Fact Study Slated For Famous Feud

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A member of the Hatfield clan is out to settle the feud between the Hatfields and McCoys once and for all. But he intends to do it with facts—not firearms.

Lt. John E. Howes, whose great-grandfather led the Hatfields into the historic feud, said the grudge between the two families is legend, but lacking in historical background.

The Army officer, now stationed at Camp Leroy Johnson here, claims that magazine articles, books and movies have distorted the facts.

"There have been so many misstatements and exaggerations that I'd like to get the answers and prove the families are not just a bunch of hillbillies out to shoot each other," he said.

The Hatfields, Howes said, "are a prominent family in this country, particularly in West Virginia, but you would hardly know it from the publicity we've gotten."

He said he plans to return to the scene of the pitched battles on the Kentucky-West Virginia border to dig into the real facts of why and how a total of 100 men and women of the Hatfield and McCoy families were killed over the course of 10 years.

And when the Army sends him to Europe, he plans to visit the original Hatfield homesite in England.

"Devil Anse" Hatfield was the leader of the clan back in the 1890's when 150 Hatfields and McCoys criss-crossed the Kentucky-West Virginia border in a series of forays brought about by a dispute over ownership of a hog.

MAJOR EFFORT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The new Walt Disney film, "Sleeping Beauty," represents six years of effort by the studio's technicians, story men and artists. It's a spectacular production in Technirama 70-Technicolor and cost an estimated 6 million dollars. The score is based on Tchaikovsky's music, which adapted when necessary to fit the animated production.
