOWARD HALL

Art Teacher To Do Murals

Howard Hall, Klamath Union High School Art Department head, has been commissioned to paint two murals to be placed in the new Lane County Courthouse, Eugene, this summer. The paintings will be used in the health department suite, located on the first floor.

This commission is one of a number to be completed during the summer months. The courthouse is the first of a group of buildings that will form a new Civic Center in Eugene.

Lane County's Art Commission has engaged 12 Oregon artists for the art projects, most of them from Lane County, present residents or natives. The projects include a number of sculptures, mosaics and murals by four painters.

Hall has started work on a number of sketches and will attempt to resolve many ideas on subject matter and composition into two or three final statements. The final sketches must be approved by the Art Commission before work on the murals can begin.

Hall exhibits regularly in juried painting shows in the Northwest and has paintings in private collections in Oregon, Nevada, Washington and California.

He is finishing his fifth year at KUHS as head of the art department, has a degree of master of fine arts, 1951, from the University of Oregon, is married and has five children.

Railways of Finland are linked with those of Russia and Sweden.

Pumping Plant Bids Sought

The Bureau of Reclamation soon will advertise for bids on a project to install a 75,000-cubic-foot per second pumping plant for spring drainage of a 6,000 acre tract of reclaimed farmland southwest of Tulelake.

The area, known to the bureau as the "Sump Two" area, and to local farmers as the "Southwest Sump," is barley land located five miles south and four miles west of Tulelake.

A pump that drains the land after it is flooded annually with irrigation water, is collapsing. Bureau of Reclamation spokesman says.

The new unit will eliminate the old and will provide a surefire pumping system. The unit is a segment of a plan to provide full drainage so that crops may be diversified and farmers will be able to irrigate the year around.

At present, farmers flood the diked land, once a portion of the Tulelake bed, in the spring.

They pump excess water into Tulelake. When the land becomes manageable, they turn and plant it. Then no more irrigation can take place until the following year's planting time.

Farmers lease the land for three years at a stretch from the bureau in 180 acre plots.

Bids will be advertised around June 1, and they probably will be opened between June 18 and June 23.

Falls office are not sure they believe the pumping unit will be ready to operate by next winter.

SPACEMEN GET SPACE
WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower has made space for the spacemen. He signed a bill Wednesday authorizing the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to give up its scattered temporary quarters and lease office space in Washington.
